But Such Apartments Are Being Held at $20, the Housing Commission Is Told.

REALTY BOARD MAKES PLEA

MORE LIGHT ON CONGESTION

Expert Declares Present Conditions Will Be Reflected in Children Ten Years Hence.

Two builders, one applying the Ford car principle to housing and the other a builder of single units, told the State Housing Commission yesterday that they were positive that decent, livable tenements could be built at the present time to rent for $9 and $10 a room. The former said he now is building 100 houses in Astoria which will rent for $9 a room and declared that up to 1916 he built the same apartments to rent for $9 a room; in 1919 he built them for $4 a room, and altogether he has built 1,000 tenements to house 30,000 persons.

The other builder, speaking from an experience of forty years in the business, told the commission frankly that he had just completed a $238,000 tenement at 76th Street and Woodycrest Avenue which could be rented for $10 a room and which would then yield a return of 8 per cent. on the investment and allow several hundred dollars over. However—the property is not controlled by him—the rent for apartments in this house has been fixed at $20 a room.

In contradiction to this testimony, an official of the City and Suburban Homes Company, a semi-philanthropic organization which rents model tenements, said that he did not believe new housing could be furnished for less than $15 or $17 a room.

Agents called by counsel for the Real Estate Board declared there was no shortage in high-grade properties and asked that the rent laws with respect to such properties be allowed to lapse. Representatives of the Greater New York Taxpayers' Association, consisting of owners of houses renting below $10 and $15 a month per room, opposed this suggestion on the ground that to lift the restrictions from high-grade property would result in a pressure downward, forcing prices in the lower grade houses up and so the poor would suffer by increasing the demand for their accommodations.

Sees Profiteering in Tax-Exempt Houses.

Arthur J. W. Hilly, Acting Corporation Counsel and a former Chairman of the Mayor's Rent Committee, advocated bringing the tax-exempt houses within the jurisdiction of the rent laws, alleging that great profiteering in such houses was now going on. He asserted that the profiteering particularly hit the "white-collar" group of clerks and other workers whose wages have not risen in proportion to the increased cost of living.

Miss Lillie Grant, Acting Chairman of the Mayor's Rent Committee, testified that rents still were being increased between 100 and 300 per cent. in Manhattan, the Bronx and Brooklyn. Her committee is still besieged with tenants asking for relief, she said.

Real estate agents were unanimous in the request that the Housing Commission recommend relief for them in the case of hold-over tenants who moved during the year and asked that such tenants be held responsible by the law for a full year's tenancy. According to Stewart Browne of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, wealthy tenants make it a practice to move to Far Harbor or other watering places in May or June and save rent until the Fall. The realty interests also declared that Municipal Court Justices were "playing politics" with the rent laws, and it was suggested that rent cases be handled by a commission, or conciliation or arbitration tribunal.

The "Ford plan" builder was Albert E. Matthews, who showed the commission photographs of six-family tenements he had constructed. The apartments are five rooms each and steam heated. When forty such houses were completed in 1919 and applicants advertised for, a mob of 2,000 stormed the buildings, said Mr. Matthews. Low costs were possible because his company owned its own sawmills and standardized the houses as much as possible.

Describes His Apartments.

"The houses are built on a plot 28 by 100 feet, continued Mr. Matthews. "Each apartment contains five rooms and bath and there are two apartments on a floor. They meet all the possible Tenement House Department regulation requirements. When 200 apartments were finished last July an advertisement brought 2,000 people. We had to get four policemen to keep them away."

The witness said he had no difficulty in borrowing money from savings banks for the erection of his houses, having borrowed $5,000,000 from a Williamsburg bank. The houses are sold in single units, but there is no demand from buyers just now, he said.

Under the cross-examination of State Industrial Commissioner Bernard L. Shientag, the witness testified that three of the rooms were lighted by an inner court, and maintained that his SCRANTON, Pa., Oct. 19.—A "community still" is the latest for the manufacture of home-made whisky, Scranton police declared today after raiding homes in Green Ridge.

They said they had discovered in one home a large still, purchased by a number of families in the neighborhood, who took turns "making their own" in it.

SAYS FORD PLANNED MURDER BY AUTO

GIVES DETAILS TO POLICE

"A Pack of Lies," Says Ford, Who Declares He Was Beaten Up When Arrested.

Raymond Anderson, alleged member of the arson band of three that last Monday morning set the fire which destroyed the frame dwelling at 8,417 Nineteenth Avenue, Bath Beach, and caused the death of six of the sixteen occupants, added new threads yesterday to the net the authorities were weaving around the alleged chief of the conspirators, William S. Ford.

While Ford was reiterating his innocence and protesting he had been subjected to a beating by the police, Anderson insisted Ford was the originator of the arson and murder plot and that Ford's purpose was to do away with his father-in-law, George F. Keim, with whom he had been engaged in extensive litigation in a realty dispute.

Anderson charged yesterday that Ford had discussed with him and with John Doe, the third alleged conspirator, still missing, several means of killing Keim and that the arson plot, in particular, had been talked over several times before it was effected. Anderson asserted that Ford asked him to kill Keim by running him down with an automobile and that in pursuance of this plot he and Ford drove around the streets of Bath Beach repeatedly in hope of coming upon Keim. Anderson alleged further that Ford offered him $10 to beat up Samuel Evans Maires, an attorney of 44 Court Street, Brooklyn, who was referee in the Ford-Keim realty litigation.

Held Without Bail.

Anderson was held yesterday by Magistrate Brown in Coney Island Court without bail to face charges of arson and murder next Wednesday morning, the date and place set for Ford's appearance on the same charges. It is likely, however, that the case will be taken out of the Magistrate's court, for there is a prospect that the King-County Grand Jury will receive the evidence against the two next Tuesday. In the event of indictments expected by District Attorney Charles J. Dodd, the Magistrate would automatically waive jurisdiction.

James R. Lynch, in whose home Anderson was playing cards when called out by Ford and John Doe last Sunday night, was held by Magistrate Brown in $20,000 bail as a material witness. All three men were remanded to Raymond Street Jail.

District Attorney Dodd intimated yesterday that there was a reason for Ford's strong grip on Anderson, an influence that induced Anderson, according to the latter's confession, to fall in with murder plots directed against Keim, whom he scarcely knew.

It had been planned to re-enact the murder scene, but so much time was consumed in examination of Ford, Anderson, Lynch and others that the plan was abandoned.

As he was being led to Raymond Street Jail, Anderson sighed, "I am mighty glad this whole thing is over. I slept last night in the Poplar Street Police Station with a clear conscience for the first time since it happened. Every night this week I had visions of flames consuming me, but last night I slept without dreaming."

In yesterday's elaboration of his story of the day before, Anderson related incidents to District Attorney Dodd and Fire Marshal Thomas P. Brophy which they described as startling.

As long ago as last April, said Anderson, Ford began demanding that he kill or help in the killing of Keim. In the latter part of that month, said Anderson, Ford offered him $10 "to do up Maires" because the latter, as referee, had made rulings adverse to Ford in the latter's defense of Keim's Supreme Court action for restoration of certain properties that Keim had deeded to his daughter, Mrs. Edna A. Ford, and

GOVERNORS ADOPT PLEDGE TO COOLIDGE OF HELP ON DRY LAW

VOTE IS CALLED UNANIMOUS

CALL ON COOLIDGE TODAY

One Prediction Is That He Will Avoid a General Declaration in His Speech.

WEST BADEN, Ind., Oct. 19 (Associated Press).—Discarding a conference tradition of fifteen years' standing, a majority of the fifty-two State and territorial Governors, in convention here, took their first record vote today in passing a resolution endorsing national prohibition and pledging to President Coolidge "our fullest co-operation" in the enforcement of the Volstead act.

The action came as the climax of a three-hour session of fiery debate, Parliamentary tangles and perplexing manbeuvres, in which several Governors fought throughout to block the vote.

After the session the Executives left for Washington to lay their statement before President Coolidge at the luncheon conference to be held Saturday.

"Today America passed over the hill on the prohibition question," Governor Sweet of Colorado, who introduced the resolution, said.

On a vive voce vote in which no opposing voice was heard by the Chairman or the official reporters, the resolution was formally reported as "unanimously adopted." This ruling was made by Governor Baxter of Maine, who presided.

The adoption of the resolution was followed by the resignation of Governor Parker of Louisiana from the conference. He had declared at the opening of the debate that a vote on the resolution would call for his immediate resignation, and as the din of "Yeas" greeted the putting of the question he walked from the room. He was a member of the Washington party, however, when the train began its journey, and said that he would attend the President's conference.

Text of the Resolution.

To the President, the White House, Washington, D. C.

Mr. President: Observance of law is the fundamental basis of American citizenship and enforcement of law is the primary duty of every official.

National prohibition is now, by constitutional amendment, the law of our land. An overwhelming majority of the citizens of the United States are law-abiding and desirous of the enforcement of law.

The national Government alone has control of the manufacture of intoxicants and has a very special obligation to perform in prohibiting the importation into this country of wines and spirituous liquors contrary to the laws of the United States. The individual States are powerless to act in these respects; therefore, the national Government should exercise its full power and authority in dealing with these questions.

We believe that the Chief Executive of every State should be zealous in the enforcement of the prohibition law and should urge upon every State official a strict observance and enforcement of the same.

We believe that the State and Federal officers should co-operate fully in preventing the violation of our prohibition law and in making effective the will of our people in regard to its enforcement. New conditions impose new responsibilities. People who violate one law will the more readily be guilty of violating other laws.

Therefore, the individual States should share with the Federal Government the duty and responsibility of enforcing the Eighteenth Amendment.

We pledge you, as Governors, our fullest co-operation and effort.

Wrangle Before the Vote.

When the conference assembled, Governor Baxter called for unfinished business and Governor Sweet announced that the redraft of a memorial on prohibition, to be presented to President Coolidge was ready for the signatures of the Governors.

Governor Blaine of Wisconsin was on his feet instantly with objections to the signing of the memorial, declaring that the "round robin is an unfair evasion of our rule against resolutions." He urged a discussion of methods for the enforcement of the Volstead act instead "of proclaiming from the housetops that we are virtuous men and good Governors."

"I am opposed to the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act, and the people of Wisconsin know it," said Governor Blaine, "but there is no criticism of the enforcement of the laws in our State. If we are meeting here to memorialize on the enforcement of laws we should neglect none. This fanaticism is base hypocrisy."

Governor Parker then declared that he

Lowden Declines Post of Envoy to Britain; London Hopes for Root But He Is Not Well

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois has declined an offer of the Ambassadorship to Great Britain made by President Coolidge. That the tender had been made became known today with the disclosure that Mr. Lowden had declined.

At the time of the official admission that Colonel George Harvey would retire from the Ambassadorship it was understood that President Coolidge wished to offer the mission to Mr. Lowden. There was a general opinion that if the offer were made Mr. Lowden would decline.

In some quarters the view was expressed that President Coolidge would hesitate to make a formal tender to Mr. Lowden on account of the belief that the latter would be one of Mr. Coolidge's rivals for the Republican nomination for President next year.

There is much speculation as to who will be appointed to succeed Mr. Harvey. The impression is that President Coolidge had satisfied himself that Elihu Root would not take the position in any circumstances. Mr. Root is 78 years old, and his health at present is not good.

Mr. Lowden has not formally declared that he is an aspirant for the Presidential nomination, but it is the general understanding that the Republican Party in his State desires to name him as its "favorite son" in the convention.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—A report that President Coolidge has offered to Elihu Root the Ambassadorship to Great Britain is presented appreciatively by the morning newspapers, most of which display Mr. Root's portrait with brief notices recalling his services and lauding his abilities as a statesman and a lawyer.

Mr. Root has a brilliant reputation here and it is evident that his appointment would be highly popular. To the objection that his age might be a drawback, it is replied that Viscount Bryce held the British Ambassadorship at Washington until he was long past 70.

MOSES PROPHESIES FIGHT ON COOLIDGE

BUT COUNTRY IS FRIENDLY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—President Coolidge cannot hope to enter the Republican convention with anything like a majority of the delegates, Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, Chairman of the Republican Senatorial Committee, declared today.

The convention, according to this observer, who has just returned from a tour of the Western States, will develop contests with favorite sons, such as Senator Johnson, Governor Pinchot, ex-Governor Lowden, Senator La Follette and Senator Wadsworth, who together will command more than 350 delegates. Since there will be 1,036 delegates in the next Republican convention, 519 will be necessary to a choice.

The trend in the country visited by Senator Moses, he said, is strongly in favor of President Coolidge. The voters, especially the business men, are decisively in favor of the President because of his silence on controversial questions, which attitude has led to a condition favorable to business. All the Republican leaders, he declared, are inclined to support Coolidge, but this support must be cemented by the record the President makes in Congress. Failure in Congress means his elimination as a real contender for the nomination and a bitter fight among the three or four men now regarded as receptive and potential candidates.

As to Ford sentiment, Senator Moses said no man with open eyes could fail to see that, regardless of party, Henry Ford was the most popular man in the United States.

The movement in Ford's favor for the Presidency, he said, was formidable, yet unorganized. The chances were that he would accept the nomination of the Farmer-Labor Party. Mr. Moses added, and cause the Republican Party much trouble in the election.

Friendly Spirit for Coolidge.

"In the ten States in the West which I visited in my political scouting," said Senator Moses, "I found a friendly spirit for President Coolidge. Nearly all leading Republicans took it for granted that he would be the Republican nominee. Things that he is doing or not doing seem to be what the people want.

"This crystallization of sentiment for Coolidge does not mean Coolidge will enter the convention with a majority or without opposition. I was told in New York that the delegates of that State would be instructed for Senator Wadsworth. I also understand that ex-Governor Lowden has an active campaign in progress under the direction of a skillful manager, asking States to send uninstructed delegates. In Indiana one or two Congressional districts are organizing in favor of Senator Johnson, and Watson sentiment is there also to reckon with.

"There is no doubt that Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania is a candidate, and a most serious one. The other day Governor Dixon of Montana declared him to be a candidate in a speech before the Chamber of Commerce of his State. Pinchot cannot expect to get a solid delegation out of his own State, since Johnson will get some in the western section."

Senator Moses went over the situation in some detail and showed, even though Coolidge should be very strong after Congress got under way, there would be enough delegates for favorite sons to prevent the President entering the convention with a majority of the delegates.

Senator Moses denied statements printed under the name of a special Washington political writer that he had attacked Senator Johnson while in California and advised him to keep out of the Presidential primaries. He said the only authorized utterance he made while in California was that the New England States would be solid for Coolidge.

Tells of Ford Sentiment.

"What about Henry Ford and the third party?" the Senator was asked.

"There are more men for Henry Ford whole-heartedly than for any other man

CARDS SWITCHED, IT IS SAID

Earnest Psychic Scholars Decide That the Hand Still Is Quicker Than the Eye.

The Rev. Mrs. Josi K. Stewart, who has been writing it with flowers for the $2,500 prize offered by The Scientific American for real psychic phenomena, will not get that particular prize.

That was made sufficiently clear yesterday when the scientific investigators for the publication disclosed their official report on the five seances of Mrs. Stewart in which they participated. The report accused the Cleveland mystic of actually trying to deceive the world, and it answered Mrs. Stewart's recent request for some cool, scientific gentlemen to explain how she got her spirit writings.

Without so much as a request to omit flowers, the report curtly alleged that Mrs. Stewart got her writing by substituting her own cards, already written in heliotrope and pink, for those supplied by the investigators. A reporter's German overcoat, worth 150,000,000,000 marks, also aided Mrs. Stewart in getting her splendid writings last Tuesday on Mrs. Ned Wayburn's Bayside lawn. The coat and its owner, said the investigators, were unwitting aids.

The announcement that the Cleveland spirit communicant had been guilty of substitution came too late in the day for her to get the news. Early yesterday morning she and her companion, Mrs. Esther Walzer, checked out for Cleveland, their home. When she left, in the opinion of one of the investigators, she was confident that the prize was headed her way. In fact, added the investigator, she appeared to be mentally spending it.

The Verdict of the Jury.

The sentence of the sub-committee which investigated Mrs. Stewart's "phenomena" and took evidence at her five seances was as follows:

"Mrs. Stewart undertook to produce, for The Scientific American investigating committee, independent spirit writings upon cards supplied by the committee. The sub-committee in charge of Mrs. Stewart's sittings finds that she has failed to do this. She has produced writings only on cards brought to the sitting by her and substituted by her for those supplied by the committee.

"The sub-committee therefore rules that Mrs. Stewart has failed to produce any demonstrably genuine psychic phenomena, and that her claim to The Scientific American's award and to the committee's further attention stands vacated."

J. Malcom Bird, Secretary of the sub-committee, added that scientific tests had disclosed that on the first seance five cards were missing when the Rev. Mrs. Stewart left. He added that the investigators believed that Mrs. Stewart took them with her and then shopped around until she got white Indien cards that looked like twins of the ones she took.

The sub-committee, at any rate, ascertained that Mrs. Stewart's five spirit writings appeared on five alien cards. They proved that the cards were strangers by tests that showed them to be heavier, larger and of a different shade of white from the Scientific American cards.

The psychic writer came to this city two weeks ago, prepared to show the committee that she was no fraud. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, when he visited Cleveland, met Mrs. Stewart and after looking through her 500 testimonials told her to have the scientists give her a trial. Sir Arthur did not witness any demonstrations, however.

First Three Attempts Fail.

Arriving here, she made application to the publication and a special subcommittee was organized to try her out. The members were Mr. Bird, Dr. Walter Franklin Prince of the American Society for Psychical Research, Hereward Carrington, Austin C. Lescarboura and several members of the Scientific American staff. On the first three seances, held in the editorial office of the publication in the Woolworth Building, Mrs. Stewart failed to get any writings.

Then, on the fourth, she was taken to Bayside to gratify her desire to be closer to nature. "Etta," her spiritual guardian angel, who, she says, is really a sort of stenographer of the Beyond,

MY OWN REACHES BELMONT

100,000 MAY SEE CONTEST

Cloudy Weather Predicted, With Heavy Track—Betting on International Race Now at Even Money.

Following a day filled with rumors of the wildest kind and many hours of great anxiety on the part of those most closely connected with the contest, the special committee of The Jockey Club announced late yesterday afternoon that the Rancocas Stable's brown colt Zev will meet Benjamin Irish's Papyrus, the English representative, in the $100,000 international race at one mile and a half at Belmont Park this afternoon. The decision was reached after two inspections of Zev in his stable at Belmont Park and a workout by the son of The Finn on the main track, in which he went a half mile in 47 seconds.

The trial and examinations of the Sinclair three-year-old were the result of a condition that had unexpectedly arisen, some inkling of which had leaked out on Thursday. This was a skin affection which first showed last Sunday and which later became so prominent that Zev's owner, Harry F. Sinclair, called it to the attention of the committee of the Jockey Club. The examinations by the committee and veterinarians followed.

The affection with which Zev is troubled is compared to hives in human beings, small swellings under the skin about the size of a fingernail. These are said to disappear when the colt is warmed up in his work. They interfere in no manner with his racing or with his general health. Zev has not gone lame, nor has he gone stale in his work, although rumors to that effect were current wherever racing men gathered yesterday.

Before the committee completed its findings and made the official statement that Zev will race Papyrus it was taken for granted that Zev would not run and that My Own, which was then being rushed to Belmont Park on a special train from the Laurel track in Maryland, would be the American representative. This was published broadcast and further complicated a situation made tense with rumors that My Own's special train had met with an accident at Baltimore and that he had been injured. It was true that the engine drawing the train lost a driving wheel, but there was no injury to Admiral Grayson's colt, nor was he even jarred. He arrived at Belmont Park at 5:22 P. M., was taken off the car at the unloading platform and was quickly taken to quarters reserved for him at Max Hirsch's barn.

When Zev's slight ailment was brought to the attention of the committee of The Jockey Club it was decided to take no chances on his being able to keep his engagement with Papyrus, and Admiral Grayson was asked to have My Own, first substitute to Zev, rushed to Belmont Park to be prepared to run against the Derby winner.

Crowd May Reach 100,000.

Provided the weather is fair this afternoon, the international race is expected to draw to Belmont Park the greatest crowd that has ever attended a race meeting in this country. It has been estimated that 75,000 saw the Kentucky Derby run at Churchill Downs last Spring, but it is believed that pleasant weather will see a crowd of 100,000 storming the gates of the Westchester Racing Association, provision having been made in the infield for an almost unlimited number of spectators. If expectations are fulfilled, the spectators will pay for admission, reserved seats and boxes a sum close to $475,000.

Should rain continue through the afternoon it is not probable that any great crowd will gather in the infield, where there is no protection. The grand stand, however, will be filled to capacity, and it will have room for many thousands. There will be seats and benches there, so that patrons will be able to go out on the lawn during the actual running of the races, being under cover between races.

While the enclosure is practically sold

Says 15,000 Have Bought Bogus Medical Diplomas

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 19.—W. P. Sachs, who, last night, held a conference with Circuit Attorney Sidener in connection with the investigation of traffic in spurious medical diplomas, told the prosecutor he believed that probably 15,000 persons were practicing medicine in the United States under bogus diplomas. The announcement was made by Henry W. McChesney, one of Sachs's lawyers, this afternoon.

Sachs, who was the fourth man sought in connection with the inquiry, voluntarily appeared at Mr. Sidener's office. According to Mr. McChesney, he told Mr. Sidener that not all the fraudulent medical diplomas in existence in the United States were issued by the "ring" of which he was a member, adding that among other such "rings," one operated in California, one in Chicago and one or more in the East.

LLOYD GEORGE TURNS ON FRENCH ATTACHE

RECALLS AID IN THE WAR

Declares in St. Louis That 900,000 British Lives Were Not Sacrificed to Perpetuate Strife.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 19.—A belligerent note, which up to the present has been absent from the public utterances of David Lloyd George before audiences in this country and in Canada as a pleader for universal peace and brotherhood, dominated an address he delivered here this afternoon before a representative gathering of men and women, who attended a luncheon given in his honor by the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce.

With fire flashing in his eye the former British Premier replied in vigorous terms to a thinly veiled attack made upon him in an address delivered in this city yesterday by Colonel Georges Theodule Dumont, pupil of Marshal Foch and Military Attaché of the French Embassy at Washington.

Colonel Dumont came to St. Louis in the course of a tour in which he visited thirty-three States. His speech was delivered at a meeting of the Reserve Officers' Association, and not a few of those who attended that affair appeared in uniform today at the luncheon given to Mr. Lloyd George.

"May the Lord protect us from our friends. Colonel Dumont was quoted in a St. Louis paper as having said. He followed this up with a reminder that "tomorrow you are going to hear from one of our friends."

Mr. Lloyd George produced a clipping in which the remarks of the Frenchman were reported. Vigorously he declared that both he and the party to which he belonged in England were friendly to the French and that personally he had proved through four years of ceaseless labor, during which he had used every gift God gave him, that he was a sincere friend of France.

"I sincerely wish that the gallant officer has not used that pharse," said Mr. Lloyd George after reading the quotation. "I never heard that prayer between 1914 and 1918. But I shall never forget the agonized prayer of the French Ambassador to his friends in England to come to the help of France. We went within twenty-four or forty-eight hours."

Gives Proof of Friendship.

"Why," he proceeded, "900,000 dead from the British Empire are scattered widely through military graveyards all over France and Flanders in evidence of England's friendship for France, and 1,300,000 of our best working men are now eating the bread of charity in England because we went to the aid of France in her hour of agony."

The French attaché, in the course of his address, declared that he had proof that Germany had hoarded resources hidden away so that they could not be applied to reparations.

"It is no use talking like that," said Mr. Lloyd George. "If Germany is capable of paying, she ought to pay—to pay to the limit of her ability. There can be no doubt regarding that on any principle of civilized jurisprudence. But are we going to use bayonets to rip open purses or prod haystacks with sabres to find gold? There are better means of finding out than that."

BERLIN, Oct. 19.—"We herewith definitely and finally discontinue any and all reparation deliveries and any and all reparation payments to France, and are fully conscious of the consequences—that this measure, dictated to us by utmost extremity, probably will signify a break with France." This is the keynote of Chancellor Stresemann's foreign policy contained in a confidential statement to the German press conference.

"Only recently did the supporters of the Extreme Right demand a break with France and reproached the Chancellor with lack of courage when he declined to break at the time," the Chancellor continued. "The Chancellor knew full well the reasons why he had to postpone the time for an open break with France. A break with France three weeks ago would have meant that we would have acted prematurely by anticipating the entire development since the discontinuance of passive resistance and that thereby we would have relieved the French Premier of the blame of responsibility for the break. Though we could assume in advance that an understanding with France was out of the question, the rest of the world would not have believed us in view of Poincaré's declarations.

"Now we have forced Poincaré to show his true colors. Now all the world knows, the rest of the Allies know, that France's objective is not reparations, is not understanding, but annihilation of the German Reich. Now the rest of the Allies must show their colors, whether they too approve of this objective of France, and whether they support it, whether actively or passively, is indifferent.

Payment to Other Allies to End Also.

"The rest of the Allies will all the sooner have an opportunity to show their true attitude toward Germany and toward the peace idea, since Germany soon will be compelled to discontinue reparation performances to those Allies, too, who have hitherto continued to receive reparation deliveries.

"This whole development, which can only work out in our favor, the Reich's Government would have lost out on if it had unwisely given way to demands of the German Nationalists for a break with France three weeks ago. Whether we will gain more now in the rest of the world than if we had broken off relations with France at the end of September is a question that cannot be answered here now. World history will answer it.

"But one thing is certain. The Reich's Government will make no new 'confession of guilt,' will sign no new dictate of unfulfillable conditions. One can practice every kind of pressure and blackmail against us, but cannot expect us to plunge ourselves with open eyes into the abyss. The Government will keep its eyes open."

In the beginning of his statement the Chancellor had explained the position as follows:

"What would remain for us if at this time, too, we should fulfill France's will? We would have to finance back payment of the coal tax and thereby de facto recognize as legal the illegal Ruhr occupation. That would be a new confession of guilt on Germany's part which the present Government can never subscribe to.

"Further, we would have to fulfill all Poincaré's present and future wishes relative to supporting the French administration of railroads. The French would select our best locomotives and rolling stock, leave us the worst material for the rest of Germany, and after we had strained ourselves to succeed in getting the French administration railroads running again, our Reichsbahn railroad officials would get a swift kick from the French as a reward. For the French not only refuse to let the German authorities co-operate in the administration, but on the contrary demand far-going extensions of French power, including surrender of the last line to Holland still in our hands, the Wesel-Emmerich line, and control over the Frankfort-Darmstadt and other important lines.

German Sovereignty Threatened.

"What then would remain of German sovereignty over the Ruhr and Rhineland if the German Reich now capitulated before France? We would enjoy the privilege and right of raising all coats for the Ruhr, paying the coal tax to the French and make reparation coal deliveries as much as Poincaré wills, and the French would have the right to requisition as much as they pleased. No! No one can seriously suppose that the German Government bearing the name of Chancellor Stresemann would accept such conditions.

"The Chancellor has the whole time endeavored to come to honorable negotiations with France despite the face of things willfied from many sides, even having his personal honor besmirched. The Chancellor did not do this because he harbored optimism relative to Poincaré's attitude, but so as to try to spare the German fellow-citizens of the Rhine and Ruhr heavy suffering which still will break over them after passive resistance is discontinued and no more support or relief can be paid for and work cannot be resumed. For this reason the Chancellor went to the extreme limit in concessions to the enemy.

"Responsibility for the unhappiness in the Ruhr rests sharply and squarely on the French Premier, who again and again

Distillers Put Britain on Whisky Rations So Long as Americans Pay Higher Prices

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Whisky drinkers of Britain are being told point-blank by some of the best distillers that as long as American bootleggers are willing to pay higher prices for their products the home consumers must continue to face occasional shortages in their favorite brands.

One of the most famous Scotch distilleries recently ran a full-page advertisement in some of the weekly magazines saying that only 15 per cent. of its stocks could go to home consumers.

"So long as American and other export markets are willing to pay extra for quality we must prefer to sell for exportation," the advertisement said.

Commended by English newspapers as more tactful is the outgiving of his Majesty's Trade Commissioner, who wrote in a recent issue of the Board of Trade Journal:

"Bermuda and the Bahamas are enjoying exceptional prosperity at present owing to their tourist traffic and other resultants from proximity to the United States."

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—A red outfit never should be worn on a "date night," as a red dress, or too much red in the sitting room, will bring about a quarrel, the Young Women's Christian Association offers as a hint in its course on etiquette for business girls.

To avoid disastrous "date nights" and the dangerous atmosphere of too much red, which irritates eligible young men, the sponsors of "etiquette" suggest that blue has a soothing effect on a young man, "and leads him on" in a nice way. Blue, the sponsors say, is disarming, and girls in blue seem to have nicer dispositions than those dressed in red or green.

While green is pleasant, men are instinctively a little wary of the girl who wears it. It is a danger signal, warning him of mercenary ideas in the head of the girl wearing that color.

Brown, while pretty and modest, does not call out the protective instincts of the male. He thinks a girl dressed in brown is practical and quits able to take care of herself. Brown, say the sponsors, never courts a proposal. The girls are also advised to wear little jewelry or other ornaments, as too much jewelry leads the man to think the girl is extravagant and frequently halts a proposal.

There also are hints as to the arrangements of the furniture in the sitting room. Stiff-backed chairs and huge family portraits are not conducive to proposals.

Advice is given as to holding hands, proper osculation, the proper way to set a table, when to use forks and when fingers, conduct in motion pictures theatres and many other points. The course is free and open to all girls under 20 years of age employed in downtown offices.

has rejected the proffered hand, even after the preliminary condition of cessation of passive resistance had been fulfilled."

Stresemann forecasts brutal reform measures as the third argument against Poincaré.

"The disproportion between income and outgo makes it a matter of course that the Government must proceed to cut down expenditures. In the next days savings measures of the Government will be made public which in rigorousness will place everything hitherto in the shade. When one learns that only 8 per cent. of the State's expenditures are covered by taxes and 97 per cent. remnant is 'raised' by note presses, one must see that we area bankrupt country. The Reich's financial needs can't be mastered by petty measures. The evil must be tackled at the root. It isn't bearable that in diminished Germany the number of officials not only is not reduced, but even increased beyond all common sense. The Reich Government therefore has the firm intention radically to down the army of officials and the Chancellor is determined to leave not even well grounded rights of officialdom untouched. Superfluous officials will be dismissed on an enormous scale, not only officials o f the Reich, but of Federal States and communities.

"If the Reich to such a great extent throws citizens of its own country out on the street, citizens who have directly or indirectly performed valuable services to the State, and does this merely to cut down expenditures, how in foreseeable time should the Reich be in the position to make reparation payments? If in view of the impending brutal but inevitable measures to cut down the army of officials and civil servants we should agree to make payments to France, we should be pursuing a policy for which no one in Germany would have understanding.

A long official communiqué today covering the conversations between the German Charge von Hoesch and Premier Poincaré contains an unveiled threat of catastrophic consequences if France declines to enter into Ruhr negotiations with Germany and is evidently designed to prepare German public opinion for trouble in the Ruhr, at the same time trying to saddle the blame on Poincaré well in advance. The "critical 20th" of October is particularly the feature, when cash credits and even food help for the Ruhr cease so far as the Stresemann Government is concerned unless it again changes its mind. The official communique advances this argument:

"The French Premier was advised in detail that Germany at present is unable on its part to finance reparation coal or coke deliveries to France and Belgium and in this connection were pointed out the extraordinary dangerous consequences if the coal mines resume work but are forced to shut down again after a few days owing to lack of money. After the Ruhr relief payments are discontinued by the Reich, Ruhr conditions will suddenly become acute in that 550,000 miners with their families will face famine, owing to no means of support, in addition to millions of workers and employes in other industries whose occupation depends on normal operation of the mines.

"The German Government clearly sees this inevitable development but is powerless in the face of it if France declines to reach an agreement."

Chancellor Stresemann's mouthpiece, Die Zeit, says:

"The French Premier's policy seeks to exclude the German Government from all say in the Rhine and Ruhr and at the same time to place on the German Government financial and material burdens arising from resumption of economic activities. Politically this is utterly unbearable, but materially, too, it is an utter impossibility. The German Government is under no circumstances in position to assume financial obligations connected with resumption of production in the Ruhr, let alone with resumption of reparation deliveries. The German Government will oppose an unequivocal no, since under our present financial conditions it is utterly impossible to do more than is absolutely necessary for self preservation of the German people.

The inspired Democratic Tageblatt says:

"Let no one deceive himself about the critical situation beginning on Saturday created by Poincaré's answer. The Ruhr workers are willing to work, but who will pay their wages?"

Press Predicts Break With France.

BERLIN, Oct. 19 (Associated Press).—Inspired statements appearing in a section of the press would seem to indicate that the Stresemann Government has decided to default on future reparation payments and deliveries in kind unless Germany is placed fully in the position by the occupying powers to resume her administrative authority in the Ruhr and Rhineland in connection with the task of getting the mines, the steel plants and the railways started.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—A Reuter dispatch from Berlin says the negative of M. Poincaré to all of Germany's suggestions for a solution of the Ruhr problem has caused a feeling of despair, even in radical ranks, which hitherto had pinned their faith on an agreement being reached with France.

This despair, the dispatch continues, finds expression in articles in The Boersen Courier and Vorwärts, the former remarking that M. Poincaré at last has been compelled to show his colors and let the world know that France's aim is not reparations or an agreement, but the destruction of the German Reich, and now the other Allies must show whether they support this French aim actively or passively.

The Boersen Courier adds that the power sooner or later will do this and show their true colors toward Germany, as Germany shortly will be compelled to discontinue all reparation deliveries.

"We thus definitely will cease all deliveries to France, fully conscious that this probably will lead to a breach with France," the newspaper declares.

Vorwärts says the conviction has increased that M. Poincaré is striving with terrifying cold-bloodedness for the destruction of the Reich and the existence of millions of proletarian workers.

Chancellor Stresemann's organ, Die Zeit, in a similar article, complains that the British Allied statesmen appear to have completely forgotten that they have international obligations.

"The way out of the vicious circle," this newspaper adds, "is in the hands of France alone. For us there is no possibility of being our own victors, but woe to the tyrant, who will be followed by the curse of a crushed and starving people."

Paris Is Warned of Break.

PARIS, Oct. 19.—Persistent reports that Germany intends to announce a rupture of all relations with France until Premier Poincaré agrees to negotiate with the Berlin Government on the question of the Ruhr as well as on the problem of reparations was prevalent today.

Simultaneously came an announcement from Berlin that Chancellor Stresemann is preparing a lengthy memorandum, which will be addressed to the Reparation Commission and the United States, outlining Germany's industrial, economic and financial situation and stressing the fact that the Berlin Government is not able to continue payments of or to make deliveries of materials in kind and at the same time reorganize its currency and create worthless paper.

Persistent rumors are also current that Belgium is preparing to issue a pronouncement on the Ruhr and reparations question which will reveal an open split on the French viewpoint unless Premier Poincaré in the meantime alters his attitude and consents to pourparlers for a settlement of the affair.

The exchanges wabbled disquietingly as a result of various disquieting reports and the semi-official Temps tonight seems to be preparing the public for startling developments, mentioning the possibility of a rupture in a leading article.

The editorial concludes with a strong argument endeavoring to prove that France is not responsible for such developments as the famine and typhus epidemic in Germany, but it is the fault of the German Government in failing to accede to M. Poincaré's demands and taking proper precautions to save the situation.

It is learned that Herr von Hoesch, the German Charge d'Affaires at Paris, has received a hint that if Germany agrees to reimburse providers of coal, coke and other material delivered to the French on the reparations account for free a way may be devised to place the problem before the Reparation Commission and favorable action might be taken in a reply to Herr Stresemann's request for amelioration of the terms in kind.

The Charge d'Affaires transmitted the intimation to Herr Stresemann, but it is rumored here that the British, confident of weaning away the Belgians from the French, urged the German Government to stand pat on the declaration that it cannot pay and that world opinion will force M. Poincaré to recede from his demands.

BRITISH MEMBER APPROVES

Note Calling On Germany to Resume Deliveries Will Give Her a Chance to Reply.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

PARIS, Oct. 19.—The Reparation Commission today approved the demands upon Germany by France, Belgium and Italy for immediate delivery of various categories of materials which come under the general heading of deliveries in kind. Sir John Bradbury, the British member, voted for these orders which tonight were addressed to the War Burdens Commission in Germany.

Thus Germany's refusal to pay for deliveries in kind now puts her in opposition to all the Allies, whereas before today's action by the Reparation Commission she was defying only France and Belgium who occupy the Ruhr. This action by the commission is similar to the routine followed before the occupation of the Ruhr, when Germany was making current deliveries on account of reparations in kind.

This afternoon's action was taken at the behest of Premier Poincaré, who beyond doubt seeks to obtain additional legal support for his demand that payments in kind be resumed. But the opinion is expressed here tonight in other than French quarters that the move may have the effect of opening the door of the Reparation Commission to the Germans despite Poincaré's ruling she could not enter until passive resistance ended, by which he means payments in kind resumed.

If Germany replies to today's note the Reparation Commission will request her to explain why she cannot fulfill its demands, and it may be expected that Bradbury will ask that she be heard. If it follows that the Reparation Commission, including England, is drawn toward a discussion of Ruhr results, it may be interesting and not at all what Poincaré sought.

In the meanwhile there is real danger of the Ruhr situation becoming very ugly indeed. There begins to be room for fear Stresemann may play a gruesome game in the Ruhr by pitting the hunger of several million workers against the occupying authorities. One by one the Ruhr factories are cutting off workers who daily swell the ranks of the unemployed which, because of the end of the Ruhr relief, may soon become hungry. Berlin continues to refuse to pay for finance Ruhr production payments in kind without which the industrials threaten to shut down. If Stresemann plays the hunger card it is impossible to say who will be finally favored, whether what the French may be able to do to help the workers, or not make them more solid in the Ruhr, or whether the workers will believe Berlin, that the French are all to blame for their plight, and thus become more resentful. But one thing is sure, there will be created a most nasty situation.

Officially Paris holds the Germans are just trying one more bluff and will back down before giving Communism and anarchy a chance to make headway in the Ruhr. Private opinion is more cautious than Poincaré desires the red flag in the Ruhr with the sabotage of factories which would follow. Other observers are less sure Stresemann is bluffing and believe Stresemann is engineering a political situation in Germany which will cause the withdrawal from the Government of the socialists and leave the path clear for the Nationalists.

In any event, it is perfectly apparent neither Poincaré nor Stresemann is in a hurry to begin general reparation negotiations, each seeming to believe time will work to his advantage. Without the danger of Ruhr disorders Poincaré would appear to be right. The element of danger in the situation in the Ruhr evidently increases the possibility of complications for Poincaré.

Today's action by the Reparation Commission offers the possibility of a way out of the impasse. That possibility lies in an offer by Stresemann to the commission to do his best to meet the terms and demands of the commission voiced this afternoon. Perhaps Bradbury had that card up his sleeve when he voted.

German Interest in French Elections.

PARIS, Oct. 19 (Associated Press).—There is a growing conviction in diplomatic and political circles here that the German Government is manoeuvring in an attempt to hold off any definite agreement regarding the payment of reparation until after the French general elections next Spring. Berlin is declared in these circles to have political agents in France in touch with the leaders of the opposition parties which are forming a coalition to fight the Government majority in the Chamber of Deputies.

This new combination, comprising the Radicals, Republican-Socialists and Socialists, hopes to regain control of Parliament, in which case Germany might count on less vigorous if not more rigorous treatment from France. A victory for this coalition would mean the immediate departure of Poincaré, to be succeeded by Herriot or Painlevé, neither of whom is credited with the vigor and tenacity of the present Premier.

A high official of the Foreign Office, commenting on the communique given out in Berlin yesterday regarding the German Charge d'Affaires' latest visit to Poincaré, said today that the diplomatic action of Germany is directed solely to the object of throwing upon France the responsibility for any trouble that may develop in the Ruhr or Rhineland in consequences of the financial collapse of Germany.

The German tactics, he added, are to make it appear to the world, as far as possible, that Poincaré is brutally repelling every overture made by the Berlin Government toward a settlement, and is acting at the same time to make sure such proposition as could be accepted by Germany's chief creditor.

"Any act whatever on the part of Berlin giving evidence of good faith," he declared, "will be received in a conciliatory spirit by France, but France cannot weaken her position one whit before that act is accomplished, because if she did it would encourage German resistance."

SAYS GERMANY CANNOT PAY.

London Times Fears Ruhr and Rhineland May Be Protectorates.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—In an editorial article on Poincaré's refusal to negotiate with the German Government The London Times says:

"For months past the French Government have declared they would on no account negotiate with the German Government until passive resistance had ceased. The condition has been fulfilled, yet M. Poincaré still refuses to negotiate. His argument now is that resistance has not ceased because the German Government refuse to finance reparations in kind. The demands of Germany in somewhat vague terms the restoration of conditions that prevailed before the Ruhr was occupied.

"The situation is very grave and it is impossible to conceal it in the hope of merely tactical manoeuvres. The German Reich cannot for a moment finance reparation deliveries in kind or in anything else. It has not even discovered how to feed its own population. It is making an effort to introduce a stable currency. It is groping its way toward the only possible basis of a stable currency in a belated and desperate effort to reduce expenditure and to balance the budget. To demand any kind of payments from Germany at this moment is to defy common sense and to gamble on the impossible.

"What is immediately necessary is to determine the exact situation in the Ruhr. On this point there appears to exist in France a curious uncertainty. At any rate, Poincaré's rejection of the German request for a businesslike discussion requires some further explanation. Mere postponement, mere delay, can only have the effect of burdening France with full responsibility for all that may happen in the Ruhr. The complete exclusion of the German Government from the Ruhr and Rhineland means the complete exclusion of German responsibility from that region. If the Ruhr is ultimately to play any part in reparations, the German Government must be admitted to an exercise of authority there. If it is not admitted, the Ruhr and Rhineland will inevitably drift into the position into which Bosnia and Herzegovina fell under the Austrian protectorate. Then what of reparations?"

BELGIUM URGES HASTE.

Government Is Under Fire for Its Reparations Policy.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 19 (Associated Press).—Belgium is insisting upon the Reparation Commission examining her plan chiefly because she desires to be paid so as to overcome the financial and economic troubles which are her present chief concerns, according to statements made in authoritative quarters tonight.

Belgian officials say that Italy approves the Belgian plan unreservedly, while the British offer objections only as to its form, but that France had adopted a waiting attitude without showing any enthusiasm for the project. France, it is recognized, attaches capital importance to the political and military phases of the problem, while Belgium, Great Britain and Italy are interested chiefly in the financial and economic results.

This divergence in views and aims necessarily causes difference of opinion on the tactics to be followed. Unless progress is made toward a settlement by the time Parliament assembles, Government circles expect a strong attack by the Opposition and in any case an important debate on the country's relations with its allies and the situation in Germany. The Socialist and Flemish Deputies, it is feared, may insist upon the Government's assuming an attitude based solely on Belgium's interests without regard for her French and British allies.

The Belgians hope that France will support their plan, for this would help avert the threatened crisis and would quiet those who charge that France is not seeking to solve the problem, but prefers the dismemberment of Germany and political chaos there as of indirect benefit to her.

STOCK BROKERS STRIKE ON THE BERLIN BOERSE

Refuse to Begin Trading Until Old Law Is Changed in Their Favor.

By CYRIL BROWN.

BERLIN, Oct. 19.—The Boerse this morning enjoyed a sensation unprecedented in its whole history. The so-called "Vereidigte Makler," the sworn public brokers, went on strike and refused even to begin determining the first official quotations. This was the result of the failure of the banking firm of Zeiler, Hoffmann & Co., who unwisely speculated on the fall of the dollar, the mark rise simultaneously bearing the stock market.

The Boerse's Executive Committee tried to make the brokers responsible for execution of the shortest term speculative orders, the Boerse having been running into the quadrillions of marks. Under the antiquated system, these brokers had to book orders of Boerse members blindly without being able to satisfy themselves as to the financial solvency. Hence they refused to assume the obligations.

For a time it seemed as if the Boerse might be forced to close, but a compromise finally was reached after 1 o'clock this afternoon whereby the brokers in future are to be able to discriminate and satisfy themselves as to the status of Boerse members placing orders.

General nervousness was engendered by reports that more than a dozen, mostly smaller, banking firms were insolvent, and a list of suspect bankrupts was drawn up and circulated. Their orders were refused until they had appeared before the Boerse committee and managed to clear themselves.

It was symptomatic of a novel panic on the Boerse. Knocked down by New York's closing quotations of 10,000,000,000 marks to the dollar, the rate was officially fixed at 12,000,000,000 to the dollar, touched 13,000,000,000 during the afternoon, then rallied around 11,000,000,000 tonight. The Boerse firms today subscribed $10,000 toward public mass feeding in Greater Berlin. Berlin's brewery trust, the Schultheiss-Patzenhofer-Kahlbaum concern, subscribed 1,000,000,000 marks. Some one hundred public mass feeding stations are now in operation in Berlin. Food may be eaten on the premises or taken home, a quart portion costing 11,000,000 marks today, which is easily the biggest bargain in town.

CRITICIZES RUHR POLICY.

Two French Radical Parties Adopt Herriot's Principles.

PARIS, Oct. 19 (Associated Press).—"France, first of all." Thus Edouard Herriot, one of the radical Socialist leaders, today at the Congress of Radical Socialist and Radical Parties summed up what he declared must be the opposition's foreign policy in Parliament.

"If the Ruhr affair has failed," said M. Herriot, "we should not have had the right to rejoice. We ought to sacrifice our means for in having been right to the setback suffered by the country. We may believe that even a victorious people ought to have some consideration for the vanquished; that the healthy elements of the German democracy ought to have been supported, ought to have been told that we have no hate for them; and, instead of making them a starving mass of people in bondage, we ought to have dissociated them from German capitalism. This was not done and German capitalism remains all-powerful. And if we should pronounce against the occupation of the Ruhr, German capitalism will say we are strengthening the Chancellor's patience in playing for time.

"There is a party in France which may again be in the majority and which demands that the question be referred to the League of Nations. This is impossible, unimaginable. If the Ruhr operation fails nobody must be able to say that it was through our fault."

Henry Franklin-Bouillon, the radical leader, supported M. Herriot. He said he always had been strongly against the Versailles treaty, but however bad it might be it must not be torn up. It was the only thing remaining to France, and it would be madness to send the reparations question to the League of Nations.

A motion embodying the principles offered by M. Herriot was adopted practically unanimously.

Creation of a New Government Under Full French Control Considered a Possibility.

DUESSELDORF, Oct. 19.—The next few days, according to both French and German opinion, may bring events which must influence the whole future history of Europe. Suspicion is rapidly spreading that the Berlin Government intends to abandon the Ruhr to its fate, withdrawing not only material but moral support, thus placing both France and her own great western provinces before an entirely new problem.

The first step toward this will be, it is expected, the failure tomorrow to pay the final week's salary to the passive resistance strikers. When Berlin abandoned resistance the workers were promised the last payment on Oct. 20. From then onward the industrialists must make their own arrangements. Now it appears funds are not forthcoming from Berlin.

The economic problem arising is clear, but the political results, although less violent, may well eclipse all else. The Industrialists will be left with the alternative to allow the workers to starve or abandon all their vast mining and other properties to destruction or find means to pay wages, in part at least, until the return to normalcy of the railroads permits a return to production and employment.

But one fact appears certain, according to both German and French economists, namely, that it is utterly impossible without assistance from Berlin to continue the steadily growing flow of depreciated marks into the workers' pockets. Indeed, it is even doubtful whether it would be possible with the assistance of Berlin. Therefore the only solution would appear to be a new currency for Western Germany guaranteed on the country rich in mines, forests, railroads and other productive State properties. But that could only be done by drawing what would virtually be a political frontier between occupied and unoccupied Germany. The Prussian administration would then cease to exist, there being nothing further to administer and the whole army of State officials would logically be obliged to depart elsewhere or accept employment under the new administration, which could hardly be anything but French, at any rate Franco-Belgian.

The precedent of the Sarre cannot be invoked. The Sarre, created under the Versailles Peace Treaty, is administered nominally by the League of Nations Commission. Westphalia and Rhineland position would be entirely different, the French remaining absolute masters, unless England adapts her policy to this and decides to sally forth from the island she has created for herself in the centre of the occupied territory.

The British High Commissioner, Lord Kilmarnock, has hurried to London, and I understand important conferences are imminent regarding the newly created situation.

The French hope they still will be able to persuade England to change her attitude, especially in view of the fresh technical difficulties created with regard to the railroads. If, as generally expected now, these are taken away the French would prefer occupation by all, including English membership. Of that, conversations with all the leading Frenchmen can leave no doubt.

The German position seems to be desperate. Instead of allowing for the possible failure of passive resistance and making alternative plans of retreat the Germans went on blindly until the very last moment and today the Ruhr is thereby precipitated into a state of almost indescribable chaos.

But it must not be concluded the situation is by any means hopeless. The French contain convictions the German industrialists will finally come to a settlement simply because they cannot afford to allow their own properties to be utterly wrecked and loot.

The continuance of conversations with Stinnes and others is proof of this. The Ruhr industrialists say they cannot deliver reparations coal or pay the coal tax of 40 per cent. The French reply they do not intend to ask the impossible and will therefore wait until the industrialists can pay the tax and deliver coal. There may finally be a compromise, for the French are willing to do everything possible to assist the resumption of work.

Confer on Relief Measures.

ESSEN, Oct. 19 (Associated Press).—The situation in the Ruhr, especially so far as the workmen are concerned, took a turn for the worse today because complications have arisen between the employers and the trade unionists, the entire difficulty growing out of the troubles of the industrialists in getting affairs back upon a paying basis.

Beginning next week, it was announced, Berlin would discontinue sending funds into the Ruhr, which for months have been the sole support of hundreds of workmen's families. The employers asserted that strenuous measures must be taken to prevent the wholesale shutting down of industry which would result in many thousands being added to the unemployed lists, now larger than at any time since the occupation began. Industrialists and employers in Essen, Dusseldorf, Dortmund and other centres conferred with the municipal authorities and promised to aid the municipalities in every way possible to care for the unemployed. The Industrialists took a most serious view of the situation, fearing great distress among the workmen's families now that the cold weather is coming. The Krupps alone, it was said, would be compelled to release most of their men. This alone would add 35,000 to the unemployed.

Full restoration of the Ruhr and Rhineland railroad properties, including all rolling stock as it was on Jan. 10, is demanded by the French, it was announced today, the cost to be borne by the Reich. According to notification received by German officials under new arrangements, operations will be carried on with German trainmen, all high posts resting in the hand of French officials, who will have absolute command of the entire lines, with the exception of the Cologne British Zone.

The following official statement has been issued:

"It has been asserted in French quarters that the German Minister of Communications recognized the French regime and handed over the German railways to its control. This assertion is no way corresponds with the facts. When the Minister of Communications instructed the railmen to report for duty with the French he emphasized in the name of the Reich Government that the régie could only be regarded as a temporary administration and that the lasting service in the régie did not affect the rights of the Reich to the occupied railway lines."

New Currency for Duesseldorf.

DUESSELDORF, Oct. 19 (Associated Press).—New currency, backed by public utilities, which will replace the paper marks in general circulation, has been decided upon for the Duesseldorf district by the newly formed Economic Council, which is composed of twelve Germans and five French representatives. This council, which hereafter will have executive powers in economic affairs of the city, will meet tomorrow to discuss the details of the currency.

The council is composed of representatives of the City Council, trades unions, the Employers' Association, the Chamber of Commerce and transportation interests. The Frenchmen represent the Control Commission.

TELLS BRITISH PLAN FOR HUGE AIR LINERS

Air Minister Says Contract Is Decided On for Indian and Australian Service.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Steady progress in air transit was described today by Sir Samuel Hoare, Minister of Air, to the Imperial Economic Conference. He emphasized in particular the intention of the British Government to conclude a contract for an airship service to Egypt and India under the scheme drawn up by Commander Burney, and informed the Dominion representatives that their co-operation would be welcomed if they desired to offer it.

Airship development, Sir Samuel explained, had been suspended by the British Government since August of 1921, and it had now only a few military airships left over from the war, stored in their hangars. But the Government realizes the time has come to take up airship work on commercial lines. Commander Burney in his scheme will proceed by three stages. First, he will produce an airship able to reach India in 100 flying hours, and will experiment with that between England and Egypt; secondly, he will establish a weekly service to India, and, thirdly, he will make the service bi-weekly later and keep six ships of 5,000,000 cubic feet actually in commission.

Even if a service is established only as far as Egypt it will mean a considerable saving in time in the carriage of mails and passengers between London and Australia. London to Cairo would be cut in half, it is reckoned, in two instead of from three and half to six days, and when the service is extended to India the present fourteen and a half days will be cut down to five.

As for Australia, London to Perth now takes twenty-seven days, but by airship only eleven days would be needed.

Sir Samuel added that unexpected difficulties might develop, but he pointed out that two of the most serious problems had been overcome by the invention of mooring masts and discovery of a method of placing an envelope of inert gas around an ordinarily inflammable gas.

He also called attention to advances which have been made in France and America. A comparatively small airship flew 4,000 miles in France, he said, without descending, and experiments on a larger scale were being made in America, while the Zeppelin Company was building in America a very large airship, capable of flying across the Atlantic.

As for airplanes, Sir Samuel explained that the British Government was confident of being able shortly to establish on the small private airplane companies of the country into one large concern, with resources capable of developing flights on boat principles. Experiments in the carriage of mails by airplanes from Plymouth to Manchester, he said, had been successful and would result in saving thirteen and a half hours as far as Manchester was concerned, and nineteen and a half to Belfast.

But the Air Minister admitted that he could find no money to carry out all that the experiments showed was desired, although he has managed to provide money for building an experimental civil airplane better fitted for peace-time work than the military types. As it is, with military machines, a regular service has been kept up between Cairo and Bagdad, a disance of 805 miles, 65 out of 80 journeys being completed successfully.

The Air Chief Marshal's service has steadily increased in efficiency. The number of passengers carried in 1920 was 4,400; in 1921 there were 7,900, in 1922 the number was 8,200, and in 1923 it rose to 15,000. Moreover, there has been no serious accident to either passengers or staff in the 2,000,000 miles flown in thirty-two months.

Canadian Premier for Firm Autonomy.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Consideration of Great Britain's foreign relations was resumed this morning, when the Imperial Conference reassembled. Premier Baldwin presided. Statements were made by the Earl of Derby, Secretary of War, and Sir Samuel Hoare, Air Minister.

A general discussion followed regarding Imperial Conference matters. The session, like the previous ones, was held in secret.

Premier Mackenzie King of Canada, speaking at a Canadian club dinner given in his honor last night, referred to the empire as a community of nations in which each should have free opportunity to express its own national life. The greater this freedom, he said, the greater would be the confidence and pride of the various States in the empire as a whole.

Referring to the halibut fisheries treaty between the United States and Canada, Premier Mackenzie King argued that the agreement was of concern only to these two countries and that in having it signed by the Canadian Minister of Fisheries there had not been the slightest intention to show any discourtesy to the British Ambassador at Washington. He then continued:

"We feel that in all domestic affairs are concerned we have full right to self-government. We feel that in regard to matters of trade and tariff we have the right to negotiate with our neighbors or with any country. It did not take away from the position of the British Crown that a Canadian Minister should have authority from the Crown to sign with a plenipotentiary power on a matter that related exclusively to his own country."

Where, however, other parts of the empire were concerned, Mr. King agreed that no one unit should take any steps without the full concurrence and consent of the others. When a question of high politics was involved, he said, it would be adding to the prestige of the empire to see that the signature was representative of the empire as a whole.

LITHUANIA MOBILIZES.

Guards Frontier in Fear of German Rising and Russian Intervention.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

RIGA, Oct. 19.—Russia is mobilising, Lithuania is concentrating troops and other Baltic States are preparing to mass soldiers on the frontiers awaiting the outcome of the situation in Germany which is expected to develop into a civil war, of monarchists fighting the Communists.

Lithuania's mobilisation orders, which are published in Kovno, Memel and other cities, resulted in great anxiety in diplomatic circles. Lithuanian officials declare they are not preparing for war, but must be ready to resist any surprise, in case the Reds rise in Germany it is feared Moscow may send an ultimatum demanding passage for a Bolshevist army through Lithuania into Germany, just as Soviet Russia insisted on passage through Belgium into France in 1914.

FIVE PLANTS CURTAIL WORK.

Depression Affects Mills in Providence Fitchburg and Clinton.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 19.—The plant of the Brown & Sharpe Manufacturing Company, employing normally over 5,000 persons, will go on a forty-hour week schedule, beginning next Monday, for an indefinite period. The curtailment is due to "the depression in business," according to notices posted at the plant this morning.

FITCHBURG, Mass., Oct. 19.—The Star Worsted Mill will be operated four days a week until orders increase, it was announced today. Some departments of the Arden and Boell Mills of the American Woolen Company are also running on short time.

CLINTON, Mass., Oct. 19.—Notices were posted today in the Lancaster Mills here that the Cameron Street plant of 800 looms, with 150 operatives, will be closed tomorrow for an indefinite period. The condition of the staple gingham market is given as the reason.

commission of financial and economic experts, with the United States represented on it, to inquire into Germany's ability to pay reparations.

"What possible objection can there be to this?" he asked. "The United States is the friend of France and showed it in 1917. In the matter of reparations the United States is impartial. There can be no doubt regarding that.

"When such a commission had completed its investigation it would show Germany's capability to pay reasonably interpreted, but not to pay more than her capability to pay. If it is going to involve the starving of her children and the killing of her old men.

Throughout his speech, delivered before an audience in which the German element was strongly represented, Mr. Lloyd George again declared that he was no apologist for Germany. Such utterances generally were received with applause. His first mention of the name of Secretary Hughes was applauded, although Mr. Lodge has become known as a centre of American resentment against "foreign entanglements." President Harding's address on the World Court, delivered here only a few months ago, did not fall on friendly ears, and as far as can be gathered here has been no change in the attitude toward American participation in European affairs.

Mr. Lloyd George declared that unless counsels of moderation are applied in the reparations settlement, "it requires no conclusive argument now to convince our mind, including future wars," would ensue and that this country undoubtedly would be dragged in, as was the case in 1917.

And "mother," he added, "it is the gentlemen in the uniform of a great nation to carry out the divine mandate of 1900 years ago, of peace on earth and good-will to men."

MR. LLOYD GEORGE'S SPEECH.

Mr. Lloyd George said:

"Mr. Mayor, Mr. Toastmaster and citizens of St. Louis: It is indeed a gratification to me and to those who have accompanied me on this journey to be received so warmly by so representative and influential a gathering of the citizens of your great and famous city. We have received nothing but kindness since we came on this side of the Atlantic, so much so that were it not for the restrictions of the immigration laws I think we might contemplate settling. [Laughter and applause.]

"At Minneapolis I think, first made the acquaintance of your great river, a comparatively small thing there, but it has grown in strength, dimensions, dignity and volume and power, in order to make ready for St. Louis. [Applause.] Further on, I believe, another of your great rivers comes in, and they mingle their waters, and together they help to carry your commerce, your trade, your burdens and your joys, to the end of the journey. I wish to heaven international currents would do the same thing! [Applause.]

"I come from a Continent where these international currents refuse to combine, refuse to blend, and when they come together, they are apt to dash into each other and to create broken waters and cataracts that upset navigation and make it impossible, and which make people avoid trusting their lives and their argosies to their charge. One of the problems of Europe is the problem which the Missouri and the Mississippi have settled for themselves.

"When I came over to this side of the Atlantic, I came with the sincere and, as I thought, the inflexible determination not to make speeches. [Laughter.] But you soon

TO ARREST MORE IN GREAT BEER PLOT

Senator Edwards Amazed by Arrest of Former Secretary—Lawyer Describes His Own Arrest.

More arrests in the alleged $800,000 beer bribery plot by which New Jersey brewers hoped to block shipments from Pennsylvania and at the same time gain "safe conduct" for their own shipments to New York, are expected after Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty receives the report forwarded to him yesterday by United States Attorney William M. Hayward. The report of Colonel Hayward gives to the Attorney General names and details of the alleged plot, which were not disclosed when eleven of the alleged ringleaders were arrested on Thursday afternoon.

Colonel Hayward also suggested that an immediate investigation of conditions in New Jersey be started. He said that $85,400 in alleged bribes paid by the New Jersey bootleg ring to Federal agents had been placed in a safety vault. The money is in marked bills of all denominations.

Search of the premises at 289 West Street will be made immediately for liquor alleged to have been removed there illegally following the payment of a $5,000 bribe to Prohibition Agent Henry N. Greenfield, one of the eleven defendants in the bribe case. Search warrants were issued yesterday by United States Commissioner Samuel M. Hitchcock at the request of Assistant United States Attorney Maxwell S. Mattuck, who submitted two affidavits.

Tells of $5,000 Bribe.

One, covering 289 West Street, was made by Special Revenue Agent Earle R. Barnard. In it Barnard said that on Oct. 11 he and Greenfield went to 290 West Street, having with them a search warrant to search the premises for liquors. The affidavit continues:

"Your deponent was at that time engaged in the investigation of violations of the National Prohibition act, and more particularly the giving and acceptance of bribes by certain people now under arrest. At that time the above named Greenfield received from the above named Elfenbein the sum of $5,000 to permit the said Elfenbein to violate the National Prohibition act, and more particularly to allow the said Elfenbein to remove from the said premises, 290 West Street to the adjoining premises, 289 West Street, certain intoxicating liquors without the said Elfenbein then and there having a permit for the transfer and the transportation of the said liquors."

Barnard adds that, pursuant to the said payment to Greenfield by Elfenbein, the liquors were removed to 289 West Street.

The liquors in question, it is stated, include about fifty barrels of alcohol and 200 cases of ale.

Another affidavit, signed by Prohibition Agent Lester A. Reeves, tells of his having traced the delivery of alcohol to 290 and 291 West Street on Oct. 6. He says he then went to 290 West Street and met Joseph M. Fair, President of the Merchants' Terminal Company. Fair, he said, admitted that he had in his possession certain specially denatured alcohol for the storage and possession of which he did not have a permit. Reeves said he found 113 barrels of alcohol, a large number of which contained markings which falsely indicated the barrels to contain lubricating oil.

Find Alcohol and Tunnel.

When prohibition agents searched the four-story warehouse at 290 West Street yesterday they found 1,000 gallons of alcohol. They also found a tunnel leading through to an adjoining building.

The two search warrants were issued after the arraignment of six men arrested on Thursday night by prohibition agents, who seized three vans of beer. The beer was alleged to have been brewed at the plant of the Paterson Brewing and Malting Company, Paterson, N. J., of which "Major" Herbert Kats, one of the alleged conspirators, is Secretary. The vans were said to have been halted three times in New Jersey by the police, who were informed that the shipments were approved by Prohibition Agent Greenfield. The van drivers and helpers were held in $500 bail each by Commissioner Hitchcock.

The prisoners gave their names as Herman Gass, Thomas Smith, Lester Van Houten, Peter Klenkman, Alexander Fulda and Michael Dunn. Bail was furnished by a surety company.

When efforts were made yesterday to obtain from J. Harry Foley, New Jersey State Commissioner of Weights and Measures and former secretary to ex-Governor Edward I. Edwards, comment on his arrest as one of the conspirators, Mrs. Foley said that he had left their home at 9 Pauimier Place, Jersey City, and that she did not know where he could be found.

United States Senator Edward I. Edwards yesterday issued the following statement on the arrest of his former secretary.

"It is unbelievable to me. When Foley served as my secretary he was straight as a die, and when I was about to retire as Governor I appointed him State Supervisor of Weights and Measures, because I knew he could not go to Washington with me, and because I wanted to do something to help him and to show my appreciation of his honest and diligent service.

"He has not been my secretary for more than a year now, but he has called on me frequently.

"I never dreamed of such a thing as this, and Mary knew I would never have stood for such things. I have not seen him for several weeks now, but I cannot believe this of him. I thought I knew him pretty well, and I find it impossible to believe he is guilty of the charges made against him."

Lawyer's Story of Arrest.

Theodore Schwartzmann, a Brooklyn lawyer, who with Herman J. Goldman, his associate in the Herman Chemical Company, was also arrested in the round-up, denied yesterday that he had ever given a bribe to Prohibition Agent Saul Grill. He said he was introduced by Greenfield to Grill, who, he understood, could bring about the transfer from Boston to New York of a case in which Schwartzmann was involved.

His presence at the Hotel Pennsylvania, where he and eight of the defendants were arrested, according to the lawyer, was due to his belief that he was to have a hearing there before E. C. Yellowley. Schwartzmann then gave the following account of the round-up:

"Mr. Grill, Mr. Goldman and I entered Room 1202, where was seated about twenty men. Mr. Grill introduced me to Mr. Yellowley, and I asked him if he holds trials in this room.

"Mr. Yellowley introduced me to a Mr. Frayser, who was sitting at the back of a table in judicial fashion, and he had certain papers on his desk. I handed Mr. Grill a statement of defense I had prepared in the Boston case which I desired submitted and the original exhibits I would present as my side of the case. Grill turned these papers in folder over to Mr. Yellowley in Room 1202A, who was examining them, and I was asked to be seated, this time in Room 1202A. Mr. Grill left the room, and there were present in the room myself, Mr. Goldman, Mr. Yellowley, W. P. Murphy, F. Frayser, William Calhoun, H. M. Dangler and W. V. Goodrich.

"Mr. Frayser, who sat behind the table in Judge-like fashion, asked my name, which I told him. He asked me if I knew any Government agents. I said 'Yes.' While seated, W. P. Murphy came over to me and asked me to give him all papers in my possession. I told him if he had a search warrant I would permit him to take everything in my possession without notice or warning and without being informed of what was going on.

"You said William P. Murphy, William Calhoun, H. M. Dangler and W. V. Goodrich forced me down, and with force of arms took everything from my possession, including all my papers, breaking my glasses and without my consent took the papers selected which they desired and offered to return to me the balance. I informed Mr. Frayser, and he told me that as long as they removed everything from my possession without showing any authority or search warrant they had committed a crime. I desired for permission to use the telephone to call Police Department for protection, but they declined this privilege. I then requested them to permit me to phone my attorney as I was caught unawares and I did not think that the free United States of America would permit any such tactics and he certainly was not carrying out law or order. I asked them under what authority I desired to go before a commissioner. The men had me in the room from 3:30 until 5 o'clock. During this interval I requested them at several times to call up my attorney, my office or the Police Department or bonding company if I was under arrest, which permission was denied to me.

"At about 5 P. M. my coat was brought in from room 1231 to room 1202A where the supposed trial should have taken place, but instead where the assault was made on me and I was requested to go in custody with William Thompson, M. Cassano and H. M. Dangler to the Post Office Building, New York."

Herbert Kats, Assistant Secretary of the Paterson Brewing and Malting Company, said: "I absolutely deny the charge made against me by the Federal authorities and in the newspapers. I had an appointment at the Hotel Pennsylvania with a man to discuss hosiery."

His statement further said he had not had any business with the Paterson Brewing and Malting Company for the last year and a half, and that he had met only once and that he had "never had any dealings with Federal agents or revenue men."

George Seeber, President of the Rising Sun Brewing Company, Elizabeth, N. J., in a sworn statement said: "The charge is unfounded."

PLEA TO COOLIDGE MADE BY BUSCH

Brewer, in Letter to President, Denounces the Enforcement Situation.

REFERS TO PENNSYLVANIA

He Declares Prohibition Has Been Made Football of Corruption and Politics.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—On the eve of the prohibition conference tomorrow between President Coolidge and the Governors there was made public here today a letter sent to the President by Anheuser-Busch, Inc., the St. Louis brewing corporation, in which August A. Busch, President of the concern, asserted that efforts to enforce the prohibition laws "had corrupted the Federal service to an extent never before known in the history of the Republic," had "so uprooted respect for all law that crimes of intense violence have swept the country from coast to coast to such an extent that no citizen knows today when he is secure in his life and his property," and that the cause of real temperance had been set back many years "by driving the illicit manufacture of alcoholic beverages into the home; by flooding the country with all sorts of imported or smuggled beverages, and creating an army of manufacturers and purveyors of beverages of doubtful or harmful quality."

Quotes President Harding.

Referring to President Harding, Mr. Busch wrote:

"Your late predecessor in office said to the Congress in December, 1922: 'In plain speaking, there are conditions relating to its enforcement which savor of nation-wide scandal. It is the most demoralizing factor in our national life.'

"If it is true as President Harding said, and our own experiences confirm the truth of his statement, that prohibition enforcement is the most demoralizing factor in our national life, continued the letter, "then is it not time that our public officials, and our thinking people, were giving serious consideration to fundamental causes instead of being swept away by emotionalism aroused by false representations or considerations of political expediency?"

The unlawful liquor business existed, said Mr. Busch, "primarily as the result of the corruption of the Federal service for political advantages." Representative of law enforcement brought on visiting Washington "to demand the protection of their lawful business were denied an audience with the chief of the Prohibition Enforcement Department!"

Holds States Denied Vote.

The letter continued in part:

"The best barometer of the sentiment of the American people with respect to prohibition is found in the result of referendum elections held in several States in advance of the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment by State Legislatures. These facts show that:

"That fifteen States, before the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment, had never adopted statutory or constitutional prohibition. In some of these States the issue had been presented and rejected by the people. The population of these fifteen States, according to the Federal census of 1920, was 50,257,617.

"That the Legislatures of ten States, without having submitted the prohibition issue to the people, had adopted statutory prohibition, the people of these ten States had no opportunity to express their opinion on the subject at the polls. The population of these ten States was 22,014,831.

"That twenty-three States had adopted constitutional or statutory prohibition by a vote of the people. The population of these twenty-three States was 35,000,701.

"That the vote cast for prohibition in these twenty-three States was 2,866,408, and against prohibition 2,104,906. The majority for prohibition in the twenty-three States in which the people were given an opportunity to vote upon it was 561,502.

"These facts show that only 4,771,314 voters had an opportunity to express themselves on a State-wide prohibition proposition in advance of the adoption of national prohibition, and that approximately 44 per cent. of the electors in these States objected to prohibition as a State policy.

"That the actual vote cast for prohibition in people's referendums in these twenty-three States was only 2,866,408.

"That actually less than 2¼ per cent. of the American people had expressed themselves as favorable to prohibition as a State policy prior to the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution.

"That in the States in which prohibition was adopted as a State policy by a vote of the people, the principal issue was against the saloon, and not against the manufacture and distribution of mild and practically non-intoxicating beverages.

"These facts, we believe, make it clear, Mr. President, that the people of States having a population of 72,272,345 had never given their consent to prohibition at the polls."

Taking up law vagarious, the letter said:

"Within six months after the effective date of the Volstead act violations of the law had become so extensive and general that as a matter of self-protection and self-respect we were compelled to appeal to the Government for uniform enforcement of the law. When we presented evidence of widespread violation of the law to the Enforcement Department at Washington we were frankly—and we believe truthfully—informed that the department had become so corrupt that it could not enforce the law. This information was given to our representative by a former assistant chief of the department in charge of active enforcement.

"At the request of this assistant chief of the Prohibition Bureau at Washington our representative presented the facts relating to prohibition law violations to a regional director in charge of enforcement in four great States. This regional director was as frank as his superior in Washington, and he, too, declared that his department was so corrupt that he could not enforce the law.

"From the very beginning it appeared to be the policy of the prohibition unit to exempt entire States and certain large cities from the provisions of the enforcement act. We believed then, and we believe now, that the exigencies of practical politics had something to do with these exemptions.

Cites Pennsylvania Conditions.

"We shall point out a few instances. The State of Pennsylvania offers perhaps the most flagrant example. Time and again we have brought conditions in the State of Pennsylvania to the attention of the prohibition unit in Washington, under the administration of both Mr. Kramer and Mr. Haynes. When, in a last final effort to get the law enforced in that State, we presented the facts to the present Prohibition Commissioner and insisted on knowing why the law was not enforced, he replied that a certain United States Senator had just been in his office and was well pleased with conditions in Pennsylvania."

Mr. Busch then quoted a statement of T. Henry Walnut, former Special Assistant United States District Attorney in Philadelphia, in part as follows:

"'Coupled with the temptation of extraordinary sums of money there were political influences of importance. The value of the office of the State Director of Prohibition as a political asset was soon demonstrated. It could control numerous highly desirable appointments, could afford protection to favored persons and provide permits in payment of political debts, and, what was still more important, could collect unlimited sums of money for campaign purposes.

"'Control of the office was eagerly sought by political leaders. The Republican leaders were alive to these considerations, and their original selections, both in New York and Philadelphia, were men of prominence in political life—Judge Harte and Senator McConnell. Neither one lasted more than a few months and both were indicted within a year from the date of their appointment for the issue of permits, and in both cases there was a persistent rumor that the money collected was intended, in part at least, to be applied to important political purposes, one of which in Pennsylvania was the accumulation of a fund of great size for the election of a Governor in the following year.

"'However true the specific rumors may have been as to the political reasons involved, it is undoubted that enormous quantities of liquor were withdrawn from distilleries upon fraudulent permits and that enormous sums of money were paid for these permits. The permits so issued by the Pennsylvania office in a period of sixty days called 700,000 gallons of whisky and alcohol. The corruption fund arising from these papers must have run close to $4,000,000, which price was added to the cost of the liquor that was withdrawn and bootlegged.'"

"We are informed," continued the letter, "that in the city of Pittsburgh evidence was obtained that at least $100,000 a month was being paid for protection by law violators. We were also informed during the progress of the campaign last year that certain violators of the law were operating in Ohio upon the payment of specific sums for political purposes. Our information indicated that the money collected from the violators of the prohibition law was being used to support candidates pledged to a dry program, and also to create public sentiment against a proposition to legalize the manufacture of non-intoxicating malt beverages and light wines.

Mr. Busch referred as follows to the recent letter of Prohibition Commissioner Haynes to Congressman Hill regarding the status of fruit juices:

"Mr. President, if this statement means anything it means that the farmers of the United States are to be exempted from the provisions of the Volstead act with respect to the manufacture of intoxicating beverages in their homes. The president of our corporation is also a farmer. Under the operation of the law he would lay himself liable to prosecution for the violation of the prohibition act if, in his capacity as president of the corporation, he permitted it to manufacture beverages containing more than ½ of 1 per cent. of alcohol, but would not be liable to prosecution if he manufactured ciders and fruit juices containing more than ½ of 1 per cent. of alcohol on his farm.

CHARGE CRIPPLING OF ALCOHOL TRADE

Chemists and Druggists Demand Separate "Dry" Control and Hit Haynes Methods.

THEY BACK UP MELLON

Committee Also Opposes a New Enforcement Unit Answerable Only to the President.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—The Alcohol Trades Advisory Committee, composed of eleven representatives of scientific societies and of industries in which alcohol is an indispensable raw material, made a report to the Internal Revenue Bureau today in which it attacked the administration of the prohibition unit under Commissioner Haynes and condemned proposals to establish a separate bureau of Government for the enforcement of prohibition, independent of departmental control and answerable only to the President.

The committee defended Secretary Mellon and Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair, characterizing attacks upon those officials as "unfair and unwarranted." It asserted that "time after time," upon appeals of science and industry, they promptly accorded relief from intolerable conditions.

In the report the committee first emphasized the importance of a sufficient supply of non-beverage alcohol, charging that its use was surrounded by absurd distinctions, unwarranted restrictions and almost intolerable conditions under past and current methods of prohibition enforcement. The committee said:

"While the future uses of alcohol will be coextensive with the progress of chemical industry, there are a few uses, the expansion of which will be more or less revolutionary in character, such as in the perfection of liquid motor fuels to supplement the rapidly diminishing supply of petroleum suitable for the purpose and other adaptations which are at this time the subject of practical experimentation and scientific research. From where is the essential future supply of alcohol for governmental, industrial and scientific purposes to come? Under present conditions of prohibition law enforcement, we have real cause to be concerned.

"In our opinion the fault does not lie with the law but in the administration thereof. We yield to no one in our adherence to the principle of law enforcement, but surely the national prohibition act can be so administered as not to interfere with the health, economic needs and the national defense of the country, although this is apparently challenged by some 'dry advocates.'

"The attitude of a prohibition commissioner toward science and industry is sufficiently shown by an official bulletin issued on Oct. 1, 1923, in which he stated that 'Effectiveness of enforcement is shown by results in curtailing the source of supply of whisky for medicinal use and grain alcohol for industrial and drug purposes, such curtailment being reflected in the reduction of tax-paid withdrawals of alcohol as measured in tax gallons.'

Haynes was prohibition commissioner on that date. The committee's recommendations in part are:

"Grain alcohol is admittedly a basic chemical essential to our national defense, industrial and economic development and even to the advancement of civilization itself, all who believe in true enforcement should recognize the insufficiency of the present which the chemical industry has been brought by failure heretofore properly to enforce the industrial alcohol features of the National Prohibition act and should make certain that it is administered as intended by Congress.

"The Alcohol Trades Advisory Committee believes that the action of a former Commissioner of Internal Revenue investing in a Federal Prohibition Commissioner not equipped with the essential knowledge of economic knowledge and training the duties of carrying out the provisions of the National Prohibition act, concerning the manufacture, transportation, sale and use of industrial alcohol, was illegal by implication, illogical by any method of sound reasoning, economically impracticable and should be forthwith corrected.

"The Commissioner of Internal Revenue should designate a Deputy Commissioner of Internal Revenue, or appoint an Industrial alcohol commissioner, to take over the administration of that portion of the law relating to the manufacture, sale and use of high proof alcohol, pure and denatured, for non-beverage purposes."

The committee was appointed by the Internal Revenue Bureau to make an investigation of conditions. Its members are: William J. Sailor, Washington; Samuel C. Henry, Chicago, National Association of Retail Druggists; J. H. Beal, Urbana, Ill., American Pharmaceutical Association; Martin H. Ittner, Jersey City, American Manufacturers of Toilet Articles; Frank A. Blair, New York, The Proprietary Association; R. H. Bend, Baltimore, Flavoring Extract Manufacturers' Association; Charles L. Reese, Wilmington, Del., Manufacturing Chemists' Association, R. M. Caln, Indianapolis, American Pharmaceutical Manufacturers' Association.

SUDDEN EAST GALE JARS BIG AQUITANIA

HIT SHIP OFF NANTUCKET

Sir Joseph Duveen One of the Passengers Capsized by the Shock.

A sixty-mile gale from the east struck the Cunarder Aquitania at 10:30 P. M. Friday night, just after the liner passed the Nantucket Lightship. Many passengers were knocked over, and seven were injured, of whom two were met by ambulances and taken to hospitals when the ship docked yesterday morning at Pier 54, North River.

Up to the time she encountered the gale the Aquitania had fine weather and had averaged 23.11 knots, her postwar record, and exceeded once when the liner was new and averaged 23.21 knots for the voyage.

Allen C. Archer, an insurance broker of Los Angeles, broke his left thigh and was sent to the Polyclinic Hospital. G. O. Case, a London merchant, was sent to the New York Hospital with a damaged head. Miss Sidney Shields, who played with Walker Whiteside a year ago in "The Hindu," sprained her ankle.

Captain Sir James Charles, R. N. R., of the Aquitania, said that he had never experienced such a gale east of Nantucket Lightship in the twenty-eight years he had been on the New York route. "It came on to blow just after 10 o'clock last night," he said, "and being in the shallow water there was a high confused sea with a heavy ground swell, which struck the ship two or three times and caused her to lurch while the passengers were dancing in the lounge on 'A' deck. It was a fresh gale, about 8 on the Beaufort scale, which is from fifty to sixty miles, and would not have been so noticeable in mid-Atlantic."

Sir Joseph Duveen, who was a passenger with Lady Duveen, said that the gale came suddenly when they were playing bridge and they found themselves on the floor mixed up with chairs and rugs. Others on board were Mr. and Mrs. George T. Brokaw, who were returning from their wedding trip; Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury, wife of the Philadelphia banker, who met her at Quarantine; Georgette Leblanc, the Belgian actress; John Goldhammer, Vice President of the Commercial Cable Company, and Dr. Arthur D. Ellison of the United States Public Health Service.

SEES WORLD PEACE NEARER.

Publisher Says Public Opinion Acted as Curb on Mussolini.

Mme. Duse's views on the European outlook, which appeared in THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday, were commented on by Herbert S. Houston, publisher of Our World, in an address before the Women's Forum at the Hotel Ritz-more. Mr. Houston talked on "Events That Are Working Toward World Peace." He said Mme. Duse in her statement on European conditions and Mr. Lloyd George in his recent addresses were painting a gloomy picture of European conditions. He added that in the main they were doubtless correct, but that they did not tell the whole story.

"Premier Mussolini, in Mme. Duse's own country," Mr. Houston said, "recently learned that there is such a thing as a world public opinion to which it is wise to bow. His expedition to Corfu and what happened as a result certainly constitutes an event that is working definitely toward peace.

"Signor Mussolini has learned that he cannot be a law unto himself. A new order has come into the world and it is slowly establishing itself among all enlightened peoples. The World Court is a part of it. So is the League of Nations. So is the International Chamber of Commerce. So is the new economic approach that America is making to the world—an approach in the interest of America's commercial well-being.

"The farmer, for example, has begun to understand that there will not be a restored agriculture until there is a restored Europe. This country is getting a new orientation on the world from the standpoint of this country's interest."

The speaker described the present direct approach of Germany to France as a great event working toward world peace.

AMHERST CLUB OPENED.

Message From Coolidge Received at Exercises in New Building Here.

President Coolidge, life member elect, sent a message of felicitation to the Amherst Club of New York upon the formal opening of its new five-story clubhouse at 273 Lexington Avenue, corner of Thirty-sixth Street, last night. The housewarming was preded by dinner at the Hotel Commodore attended by more than 500 alumni, at which Professor Burgess Johnson of Vassar College was the speaker. Eugene S. Wilson, (illegible) President of the club, reviewed the progress of college activities. President Olds of Amherst College was unable to attend because of a meeting of the Board of Trustees at the college today.

TELLS OF DICKSON SLAYING.

Girl Beaten to Death While on Joy Ride Party, Says Prisoner.

MILLVILLE, N. J., Oct. 19.—Cumberland County authorities expressed the belief tonight that Emma Dickson, Millville High School girl, whose body was found in the woods near her home nearly a month ago, met her death following a "joy ride" in which another girl and four male members of a theatrical troupe participated. They based this belief, they said, on statements made to them by Ernesto Faccenda, held in Philadelphia on a charge of murder in connection with the case. Faccenda is alleged to have admitted witnessing the killing of Miss Dickson.

According to Faccenda's statement, as given out by the authorities, the four men were on their way back to Atlantic City with another girl in their motor car when they met Miss Dickson, a neighbor and a former schoolmate, near Port Elizabeth, and asked her to take a ride. She consented, and later when the men attempted to attack her she resisted and was beaten to death, detectives said Faccenda had told them.

All four men have been questioned by County Detective Frank Lore. The oldest, he said, was 22 and the youngest 17. Lore said they had told him the automobile they were supposed to have driven on Sept. 13, the day Miss Dickson disappeared, was in an Atlantic City garage being repaired, but that he had learned from the owner of the garage that it had not been brought there until two days later.

Prosecutor Roscoe C. Ward said tonight that the County authorities were still checking up on Faccenda's statements and that when they had a "concrete case" they would obtain extradition papers for his removal to this State.

The authorities said Faccenda had denied having taken any part in the slaying. They declined to state whether they believed he was a member of the party.

CALLS CHICAGO "DRIEST."

"And It Will Be Entirely Dry," Mayor Dever Declares.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—Chicago is the driest large city in the United States, Mayor William E. Dever declared in an address last night.

"And it will be entirely dry before my Administration is over," he added. "Any public official who does not enforce the law is a traitor. As nominal head of a Police Department numbering 7,000 able-bodied men, it is nonsense to say I cannot enforce our laws. Passing the buck from city official to State official and from State official to Federal official is foolish."

The Mayor revoked twenty-one beverage licenses yesterday, bringing the total revoked since the city-wide liquor clean-up started to 1,390. Owners of the places were accused of violating prohibition laws.

SHOTS DISPERSE IRISH MOB.

Troops Clear Streets of Republican Women Outside Dublin Jail.

DUBLIN, Oct. 19 (Associated Press).—Exciting scenes occurred outside Mountjoy Prison here today when crowds of women congregated in an effort to prevent the removal of hunger-striking prisoners. The troops failed to clear the streets and shots were fired, causing a stampede in which many persons were trampled and others fainted.

Discovery of a tunnel used by prisoners for communication between their cells was reported today by the authorities of Mountjoy Prison. The authorities declare that none of the prisoners is seriously ill as yet in consequence of the strike.

At the Government offices this morning it was stated that eighty of the Mountjoy prisoners had been taken from that institution during the forenoon. This followed the removal of eighty others last evening. The prisoners were taken to a new place of detention which was not disclosed.

Eighty of the Mountjoy prisoners were released today, some of them after signing an undertaking to keep the peace. It is stated in Sinn Fein quarters that sixty of these prisoners were released unconditionally.

SIXTEEN STILLS RAIDED.

Prohibition Agents Seize Apparatus and Liquor Worth $70,000.

Prohibition authorities and the police yesterday raided fifteen liquor stills in Brooklyn and one in Manhattan. Seven of the stills were found at 2,189 East Sixteenth Street, Sheepshead Bay, where 1,440 gallons of rye whisky and a large quantity of other "moonshine," all valued at $50,000, were seized and then treated with chemicals so as to make it unfit for beverage purposes. Police Lieutenant Adam McMullin and Plain clothes men Lau and Craddock arrested Albert Noordam, who said he was a builder of 2,942 West Forty-third Street, Coney Island.

Two 200-gallon, two 100-gallon and two large dismantled stills were found by Prohibition Agents Reager, Drescher and Kerrigan under Divisional Chief R. Q. Merrick when they raided a one-family detached house at 1,315 Sixty-third Street, Brooklyn, and confiscated besides the 420,000 plant eighteen barrels of alcohol. They arrested four occupants of the house, who gave their names as Cosimo Carigliano, 6,811 Fort Hamilton Parkway; Joseph Perno, 1,424 Seventy-seventh Street; Frank Webster, 2,229 Harway Avenue, and Thomas Cascello.

A stable at 426 West 209th Street was raided by Plain clothes men MacMahon and O'Connor early last night. They found a 100-gallon still and seventeen barrels of liquor. Charles Martola, a barber of 602 East 150th Street, and Nicola Farilepone, a laborer of 3,600 Bailey Avenue, The Bronx, were arrested.

8 MORE AIRPLANE RECORDS.

International Body Proclaims Successes of American Aviators.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Eight more American airplane records have just been officially proclaimed world's records by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, the world's governing aeronautic body, according to a cable received by the National Aeronautic Association. These are records made at Rockwell Field, San Diego, Cal., on Aug. 27 and 28, by Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith and Lieutenant J. P. Richter of the United States Air Service in their famous flight of more than thirty-seven hours, in which they refilled their airplane in the air, taking aboard 687 gallons of gasoline, thirty-eight gallons of oil and four hot meals.

The records are:

Speed over the greatest distance, returning to the point of departure without landing—5,200 kilometers. Record for duration without landing—37 hours 15 minutes 14 4-5 seconds.

COAL REGION BARS GET 3 DAYS' WARNING

State Police, Backed by Injunction, Order All Saloons in Anthracite Zone Closed.

SCRANTON, Pa., Oct. 19.—With their first victory won in the Federal Court here through the action of Judge C. B. Witmer in sustaining injunction proceedings against a Hazleton saloon proprietor, State police throughout the anthracite region today served notice on all saloons here to close their places within seventy-two hours.

Six State troopers from the Wyoming Barracks visited all places in Scranton, Wilkes-Barre, Carbondale and other cities in the valley which had been ordered closed in August. At that time orders were issued for the removal of all bar fixtures and other saloon paraphernalia.

The majority of the drinking places failed to obey the order, and today's action, according to Captain William Clarke, commanding the troops, comes as the result of court approval of the "padlock" proceedings. If the orders to close within seventy-two hours are not complied with, he said, the Court would be asked to issue injunctions against hundreds of saloons throughout the hard coal fields.

DUVEEN BACK FROM EUROPE

Gives First Place to American Art Collectors—Tells of Purchases.

Sir Joseph Duveen returned yesterday on the Cunarder Aquitania from his annual Summer trip to Europe, accompanied by Lady Duveen. In an interview at the Hotel Plaza he discussed art conditions in Europe and gave first place to American collectors.

Regarding Professor Van Dyke's statement that Rembrandt painted only about fifty pictures, he said he would not discuss the matter. Asked if he had purchased any great works of art in Europe, he said:

"Yes, I was fortunate in getting many noted pictures, of which the most famous are by Frans Hals, Vermeer, Holbein, Rembrandt, Van Dyke, Gainsborough, Sir Joshua Reynolds and Bellini. He expects them here next week.

Sir Joseph said that collectors, especially those in Austria and Germany, are parting with their treasures and that few great pictures remain in their hands. The greatest remaining European collection now is in England, he said.

in the country." Mr. Moses replied. "His support is not in any one party and is not organized. If he accepts the Farmer-Labor Party nomination, as it appears now he may do, it will create an unhappy situation in the Republican Party. Every electoral vote that he secures will be at the expense of the Republican Party, and the election may be so close as to throw it in the House of Representatives."

"What about Senator La Follette in the Presidential fight?"

"He will go into the Republican convention," Senator Moses replied, "but I do not think that he will join a third party movement. He ought to have 300 delegates."

"Then, according to you, there is going to be a real contest in the Republican primaries?"

"Not necessarily. I said that the President was going to have opposition on the floor of the convention. There will be plenty of other eligible candidates in the convention with great followings. At this time one cannot tell what will happen. President Coolidge may do something which will make him wholly unsuitable, or write a record in the coming Congress which will make him entirely available, so much so as to make the opposition a mere gesture."

"What about the next Congress? Will there be any constructive legislation?

Expects Only Talk in Congress.

"There will be lots of talk but no action," Senator Moses replied. "There will be no tax revision, no railroad legislation, and perhaps no bonus. The situation will develop from the fact that there will be no amalgamation between the groups. The insurgent Republicans will not join with the Democrats and, therefore, neither group will be strong enough to pass any constructive legislation. About all that will be done is the passage of appropriation bills."

Senator Moses characterized the Volstead act as a "jackass statute." "Any law that declares buttermilk to be an alcoholic beverage of necessity is a jackass statute," he declared.

Conditions in Massachusetts favored the election of a Republican Senator, Mr. Moses asserted, adding that either Governor Cox or National Committeeman Butler would be the Republican nominee.

Senator Moses saw the President late in the day and presumably went over with him some of the political conditions he saw in the West. At the White House it was said that the President asked Senator Moses about his trip in connection with the investigation into forests.

would resign from the conference if a single name were attached to the memorial.

"The Ku Klux Klan is the greatest issue in America today," he said, "and that question demands the time and attention of this meeting instead of mere words on the Eighteenth Amendment."

Neff Offers to Sign Alone.

"I have declared martial law twenty times in various parts of Texas to insure law enforcement," said Governor Neff, "and if forty-seven Governors refuse to sign this memorial, it still will go to the national capital with the signature of the largest unit of this republic. President Coolidge has invited the Governors to Washington to discuss prohibition enforcement and not the Klan, and we therefore should confine ourselves to the purpose of the meeting.

"Let this conference proclaim to every bootlegger and every distiller in the country that this law will be enforced. And let us proclaim to the enemies of the Constitution that nevermore will America look upon the light of civilization and the curse of humanity since time began—the liquor traffic.

"This is not a consideration of the merits of prohibition. That question was settled by the voice of 100,000,000 people and it is settled forever. No State, be it New York or Wisconsin, has the right to encourage the enemies of the Federal Constitution."

Governor Parker interrupted the Texas Governor with the statement that the Ku Klux Klan was seeking to take charge of the Constitution. Governor Blaine rose to the point of order to challenge Governor Neff on his statement regarding the encouraging of enemies of the Constitution. With several Governors clamoring for the privilege of the floor, Governor Baxter restored order by vigorous pounding with the gavel.

Leaning over Governor Neff's chair and shaking his finger at him, Governor Blaine asked:

"Will the Governor please answer the question whether enforcement of the law is in proclamations or in actions?"

"We must show the outlaws that first there is the will on public officers to enforce the law," shouted Governor Neff, "and second, we must put them on the rock piles of our State penitentiaries to consider their ways."

Silzer Charges Lax Enforcement.

Governor Silzer of New Jersey joined the debate with the statement that New Jersey was not wetter than any other State. "We are in favor of law enforcemen," he continued, "but the will to enforce the law was not the end of the question in New Jersey." He introduced a resolution declaring the Federal enforcement organization ineffective in its operations and that "we believe there can be no real enforcement" as long as present conditions exist.

Governor Neff moved that this resolution be tabled and the motion was seconded by Governor Walker of Georgia. When put to a roll call it passed, 26 to 2. The official roll call on this motion, corrected later by the addition of several names of Governors who were not in the room when the poll was taken, stood:

Nays—Louisiana, New Jersey.

Present and not voting—Wisconsin.

Absent—Michigan.

Other states were not officially represented in the conferences.

Commenting on the action taken Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania said:

"This is the day of victory for law enforcement. It is a day of meeting with the advancing stream of human progress, and our way now is smoother than ever before."

Coolidge to Address Governors.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—When thirty or more Governors of States assemble at the White House tomorrow at the invitation of President Coolidge to discuss Federal and State co-operation in the enforcement of the liquor and narcotic prohibition laws and the laws governing immigration, the President will deliver an address which he has prepared in advance. This address will review his purposes in calling the conference and will make suggestions of topics for the Governors to consider.

Following the President, Attorney General Daugherty will tell what the Department of Justice is doing in connection with the liquor and narcotic laws; Acting Secretary Henning of the Department of Labor will discuss the immigration problem and Roy A. Haynes, the Federal Prohibition Director, will tell of the activities of his bureau. Secretary Mellon and David H. Blair, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, will also be present.

Refused to Discuss Methods.

After the roll call, Governor Silzer moved the suspension of the regular order of business in favor of "the discussion of prohibition methods, as suggested by the recent meeting of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America." His proposal was tabled on motion of Governor Neff, and the Governors returned to the discussion of Governor Sweet's memorial. Parliamentary wrangling followed and when Governor Baxter called for a viva voce vote, it was greeted with affirmative shouts.

The opening of the conference will be preceded by a luncheon at the White House, with President Coolidge as host. The conference will be behind closed doors, but the address of the President and probably some of the other formal statements will be given to the public. It was said at the White House today that no stenographic report of the conference would be taken. A summary of the proceedings of the conference may be given out for publication.

Favor Civil Service Dry Agents.

A statement made in New York by Wayne B. Wheeler, counsel for the Anti-Saloon League, that the most effective method of enforcing the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act and taking prohibition out of politics would be to put Federal enforcement agents under the Civil Service, brought a sympathetic response today from the United States Civil Service Commission. A statement from the commission read:

"The commission is called upon to make a recommendation in this respect would approve placing the prohibition enforcement department under the operation of the competitive examination. An act of Congress would be required to place the prohibition forces under the classified Civil Service.

Director Haynes today struck a blow at home brewers. He issued this statement:

"All breweries will be notified to cease the manufacture of such syrups at once, and failure to do so will result in a prompt citation and revocation of their permit to manufacture cereal beverages. It is the intention of the department to absol

JURY IS EXPECTED TO VINDICATE WEBB

PRESENTMENT ON MONDAY

Husband a Witness at Closing Session—He Says He Is Confident of Exoneration.

The Westchester County Grand Jury, sitting in White Plains, ended yesterday the taking of testimony in its inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the death of Mrs. Gertrie Emily Gorman Webb at the Westchester Biltmore Country Club in Rye on the evening of Sept. 25 last. Relatives and friends had insisted she was murdered by slow applications of bichloride of mercury.

The Grand Jury did not hand up the presentment looked for yesterday. Instead it was announced that this report would be turned into Supreme Court Justice Joseph Morschauser next Monday morning. The Grand Jury appointed a committee to confer this morning with District Attorney Arthur Rowland on the preparation of the presentment.

It was learned that the Grand Jury presentment would contain a complete exoneration of Charles Webb, husband of the dead woman, against whom insinuations had been made. The report will also urge an inquiry by the prosecutor into certain phases of the case.

Charles Webb and Val O'Farrell, a private detective engaged by William P. Hunter of Devon, Pa., uncle of Mrs. Webb, were the only witnesses before the Grand Jury yesterday. Webb testified for an hour and a half.

Emerging from the Grand Jury room Webb said to reporters: "I made a full and complete statement to the Grand Jury. I answered all the questions they put to me fully and frankly. I have nothing to fear and never had. I have the fullest confidence in the integrity and fair dealing of the officials and of the Grand Jurors of Westchester County, and I hope for a complete vindication of the beastly and venomous charges directed against me in advance of action by the Grand Jury."

Surrogate John P. O'Brien of New York County yesterday granted the application of Webb that the testimony of John D. Morrow of 431 Audubon Avenue be taken in advance of trial of the five contests of the twenty-line will, in which Mrs. Webb left her entire estate to her husband. Morrow sails for Cuba shortly. The Court appointed George W. Olvany of 2 Rector Street to take Morrow's testimony today.

In his petition Webb asserted Morrow would be an important and material witness for him in his defense of the contests. Morrow had been engaged in business transactions with Mrs. Webb. Webb's petition estimated the estate at between $2,000,000 and $4,000,000. He said Morrow's testimony would refute allegations that Mrs. Webb was of unsound mind and not possessed of testamentary capacity.

SAYS FORD PLANNED MURDER BY AUTO

Says Ford Wanted Referee Beaten.

This alleged demand that Anderson beat up Referee Mairea was after April 20, on which date, according to the referee's report, Ford tried to use an empty revolver on Keim during a hearing in Ford's apartment. It was because of this attack that Keim caused his son-in-law's arrest on a charge of assault in the third degree. A hearing on this charge is due the last day of this month.

Anderson said that several months ago, when Ford proposed Keim's death, he informed Ford that he was not willing to help, but would introduce Ford to a former convict, John Doe, who "would not mind." Anderson introduced Ford to John Doe in a pool room located in one of Ford's properties in Brooklyn. Thereafter, said Anderson, the three frequently discussed murdering Keim.

It was last month, said Anderson, that Ford conceived the idea that Anderson kill Keim by running him down with an automobile. He said that learning that Keim was at Manhattan Beach they drove one afternoon to that place looking for him. But they arrived there late in the day, and because Ford had an appointment they returned without accomplishing their mission.

"Next time we see him we'll bump him off when he's crossing the street," Anderson quoted Ford as saying. "After that," went on Anderson, "we made several trips to Bath Beach where Keim was living in Mrs. Irma Andrews's house. We drove around in Ford's car, me driving, looking around the streets of the neighborhood in hope we would see Keim. Ford watched for Keim while I operated the car. He kept talking about my running over Keim. Ford seemed impressed with his idea.

"A Good Day to Run Over Keim."

"He was so strong for the idea that whenever I wanted to use his automobile for a joy ride I would go to Ford and tell him I thought it was a good day to run over Keim. If Ford wasn't busy he went along with me. If he was busy he let me have the car alone. I would use it for parties and he would never know the difference. Finally, he got so peeved because I hadn't run over Keim that he bawled me out for not getting results. So one day I reported to him that I had cracked Keim on the head. Ford was very much pleased. But he learned the next day that I had lied, because he found out that Keim was out of town at the time. He was very sore about it, telling me I lied when I said I had cracked the old man on the bean with a lead pipe. I had to admit lying."

"A few weeks ago," continued Anderson, "Ford came to me and said, 'Keim wears two big diamonds and carries a lot of money around with him. You can knock him on the bean and get the diamonds and the money.'"

Anderson said that he received from Ford only $5, and this sum was paid for service of legal papers. He added that one day Ford took him to a clothing store in Ralph Avenue, Brooklyn, "and got me a $50 suit. He put down $5 and the rest is still owing."

Frequently in his confession, Anderson referred to Ford as the master mind.

Anderson repeated his story of the previous day that while he remained in the sedan near the Andrews house, Ford and John Doe applied oil-soaked rags to the porch roof, and that a few blocks away Ford threw into a lot the gallon bottle that had contained the oil. He said that Ford complained that all of the bottle's contents had not been used. A bottle such as described by Anderson was found by detectives in a field to which they drove with Anderson Thursday evening.

"A Pack of Lies," Says Ford.

Ford was informed in his cell by his attorney, Robert H. Haskell, of 44 Court Street, of Anderson's charges. He said: "That is a pack of lies. I did not leave my house after 1 o'clock in the morning, when Anderson and John Doe left. After that I remained in bed all night. The fire is said to have been at 3:30 o'clock in the morning. I was asleep in my house at that time.

"They have scared Anderson by third degree methods into framing me. They tried the same thing on me. When they broke into my house Wednesday night they beat me up badly. I'm going to stick to my alibi because I'm innocent, whatever they say."

Ford produced a crimson-stained handkerchief as evidence that he had been beaten up.

In further questioning by the authorities yesterday, Ford said that he spent all Sunday afternoon in Garden City at his wife's boarding place at 98 St. Paul's Place with John Doe and that they returned to the Ford apartment at 244 Bainbridge Street, Brooklyn, in the evening. He said that shortly after their return John Doe used the Ford telephone to call up Anderson, who was playing cards in Lynch's home. The call was made to a cigar store near Lynch's home. When word came back that Anderson was so engrossed with the game that he would not go to the telephone, Ford said he and John Doe drove over to Lynch's house and induced Anderson "to come out on a party." He said that at 2:30 o'clock they drove to the Decatur telephone exchange on Throop Avenue and met Dorothy and Gertrude Johns, sisters, employed in the exchange. He said the girls accompanied them to the Ford apartment.

"They are good girls and came along only because one of them was keeping company with Anderson," Ford was quoted as saying. He told his questioners that they sang, danced and drank tea. At midnight he went on, they drove the girls to their home at 176 Linden Street, Brooklyn, returning about 1 o'clock in the morning to Ford's apartment. Shortly after, he went on, Anderson and John Doe left.

He denied the story told by Anderson that from Ford's home they drove out along Bedford Avenue and that when they reached Eastern Parkway Ford, in response to a question by Anderson, admitted it was his purpose to set fire to the Bath Beach house "because it's a good night for a fire." He also denied Anderson's story that Ford, Anderson and John Doe had driven several times to Bath Beach for the express purpose of surveying the neighborhood with the view in mind of eventually setting fire to the Andrews house.

Ford, who was graduated from the University of Dublin, was more settled-tour about his wife's health than about his own predicament. He frequently pleaded that news of his arrest be withheld from her. Mrs. Ford has not been told of her husband's arrest. Though aware of her father's death she does not know he met death in a fire.

After a sleepless night, during which she had not been informed that her husband had been held as a material witness, Mrs. Lynch and her two children appeared yesterday at the Ralph Avenue police station in Brooklyn to report Lynch as missing. They were directed to the District Attorney's office. There Mrs. Lynch was told of her husband's detention. She corroborated his story that he remained home Sunday night as host at a card party. She also corroborated the story that Anderson was called away by Ford and John Doe.

The Johns girls, who have given the authorities much information, were questioned again. Their assistance was praised by the officials.

John Doe Not Found Yet.

District Attorney Dodd said last night that "an important new lead had developed" in the quest for John Doe. A number of suspects were taken into custody, but none proved to be John Doe. Nevertheless, the investigators said they were confident of his early arrest. They said that he eluded them by leaving his home a few hours before their appearance at the house.

The bodies of Lillian, Charles and Marjorie Andrews and of Miss Rusina Weichart, a servant, four of the six victims of the fire, were cremated yesterday at the Fresh Pond Crematory in Middle Village, Queens. A large delegation of students from Erasmus Hall High School, which Charles Andrews attended, were present at the funeral services at an undertaking establishment at 144 Lexington Avenue, New York. The Rev. Louis Happ, rector of St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Williamsburg, conducted the services.

Mrs. Irma Andrews, mother of Charles and Marjorie, who was injured in leaping to the lawn from the top floor of the burning building, was reported at Coney Island Hospital yesterday to be in a serious condition. She called frequently for her two children, not knowing they were dead.

It was learned yesterday that Charles Andrews wrote a day before his death to Miss Kathryn Gross of 1,930 Spring Garden Street, Philadelphia: "I'm going to Philadelphia to see you Wednesday. You know the kind of cake I like." The two had been schoolmates in Brooklyn. A few hours after receiving the letter Miss Gross read in a newspaper of Andrews's death in the fire.

Court Record Bares Grudge.

In their search yesterday for evidence substantiating information that Ford bore a deep grudge against his father-in-law, the authorities examined several court records. One of the documents read was an affidavit filed by Ford in the Kings County Supreme Court on Feb. 1, 1922, in a separation suit by Mrs. Emma Keim against George F. Keim, to whom she had been married Nov. 28, 1912. It was the second marriage for each. In his affidavit Ford swore that Keim had offered him $5,000 for testimony adverse to Mrs. Keim. Ford said he refused. He quoted Keim as saying, "I'm going to Europe with my girl when this is over." Ford went on, "I believe the woman he referred to was Mrs. ——." He named a Bath Beach woman. In an answering affidavit, Keim declared these allegations were false. Justice Dike ordered Keim to pay $50 a week alimony pending trial. The action was discontinued May 17, 1922, after which Keim continued to pay $50 a week to his wife. They lived apart.

In the litigation between the Fords and Keim over four pieces of improved property in Brooklyn, Keim alleged Mrs. Ford had transferred illegally to her husband, knowing that when he, Keim, had deeded it to Mrs. Ford it was still to remain in Keim's ownership. In examining the records of this case, the authorities seized upon an affidavit of one of Ford's attorneys, Paul Jones of 38 Park Row.

Jones said he had been substituted as counsel in place of John H. Leddy on May 25, 1922, as Leddy was going to Europe. In his affidavit Jones asked the Court to fix a fee of $300 for his service. The Court allowed him $200.

Ford Persistent in Litigation.

"Not content with calling at my office and insisting on taking up my time in going over ground already traversed," said the Jones affidavit, "Ford made a practice of calling me up on the telephone at home almost every morning and evening, at breakfast and supper time, to talk about the case. He gave me advice on how certain features of the case should be conducted.

"From statements made to me by Ford it appears that he had consulted at least fifty different attorneys about the issues in this action, and he insisted on attempting to compel me to follow the diverse views and opinions expressed by these several attorneys rather than my own view of how this litigation should be conducted."

Jones related that when he left for Europe on June 17, 1922, he placed the case, for the time, in the hands of Benjamin Ammerman. On returning from Europe on Sept. 28, 1922, said Jones, he found that Ford had dismissed Ammerman in favor of Robert H. Haskell.

"This litigation arises out of a family quarrel," went on the affidavit. "In the early part of last June, the defendant, Edna A. Ford, the plaintiff's daughter, appealed to me to try to settle this litigation without forcing her to take the witness stand against her father, which she did not want to do. She explained to me how she was coerced to take the stand against her wishes by her husband."

Jones said Ford refused an offer to compromise and that "he said he wanted to fight the old fellow regardless of whether he won or lost the case."

The affidavit continues, "Ford has consulted so many attorneys and has examined and studied so many cases and law books that he is obsessed with the notion that he knows more than I could hope to acquire in two lifetimes."

POLITICIAN AIDED TOTTERING BROKERS

BANKER PROMISED $50,000

McKinney, Who Already Had Lost $70,000, Tied a String to His Offer.

According to the testimony in the bankruptcy hearing yesterday before Referee Harold P. Coffin, a month before the $4,000,000 failure of Raynor, Nicholas & Truesdell, members of the brokerage firm enlisted the aid of an unidentified upstate politician to raise new capital. William Abramson, counsel for the trustee, developed that the politician, who was to be paid an unnamed fee for his services, went from Buffalo to Syracuse to do missionary work which resulted in William McKinne, a Titusville (Pa.) banker, who already had lost $70,000 in the firm through investments, agreeing to put up $50,000 if that much more were raised. If Mr. Abramson, who is going to Titusville, can establish that McKinney made an investment in the brokerage firm, McKinney will become a party to the bankruptcy proceedings.

Evidence that Raynor, Nicholas & Truesdell bucketed customers' orders by trading against them through Stock Exchange houses was offered by Henry W. Becker, accountant for the trustee. He traced a transaction in 200 shares of Canadian Pacific, which he said Raynor, Nicholas & Truesdell had put through W. W. Cohen & Co. and Raymond Shaw & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, and Harvey A. Willis & Co., in order to cover up the fact that they had bucketed the original order.

Paid Broker $41,300 Commissions.

The business carried on by Raynor, Nicholas & Truesdell for a few months before they failed was "something terrific," Lewis Gilbough, floor trader for the firm testified.

"I don't doubt it," observed Referee Coffin.

Gilbough, who has been a member of the Consolidated for thirty-four years, said that he had to give up his other clients and devote his entire attention to the requirements of the Raynor firm. His commissions on their business, he said, amounted to $28,300 in 1921 and $15,000 for four months of 1922.

"Did you ever see an order to buy and sell stocks at the same price?" asked Mr. Abramson.

"I wouldn't take such an order if one were issued," replied Gilbough.

"Suppose you received an order to buy at 70⅝ and sell at 70⅛. Would you execute it?

"Not in the same breath," said Gilbough.

Mr. Abramson then read a Raynor order slip dated Sept. 28, 1921, to buy ten shares of American Can at 26⅝ and sell at 26⅜. The stamp on the slip showed that the buy and sell order both had been executed at 2:45 P. M.

Although his name appeared on the slip as having executed the order, Gilbough maintained that he had nothing to do with it.

James Quillan, whose appearance at every session of the bankruptcy hearing has been marked by the same question and the same answer, was the last witness.

"Where is Frank McQuade, your brother-in-law, whose testimony is desired?"

"I do not know," he replied. McQuade is a curb broker.

"That completes your daily dozen," said Referee Coffin. "Please appear at the next hearing."

FAVORS VOTING MACHINES.

Justice Spiegelberg Says They Would Prevent Ballot Box Stuffing.

The installation of voting machines to prevent fraud at elections was advocated yesterday by Municipal Court Justice Frederick W. Spiegelberg in a speech at a reception to the Republican and independent judiciary candidates at the Women's National Republican Club, 38 West Thirty-ninth Street.

"The use of such machines, the practicability of which has been fully demonstrated in other cities, would be one sure method of eliminating error and fraud in elections," Justice Spiegelberg said. "The day of ballot box stuffing would pass with the installation of these machines. Legislation has been passed to compel their adoption, but Tammany Hall has thus far succeeded in withholding the necessary appropriation."

type was the most economical that could be built.

Mr. Matthews said that many of the individuals who bought the low-priced houses immediately increased rents, and that in the old-type houses the courts allowed $6 a room. On this basis owners were receiving 30 per cent. on the money invested, or 14 per cent. gross return on the rental value. These properties have gone up 100 per cent. in value, he added.

"So that even $6 on the present value gives the owner a generous return?" asked Commissioner Shientag.

"Every landlord is getting a generous return," replied the witness. "Landlords today get what they have the nerve to ask for."

The builder who said that landlords building under the tax exemption laws were charging more than was necessary and that they could build to rent for $10 a room was John P. Campbell, of 164 West 103th Street. Mr. Campbell showed the commission plans and specifications of the building he recently completed at Woodycrest Avenue and 162d Street at a cost of $238,000. He said the apartments could be rented at $10 a room and would give an 8 per cent. return and about $200 would remain over. Asked by Commissioner Shientag what the apartments were renting for he said at the rate of $20 a room. He was asked to explain and he replied that he did not control the rents.

Other Landlords Getting More.

"Flats not as good as these in the same neighborhood are renting for $25 a room," declared Mr. Campbell. "In fact some of the other houses do not cost as much to build." He blamed housing conditions largely on the labor unions which restricted the number of apprentices.

Professor Samuel McCune Lindsay, who appeared before the commission last Wednesday, was recalled at the request of counsel for the Real Estate Board and he declared that he wished to correct the published report that he had said there should be a surplus of tenants in order that a reasonable bargaining power might exist.

"I intended to say that there should be a surplus of housing or apartments or buildings in order that the tenants might have a reasonable bargaining power or might have their bargaining power strengthened," he testified.

Henry Stoddard, counsel to the Real Estate Board, told the witness he had been quoted as saying the 1920 emergency was but a "state of mind." "I think you said that, Mr. Stoddard," remarked Dr. Lindsay.

"You led me somewhat into it," said the lawyer with a smile. When asked what he did say Professor Lindsay said the 1920 situation was a psychological condition bordering on panic—a buyers' strike—of which many landlords took advantage. He did not doubt there was an emergency, continued the witness, but had not been able to determine its exact character. He had not meant to imply that the emergency was imaginary. He believed it was real though largely psychological and that at the present time the emergency for a certain class still continued.

What One Agent Did.

Victor M. Earle of Earle & Calhoun, real estate agents, who followed Dr. Lindsay, also asserted that the 1920 situation was "a state of mind brought about by the newspapers and by propaganda," and admitted he had taken advantage of the "state of mind" by charging $2,400 for an apartment that he rented for $1,900 to the old tenant. The $1,900 was a 20 per cent. increase over the previous rent, and he tacked on an additional $500, he testified, "just to see what I could do."

The new tenant appeared to be eager to get the apartment at the higher figure, according to the witness, and to the old tenant it appeared high at $1,900. With the woman who took the apartment at $2,400 it was not a question of what it was worth, he asserted, but "a state of mind."

"Do you think you should have taken advantage of that state of mind?" asked Commissioner Shientag.

"Yes, because the other fellow in the same boat would have done the same thing," replied Earle.

"Do you thing the state of mind has passed?" asked Mr. Shientag.

"I think it has," was the reply. "I think the tenants now are educated to a great extent and I think the landlords have learned a lesson that they should not be overgrasping. I think the tenants know the value of apartments more than they did."

Rents Still Going Up.

Jacob Leitner, a member of the Mortgage Committee of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company testified that his organization was not placing loans on property where rents were below $17 a room. He asserted that owners of new houses were charging high rents for fear of a slump and did not want to jeopardize their holdings. It was his opinion that the rent laws should be extended for three years and that the days of cheaper rent would not come before then, if they came at all. Rents are still going up, he told the committee.

Edwin H. Fenstermacher of 321 St. Nicholas Avenue testified that after the tenants in the house in which he lives had succeeded in having rents reduced by a court fight from $115 for an apartment to $95 the property had been sold several times and the present landlord had decided not to rent to white families. Three colored families are in the house now, he declared, paying $150 for a six-room apartment. The present tenants attempted to have the owners rent the vacant apartments to white families who were willing to pay higher prices, but were met with a refusal. The renting agent informed him that he would not show the apartments to white families but would only rent to colored people in order to force the white families out. If the owner is successful the entire neighborhood will be affected, Fenstermacher said.

Dr. Frank J. Monaghan, Health Commissioner, testified the housing situation was still of serious moment. He asserted that the increase in population in the last three years had not been covered by the increased housing accommodations. The situation particularly affected the "white collar" worker whose wages had not gone up in proportion to the increased cost of commodities.

The Infant Mortality Rate.

Dr. Monaghan said that the decline in the infant mortality statistics despite the congestion was explained by the intensive work of the Health Department and that the figures would be lowered if housing conditions were better.

Dr. J. L. Blumenthal, in charge of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the Health Department, said that present housing conditions would be reflected in the physical condition of children five and ten years from today; that the children living today under congested conditions would be in poor health when they grow up. The increase in malnutrition, he said, was due to the war and to the housing conditions it created and especially to the high cost of food.

Ferdinand Q. Morton, counsel to the Municipal Civil Service Commission, said that half the colored families in Harlem kept lodgers, a condition which he characterized as a menace to public morals and a condition that caused thoughtful members of his race to look forward to the future with apprehension. In one square mile in Harlem there is a population of 200,000 negroes, he said. Banks, according to Mr. Morton, are not lending money on property occupied by negroes, and he denounced this condition as an outrage, especially since such properties paid higher incomes.

John H. Hallock, a renting agent, whose firm has been on the east side for 100 years, told an impressive story of east side conditions and said that of the 12,000 apartments he controlled only half a dozen were vacant.

However, as President of the Good Samaritan Dispensary at Essex and Broome Streets, he had found that there were 5,000 fewer consultations in 1922 than the previous year, asserting that health conditions had not grown worse. Crowding, he added, was as great as ever.

Questioned by counsel for the Real Estate Board, the witness testified that "frankly conditions are pretty bad"; that there was more congestion on the east side than three years ago because of lack of apartments. The apartments controlled by him rent for as low as $2.87 a month per room. He said the rent laws should be extended as tenants could not get along without them, but he suggested that the functioning of the law be taken out of the hands of the Municipal Courts, "as there is too much politics," and placed in the hands of a non-partisan board.

Stewart Browne Heard From.

I. Montefiore Levy, counsel to the Greater New York Taxpayers' Association, assailed the "separation of rich from the poor" in the suggested modification of the rent laws. It was his opinion that if the laws were lapsed with regard to high-priced apartments the cost of such apartments would rise considerably.

Stewart Browne, President of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, in reply to a question, said that if the laws were allowed to lapse a large proportion of the landlords who were profiteers would take advantage of the situation. He asserted that the death rate on the east side, with its congested homes, was no greater than that of Riverside Drive. He declared that every clause of his recently exploited "Ironclad" lease was the result of "the maladministration of justice in the courts."

Land Bank's Offer Is Ignored.

Charles O'Connor Hennessy, President of the Franklin Society for Home Building and Savings, explained the workings of the State Land Bank which he described as a perfect piece of machinery to make loans for housing purposes. The Land Bank consists of fifty-six savings and loan associations in the State with total resources of $70,000,000, selling its bonds to municipalities and lending the money to home builders. Except for Newburgh the municipalities of the State have not taken advantage of the bank's facilities, he said. Newburgh bought $110,000 of the bank's bonds and the money immediately went back to the city of Newburgh through the Newburgh Savings and Loan Association, which advanced money to home builders.

When he and an official of the Land Bank appeared before the members of the Sinking Fund several years ago, when the housing crisis was just as bad as it is today, said Mr. Hennessy, the Land Bank agreed that every dollar of the Sinking Fund's money placed in the bank's bonds would be loaned out to citizens of New York for building or purchasing homes but they had not been able to impress the members of the Sinking Fund. He did not know why, but had been informed by Mayor Hylan that he (the Mayor) had followed the advice of the City Chamberlain. The Controller, he added, was also opposed to it at the time because the city had difficulty in borrowing money for its own use. The only city official who favored it, according to the witness, was F. H. LaGuardia, former President of the Board of Aldermen.

Mr. Hennessy's testimony was supported by that of David B. Hutton, Managing Director of the Land Bank, who followed.

The committee adjourned sine die. Further hearings may be held in some of the other boroughs.

BOY OF 6 BURNED TO DEATH IN BED

INSANE, PHYSICIAN SAYS

Woman Alleged to Have Fled With Baby in Arms After Locking Doors of Blazing Room.

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., Oct. 19.—Mrs. John Vargo was arrested here today on a charge of murder by Detective Michael Muska in connection with the burning to death in bed last night of her son, Joseph, 6, at the Vargo home, 447 Lawrence Street. Muska alleged the woman soaked the child's clothing and bed clothing in kerosene and then set fire to the bed, after which she locked the doors and left the house.

City Physician John V. Smith examined Mrs. Vargo today and pronounced her insane. She is being held in the city jail.

Alexander Kalnar of Woodbridge told police the woman met him in that town, to which she walked last night with her nine-months-old baby in her arms. He said she told him she had burned her son to death. She was held by the Woodbridge police and brought back here today.

Muska said the woman made two efforts to burn her son to death yesterday, but that the first attempt failed when a playmate of her son discovered smoke coming from the window and notified neighbors, who extinguished the flames. The playmate, Mary Czinkata, 6, also discovered the flames the second time, but could find no one to aid her. She was banging at the door when a passer-by saw her and notified the police, who found the charred body of Joseph, partly clothed, in bed in a room the doors of which had been locked.

Muska said the woman told him she left the house after setting fire to the bed-clothing in order to save her life and that of her baby, but that she could give no reason for desiring the death of the other child.

proved to be in fine form. Five messages filtered through Mrs. Stewart's hands—which moved faster than the onlookers' eyes—and the medium went into a highly complacent state. On the fifth test, again in the editorial offices, "Effie" was stubborn and nothing happened.

"At the first sitting," said Mr. Bird yesterday, "we knew how many cards we had. We had exactly forty-nine. After she left that day we proceeded to count the cards. We had only forty-four, counting in tattered bits of cards which Mrs. Stewart had torn up. She tore those cards because they were soiled by the rose petals.

In order that there might be no mistake we weighed the fragments of cards and the result proved that five cards, in addition to the torn ones, were missing from the forty-nine.

"In the second seance we went in with the knowledge that substitution was to be practiced, so we marked the new set of cards to be used on that occasion. We put a tiny pin prick in the corners of the cards on one side, varying the corners so as to prevent ready detection. Mrs. Stewart had asked that the cards at the second test be taken from among the ones she had used on the first occasion. She explained that the first cards had been impregnated with magnetic influence.

Marked Cards Interest Her.

"I handed her the marked cards with the markings turned down. She proved to be a good psychologist, however, and turned the cards upward on the table and examined them. She said that she was merely making sure that the cards were not soiled. I believe that she saw the pin pricks. At any rate she got no writings.

"For the third sitting we used strippers on the cards. That is, we sent the cards out to a stationer and he trimmed down the edges. This made the cards slightly shorter than they were at the first session. We used the short cards at the fourth session, the one at Bayside, but when we counted the cards we found the number the same after the receipt of the messages as at the start of the sitting.

"When we got back to the office we gauged the cards bearing the messages. We found, with the aid of a micrometer, that these cards were 125-10,000 of an inch in thickness. Our cards were only 122-10,000ths of an inch in thickness. In addition we put all the cards together and we found the written 'spirit' cards were longer than the rest. In addition, they were not of the same shade of white, the written cards having a creamy hue. We consider that these three items prove conclusively that Mrs. Stewart substituted the cards."

Mr. Bird was asked how she had managed to shift the cards in the presence of the investigators. He admitted that no one had actually detected her, but that Dr. Prince had seen an opportunity for her to make the substitution and had whispered to his neighbor, "Now, we are going to get some writing."

"We did not search Mrs. Stewart at every sitting," he continued, "although we searched her on the first visit and at Bayside when she had the writings. Mrs. Wayburn and her daughter searched the medium that day. After the searching was in progress and while Mrs. Stewart was not completely dressed she stepped alone into an adjoining room. She may then have shifted her prepared cards from some inaccessible place on her person to a spot where she could readily get at them.

The Overcoat Enters the Case.

"At any rate, as soon as she stepped out on the lawn she complained of feeling chilly. She borrowed the overcoat of a NEW YORK TIMES reporter and, we believe, slipped the prepared cards into one of the pockets while she was putting the coat on. No, this was not seen, but the overcoat, a German product, had outside pockets big enough to swallow the Woolworth Building. You know, magicians claim, and rightly, too, that the hand is quicker than the eye.

"We believe that the shift from the pocket to the pack came when the medium managed to get her hands into what you might call a 'blind spot.' This would be on an angle—an unseen angle—where her hands momentarily would be invisible to the onlookers."

Mr. Bird was asked if the scientists had come to any conclusion about the fluid used in getting the heliotrope and pink messages. He said that he had put in an hour and a half yesterday with his eye glued to a microscope studying the writing. He said that he had come to the conclusion that the messages were all penned with the same writing instrument, but had not yet decided on the identity of the fluid.

Mr. Bird announced that two other tests were in preparation. The first may take place early in November with Mrs. Elizabeth Allen Tomson of Chicago as the subject, and the second is to try out the psychic powers of a young Italian boy of this city. Mrs. Tomson's forte, said Mr. Bird, consisted of enclosing herself in a cabinet and directing a parade of ghosts around the room. The Italian boy, securely tied up, goes into a cabinet, said Mr. Bird, but all he can do is to summon up weird noises

NEW Y. M. C. A. 'TEST' STIRS BRYAN'S IRE

He Declares Acceptance of Non-Church Members Would Wreck the Organization.

OTHERS ASK 'LIBERALIZING'

Rockefeller Agent Presents Plan to Eliminate Duplication of Work and Control Expenditures.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 19.—William J. Bryan reappeared at the Constitutional Convention of the Y. M. C. A. today and supported opponents to the so-called Slade resolution, proposed as a new "test" for membership.

The resolution, which would eliminate reference to the Scriptures and to Jesus Christ as Divine, and calls for a simple declaration of purpose to serve Christ rather than membership in an evangelical church, is the principal subject before the 400 delegates here to adopt a constitution.

Mr. Bryan is not a delegate to the convention, although he said he had been a Y. M. C. A. member for forty years, and he has not been invited to address the gathering.

While the "membership test" committee was thrashing out the problem today, Mr. Bryan issued a written statement, declaring that if the Y. M. C. A. lowers its bars to admit to active membership young men who are not members of an evangelical church, the organization will be wrecked. A dozen speakers pleaded before the committee for the "liberalizing" of the active membership requirement.

"The real issue is whether the Bible is true or false," Mr. Bryan's statement says, in part. "For over twenty years those who do not accept the Bible as true—that is, those who assume the right to reject any part they choose—have been trying to do away with the evangelical test. . . . They would put the association under the control of so-called Christians, who strip Christ of his divinity and reduce Him to the stature of a man; who deny the Virgin birth of the Saviour, His atoning mission and His bodily resurrection.

"The issue is a very simple one, viz., whether the Y. M. C. A. is to continue to be a spiritual force, such as it has been from the beginning, or become merely a social club where young men can secure physical training and a bath for a nominal membership fee—nominal because Christians have erected and equipped the Y. M. C. A. buildings."

J. W. McKinney of Tennessee was the principal defender of the evangelical test before the committee. He, too, implied that the demand for "liberalizing" of the test arose from a desire to appease the "moneyed interests." He found a stanch supporter in M. A. Wolfe of Kansas City.

Other speakers included Frank H. Burt of Chicago, G. W. Birks of Montreal, J. Edward Sproul of Ridgeville, N. J., and Walter L. Hervey, educational director for the West Side Y. M. C. A. of New York City.

A plan of reorganization which seeks to fix responsibilities, to eliminate duplication of work and obtain Democratic control of agencies and expenditures was presented by Mark M. Jones, economist and efficiency expert employed by John D. Rockefeller Jr. a year and a half ago to make a study of the Y. M. C. A. at the request of the organization.

Of each dollar given to the Y. M. C. A., Mr. Jones said, only about 60 cents was spent to pay for the services for which it was given. Twenty-one cents out of each dollar, he said, went to pay for collection charges, and 18½ cents more for duplication of effort and unnecessary overlapping.

LIMBURG ASSAILS MURPHY.

Says Control Over Courts Must Be Wrested From Tammany.

A plea of the voters of the city to take the alleged control of the courts from Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, and Thomas F. Foley, was made last night by Herbert R. Limburg, Republican and independent candidate for Justice of the Supreme Court, in a speech at the clubhouse of the Fifteenth Assembly District Republican Club, 1,041 Madison Avenue.

"All sides agree upon what the issue is this year," Mr. Limburg said. "It is whether our Supreme Court shall be turned over to Murphy and Foley. Even Murphy and Foley will agree that this is the issue. They think that the Supreme Court belongs to them. We think it does not. They think that they are entitled to select our Judges. We think this is the duty of the electorate.

"The delays in the trial of cases have become almost a public scandal. An ordinary action cannot be reached for trial within less than three years after it has been stated. Let us bring the calendars of this court up to date. Let us bring the court back to the high repute which it deserves. Let us see to it that the office of Justice of the Supreme Court is in everyone's mind synonomous with honor, independence and learning."

HYLAN RECEIVES A CALLER.

Asks M. Samuel Stern About Progress of School Building.

The rule of "no visitors" for Mayor John F. Hylan until he is further on the road to recovery was broken yesterday to permit M. Samuel Stern, a member of the Board of Education, to call on him for a few minutes. The exception was due to the Mayor's anxiety to learn what was being done during his illness to construct new school buildings.

Dr. John A. Ferguson, the Mayor's family physician, is a member of the Board of Education and, like Mr. Stern, a member of its Committee on Sites and Buildings. During the last few days the Mayor has been pressing Dr. Ferguson for more detailed information, and the latter finally promised to bring in Mr. Stern for a brief discussion. Dr. Ferguson took Mr. Stern with him on his visit to the Mayor at his home, 950 Bushwick Avenue, Brooklyn, in the afternoon. Both assured the Mayor that school construction was proceeding satisfactorily in his absence. The Mayor thanked them, saying that he wished everything possible done to provide adequate facilities for the children.

The Mayor showed considerable improvement yesterday. His temperature, pulse and respiration were normal, and the attack of nervous indigestion, which brought on a slight relapse earlier in the week, had almost subsided.

BARS SUNDAY AIR CARNIVAL.

Secretary of War Weeks Acts on Protest of Brooklyn Churches.

Acting on the protest filed with him several days ago by the Brooklyn Federation of Churches, Secretary of War Weeks yesterday notified Major William N. Hensley, commandant of Mitchel Field near Garden City, L. I., that the aerial carnival for the benefit of the Army Relief Society could not be held tomorrow. The federation objected army manoeuvres being held on a Sunday.

"That's fine; now we can all go and see it," said the Rev. Frederick Gordon, Executive Secretary of the federation, when told that the Secretary of War had heeded the protest.

Major Hensley, who had arranged to have more than 100 airplanes from all parts of the United States at Mitchel Field for the event, was greatly disappointed over the change. He said he had picked Sunday as the day when the greatest number of people were in a position to attend. The meet will be held next Saturday afternoon.

BACKS METROPOLITAN ART

He Holds That the Rembrandts There Are Among the Finest That Are Known.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Oct. 19.—Professor Martin of Leyden University, Curator of the Mauritshuis, The Hague picture gallery, who is well known in America, has refused until now to give me his opinion on the Rembrandt dispute raised by Professor John van Dyke, preferring to wait until the arrival of THE NEW YORK TIMES with more details of the van Dyke book than had been cabled here. This dispute, however, has not been taken seriously by art experts in Holland, who consider Professor van Dyke's contentions ridiculous.

After having read the various articles in THE TIMES Professor Martin said:

"I cannot understand how it is possible for anybody to pronounce such opinions, when the best European experts agree that this attempt to depreciate many wonderful works by Rembrandt is vain. I quite agree with Sir Claude Phillips, the great English art critic, director of the Wallace Collection, that such an assertion as van Dyke's hardly merits serious discussion. From the point of view of all earnest students of art and art history, van Dyke's opinions are negligible. He is not a man who ever before gave any proof of being a real connoisseur, and his book proves that he is unable to distinguish one master from another.

"Nevertheless, there are many art lovers and collectors who might be impressed by van Dyke's ideas. This is the reason why I am willing to discuss the matter.

"We know from history that Rembrandt worked hard for about forty years. If one sees his 'School of Anatomy' (1632), his huge 'Night Watch' (1642), his 'Group of Drapers' (1662), one knows at once that even a genius like Rembrandt before he could achieve any of these masterpieces must have painted a whole series of works in order to proceed from his first period to his second, and from this to his last broad style.

"From long, earnest researches we know exactly the development of Rembrandt's style. Many of his works are signed and dated; of several we have sketches, and many of his works are mentioned in lists of pictures belonging to collectors of the period.

"Of course, he had pupils and imitators. The task of Rembrandt critics has always been to challenge imitations, and critics have often done work along these lines. But this is the great difference between the work of real connoisseurs and Van Dyke, namely, that the former's knowledge of the real Rembrandt is so well founded that they never attack genuine works, which show in their conception, as in every stroke of the painting, Rembrandt's own hand. Why should Rembrandt's 'Old Woman Cutting Her Nails' be the work of another artist? In the first place, every art critic, whether he is a Rembrandt student or not, will see that this work is a masterpiece of the first rank. The manner of painting is that of a genius, and the artist who undertook a composition with such a wonderful light effect, such unsurpassed, such powerful brushwork, must have been one of the greatest of painters.

"As to Nicholas Maes, to whom Van Dyke attributes this masterpiece, we know exactly how he painted and what he was able to undertake. If we survey Maes's works we find some wonderful interiors, but nowhere any work worthy of being compared with Rembrandt's aforesaid masterpiece, a picture of the highest quality Rembrandt ever produced.

"I have seen most of the works now at the Metropolitan Museum when they were in Europe, and again when they were in New York, when I was visiting and lecturing in the United States in 1920, and I never got the impression that one of them was not by Rembrandt; on the contrary, the New York pictures belong among the finest and most impressive works by Rembrandt.

"The most curious of all the suggestions is that he takes the two Widener Rembrandts for works by Vermeer, for between no works is there more difference than between those of Vermeer and Rembrandt.

"I trust that Professor Van Dyke's book will not make any impression upon the American public, and that the many wonderful genuine Rembrandts in many public and private American collections, while speaking to the hearts of Americans by their beauty, will soon dissipate the remembrance of this dissonant utterance in serious publications on the greatest painter of Holland and Northern Europe."

SAFETY BOARD IS FORMED.

New Organization Aims to Reduce Fatalities in This City.

The Co-operative Board of Safety for the City of New York, which aims to bring about a decrease in the loss of life and money through fire, accident and crime, yesterday held its first formal meeting at the Sixth Municipal Court, 155 East Eighty-eighth Street. Twenty representatives of fire and casualty insurance firms were present. The election of officers and of a Board of Directors was held. Municipal Court Justice John R. Davies, who presided, was elected President. A committee was appointed to incorporate the board.

Public opinion on matters of safety, it was explained, will be crystallized by the board in a practical manner. The disposition to criticise public officials was decried as almost universal. On the other hand, members of the board declared that city officials as a rule have a disposition to pass the buck. When an application is made at one department for any kind of action there usually follows, it was said, a series of directions for making the application elsewhere, with the chances in favor of second and third directions for carrying the application still further. The board hopes to eliminate all this by bringing together in one body officials and representatives of the public, and thereby make efforts for public safety more efficient.

HELD ON SWINDLE CHARGE.

"John Mack" Accused of Mulcting Grocer on Fake Horse Race Bet.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 19.—Stylishly garbed, John Mack, 60 years old, known to the police as "Australian Jack," was arraigned before Judge William H. Smathers in the County Court at Mays Landing today on an indictment charging him with conspiracy to swindle Louis Adler, grocer and butcher of Haverstraw, N. Y., out of $30,000 by a fake horse race betting scheme here in 1922. Mack pleaded not guilty.

Judge Smathers fixed bail at $25,000. In the absence of a bondsman, Mack was committed to a cell in the county jail. It is stated that when Mack was arrested in New York he disclosed the names of men to whom he alleged he paid protection money for operating here in 1922. Frank Davis, alleged ring leader of the band which operated here, is also in the county jail, in default of $25,000 bail. Another complainant against the two is Louis Renner, a Grand Street merchant, who lost $30,000.

CALLS FORMER PREMIER'S PLAN 'VAIN IMAGINATION'

Judge Rutherford Comments on Lloyd George Proposal

"CONFERENCES USELESS"

Predicts Certain Relief for All Nations After Crisis

Commenting on the recent proposal of Mr. Lloyd George that the United States and Great Britain enter into an alliance to establish and maintain world peace, Judge Rutherford said:

"To believe that one can accomplish that which is an impossibility is a vain imagination. This is exactly the condition of the world today. Many imagine that the systems can be patched up and made desirable.

"A few years ago the cry was resounding through the earth: 'The great war will make the world safe for democracy.' How vain was that imagination is now apparent to all who think. Democracy is in a worse state of disintegration than at any time during the past hundred years, and is daily growing worse.

"Democracy means government by the people in the interest of the majority. Particularly since the great war government is by the profiteers and their allies in the interest of the minority. The condition goes from bad to worse. The nations are hopelessly in debt and the financial systems of many are already collapsed. Because of fear that has laid hold upon the ruling factors of the nations, they are madly preparing for another great war. Says Sir James Foster: 'It's enough to make angels weep, that after the greatest tragedy the world has ever known the nations should be showing their teeth more in 1923 than they did in 1913. International affairs are in a worse condition today than ten years ago.'

"Religiously speaking, the denominational church systems are raging upon each other. The modernists have repudiated God's Word, denied the great ransom-sacrifice of our Lord, deny his kingdom, and in turn teach evolution and other God-dishonoring doctrines. The fundamentalists cling to the Bible and earnestly contend for it. Both sides, however, are allied with the commercial and political powers of the present evil order.

To Save the World

Mr. Lloyd George proposes a combined movement of the churches, Catholic and Protestant, with a new display of power to save the world. What is your opinion of this suggestion? Judge Rutherford was asked.

"The desire of Mr. George for world peace is laudable, but it cannot be accomplished by the combined movement of the denominational churches, Catholic and Protestant. This proposed solution of the world's difficulties is a vain imagination. It is hardly necessary to say that Catholics and Protestants always have been at loggerheads and now there is a complete split in the Protestant denominations. It will be as difficult to bring about peace and harmony amongst the denominations as it would be for them to establish world peace and prosperity.

"The Protestant denominations are now fighting each other. One wing of the Protestant church calls itself Modernists, and this branch repudiates the Bible as God's inspired Word, denies the fall of man and the great redemptive sacrifice, denies the coming of Messiah's Kingdom, for which Jesus taught His disciples to pray, and in turn substitutes evolution of man and other like theories. The other wing of the Protestant church asserts its belief in the Bible, in the fall of man and the redemptive sacrifice, but shows insufficient faith in not relying upon the Lord. It seeks aid and strength from commercial and political powers to solve the present unsatisfactory conditions.

"Big business, big politicians and apostate clergy join together in announcing that they possess the wisdom and power to adjust the ills of mankind; that by means of compacts or leagues of nations or wordly conferences they can establish peace and prosperity and bring the desire of the people. This is a vain imagination, for Jehovah, referring to this time, through his prophet said: 'Associate yourselves, O ye people, and ye shall be broken in pieces; and give ear, all ye of far countries; gird yourselves, and ye shall be broken in pieces. Take counsel together, and it shall come to nought.'—Isaiah 8, 9, 10.

What Next?

"What, then, may we expect to follow this condition of fear, perplexity and distress of nations? The answer is found in the Scriptures, 'And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon. . . . to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty.' (Revelation 16:14, 16.) This is to be followed by the complete establishment of Messiah's kingdom of righteousness, which will cure the present ills of humankind and bring peace and prosperity to the people, the desire of all honest hearts. The whole creation groans and travails in pain, waiting for the Messianic kingdom, for the time of complete deliverance. It is at hand. Millions now living will never die. It behooves every one to inform himself about this important subject."

The great Battle of Armageddon is next. All Christendom will be involved. Hear Judge Rutherford in his thrilling and illuminating lecture at Madison Square Garden.

If you are unable to attend the lecture you will be interested in reading Judge Rutherford's book, "The Harp of God," a cloth-bound volume of 384 pages. # all nations marching to Armageddon

but—"millions now living will never die"

In a FREE LECTURE at the Madison Square Garden, Sunday, October 21, Judge Rutherford will prove by prophecy fulfilled and in course of fulfilment that the greatest crisis of the ages is upon the world; that all nations are mustering their forces for the great battle of Armageddon foretold by the prophets of God; that the Lord will cut short the terrible conflict and millions now living will never die.

A FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

President of the International Bible Students' Association and People's Pulpit Association, religious organizations serving the people without money and without price.

Secretary of War Weeks says: "The United States is preparing for war that would tax us to the utmost in man-power resources."

Lloyd George: "I am afraid that unless something intervenes there may be in the world again a catastrophe, but not like the last one. The next war may well destroy civilization unless something or somebody does something."

Viscount Grey: "I think it is certain that if there be another such war again civilization will never recover from it."

Sir Philip Gibbs: "No man, unless he is drunk with optimism, can deny that the world is very sick, and it may be a sickness unto death."

Fred B. Smith: "We are living in a kind of fool's paradise. Under the slogan of preparedness the militarists everywhere are again precipitating a deluge of war."

Judge Rutherford says: "The world faces a condition never before experienced. Fear has taken hold upon all classes of people because they see in a measure the things coming upon the earth. The nations are in distress and perplexity.

"THE WAR did not make the world safe for democracy. The very foundations of civilization are now shaken by revolution, labor strikes, official lawlessness, profiteers, bolshevism and anarchy. Both capital and labor are resorting to extreme measures. The common people have lost confidence in their leaders. The clergy have abandoned the Word of God and joined hands with big business and big politicians in an attempt to control the world; and these are opposed by radical forces.

"EUROPE is completely bankrupt, with her restless host of unemployed and discontents hourly increasing. Belligerent organizations are rapidly numbering their men and taking account of their strength. All contending forces are hastening to the great battle of Armageddon. (Revelation 16:16.) The disaster resulting is beyond the description of human words.

"BUT let the people take heart. The Lord will cut short the trouble, bring order out of chaos, establish peace and righteousness; and millions of people now living will become obedient to His order of righteousness and will live on earth forever in peace and happiness."

Great Throngs Have Heard the heart-cheering message of Judge Rutherford during the past few months in Europe and America. Royal Albert Hall, London, one of the world's largest assembling places, was packed out and 15,000 were turned away. At the Tacoma (Wash.) Stadium in August 25,000 listened to him. A week later he spoke in the Coliseum at Los Angeles to an audience of 35,000, and many other thousands were unable to reach the meeting place on account of insufficient transportation facilities.

NOTABLES WILL SEE MATCH RACE TODAY

SOCIETY WILL BE PRESENT

Government Officials, Army and Navy Officers and Foreign Diplomats Also to Witness Contest.

Notables from virtually all the professions will be in attendance at the $100,000 international race at Belmont Park this afternoon. Names familiar to millions are on the list of those who will be present. Three Governors, at least one member of the President's Cabinet, officers high in the army and navy, United States Senators, foreign diplomats, bankers, merchants, famous turfmen, notables from other branches of sport, society leaders and thousands of others will be among those present when Zev and Papyrus face the starter this afternoon.

The Governors for whom boxes have been reserved are Alfred E. Smith of New York, Albert E. Ritchie of Maryland and Edwin P. Morrow of Kentucky. The one Cabinet member listed to attend is Henry C. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture. A box has been reserved for Henry Getty Chilton, C. M. G., Chargé d'Affaires of the British Embassy at Washington. General John J. Pershing has announced that he will be unable to attend and he will be represented by Major Gen. John L. Hines, Deputy Chief of Staff. Major Gen. Robert L. Bullard and Rear Admiral C. P. Plunkett also will be present.

Sir Ashley Sparks, President of the Cunard Line, and Captain Sir James Charles, commanding the Aquitania, which carried Papyrus here, as well as the members of the Racing Commissions of Canada, New York State, Maryland and Kentucky, have accepted invitations. Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the United States Steel Corporation; Marshall Field, William Averell Harriman, Senator Elkins, Senator Edwards, W. K. Vanderbilt, Payne Whitney, H. P. Whitney, Richard Whitney, George D. Widener, Mortimer L. Schiff, Franklin Simon, D. Oppenheim, John S. Phipps and many other equally as well known have made reservations.

The hotels report that the demand for reservations for the week-end is far heavier than the normal run of business at this time of the year. The hotel officials again hesitated to ascribe this increased business to the race, but made it clear that doubtless the race had much to do with the increased demand for accommodations. It was reported that requests were heavy from Washington, Baltimore, from many points in Virginia, West Virginia and Ohio, as well as Pennsylvania and other near-by States. New England also will contribute its quota. For a canvass of the hotels located near the Grand Central Station showed that the request for reservations has been exceedingly heavy.

ZEV MAY PASS RECORD IN WINNINGS TODAY

With $174,936.34, Victory Would Put Him Ahead of Man o' War on United States List.

Should Zev win the international race this afternoon he will add the sum of $80,000 to the total of his winnings for the Rancocas Stable of Harry F. Sinclair, which will place him at the head of the American list of winning horses of all time and will place him fourth in the list of the money-winning horses of the world. As he has stake engagements in other races this year and may race as a four-year-old, the opportunity is his to top all records and go down in turf history as the greatest money winner in the world.

Zev already has won a total of $174,936.34, more than $150,000 of which has come this season as a three-year-old. By taking the winner's share this afternoon his total will amount to $254,936.34. This is $5,471 more, in round figures, than the total won by Man o' War before he was retired to the stud.

Kizer, the French horse, now heads the world's list with a total of $330,000 and is followed by the English horse Gainsborough with $291,270. Another English horse, Donovan, follows with $277,-215. Zev and Man o' War are followed by Exterminator, the iron horse, which is still in training. Only five other horses in history have won more than $200,000—four English and one French.

ZEV IS FAVORITE IN PARIS.

Odds Are 5 to 8 Among American, English and French Turf Followers.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, Oct. 19.—Zev is a 5 to 8 favorite here over Papyrus, and there is big betting among American, English and French turf followers everywhere.

French bettors generally favor the American entry, but there are plenty of pounds sterling backing the Derby winner. The American jockeys here, Guy A. Garner, Matt McGee, Frank O'Neill, Frank Keogh and Walter Miller, are solidly behind Sande, whom they believe is sure winner, and American horse owners in France are reported to have backed Zev heavily.

ZEV WILL BE READY, HILDRETH PREDICTS

Trainer Pleased at Selection—Jarvis Says Papyrus Has Met Many Obstacles.

Two of the greatest trainers in their respective countries will saddle the contestants in this afternoon's international race. Both have been placed in difficult positions in bringing their charges to the post. Basil Jarvis has been through the strain of bringing Papyrus across the ocean and reconditioning him in strange surroundings. Samuel C. Hildreth has had to prepare Zev after his accident in the Lawrence Realization, in which he lost a part of one of his frogs.

Hildreth went to Empire City yesterday afternoon for a little relaxation after the strenuous morning at Belmont Park. After the official statement of the Jockey Club, announcing Zev's selection, he appeared greatly pleased.

"Zev will go to the post ready for his race," said the clever trainer for the Rancocas Stable. "He has been going along steadily in all his work as I had planned for him. It was not necessary to let up in his training after his accident, and he has done everything I have asked of him. He is all right and showed it on the track this morning. The time speaks for itself. Zev is a great colt and I believe that he will show it tomorrow."

Basil Jarvis, trainer of Papyrus, yesterday appeared much more optimistic than a week ago after Papyrus pulled up a trifle lame. "There is not much that I can say about the race except that we have done everything possible to get Papyrus ready. We have encountered serious obstacles—first, the storm coming over, then the heat when we arrived. After that, as you know, Papyrus became sore from the hard track and a little lame after the work on Tuesday. Dr. Fride-Jones has done wonders—I don't know how he did it. I cannot make any predictions, but of course we hope to win. It has been a hard strain and we will be glad when it is over, although everybody has been wonderfully kind to us."

Jarvis stated that the skin trouble affecting Zev was, in his opinion, not sufficient to injure his racing ability. He intimated that if the Jockey Club had decided to substitute My Own, an objection would have come from him, inasmuch as the use of an alternate was provided for only if the principal was unquestionably disqualified.

ZEV AND PAPYRUS EQUAL IN BETTING

Empire City Bookmakers Resume Laying of Odds After Hearing Zev Will Start.

LITTLE SPECULATION DONE

Lack of Wagers on Eve of Race Due to Closing of Many Future Books.

Zev and Papyrus were quoted at even money and take your pick at the Empire City track yesterday afternoon. That is, those were the figures quoted after it was officially announced that Zev would start. Previous to that bookmakers had refused to quote odds on the race because of the uncertainty as to whether Zev or My Own would represent America in the international contest at Belmont Park today. It was not learned until late in the afternoon that the Jockey Club committee had named Zev and consequently there was little speculation.

This lack of betting on the eve of the race was also affected by the fact that the majority of the bookmakers had closed their future books on the previous day and announced that they would not accept any more wagers until today. There was a general feeling of satisfaction over the naming of Zev at the track, chiefly because a great deal of future betting had been done on the race with the understanding that it would be between Zev and Papyrus and the Rancocas colt's failure to start would have resulted in a confusing situation.

With Zev chosen and a muddy track in prospect it would not be surprising to see the odds on the American horse shorten again today. He is an established mud runner and it was the general belief at the track that his choice had been based to some extent on the rainy weather.

Muddy Track May Affect Papyrus.

Many of those who had been unable to see anything but Papyrus on the previous day admitted that the heavy rain might react in favor of the American colt. Of course, this is not a foregone conclusion, for even Papyrus's own trainer and rider cannot say how he will take to a heavy dirt track until they see him in action today. He ran well on a heavy turf track in the Duke of York Stakes, but heavy turf and mud are not the same, and if the going at Belmont is deep this afternoon no one can say for sure what affect it will have on the English horse's chance.

What followers of the turf in this country do know is that Zev revels in heavy going and that the brown son of the Finn-Miss Kearney will be sure to show at his best on a muddy track. It is not at all certain, of course, that the track will be heavy. A clear day would dry it out quickly, even if it was soaked the night before.

No matter what happens, it is improbable that the odds on Zev will ever be as short or those on Papyrus as long as they were ten days ago. Before the English colt came through with two extremely impressive workouts it was possible to get almost any sort of odds against him up to 3 to 1, but since that time they have shortened steadily, until at one time he was favored to win over Zev.

Zev, on the other hand, was an almost prohibitive favorite from the time he was first chosen by the Jockey Club committee until the past week, when the trend toward Papyrus set in.

Even Money Considered Right Odds.

Those whose opinion on such subjects should carry weight were inclined to feel yesterday that even money about either horse was just about as the odds should be. They pointed out that Papyrus was an English Derby winner and that poor horses rarely won that event; also that this was not an exceptionally good year for three-year-olds in this country and that Zev and My Own stood out chiefly because the others were a bad lot.

The English horse will be running on a track which is comparatively new to him and in strong footing, but he is said to be in perfect condition for the test.

About Zev's condition, however, there is some question, so that these facts offset each other and leave the outcome more of a toss-up than ever.

Sam Hildreth said at Empire yesterday that Papyrus looked to be a good colt, but that he had a good colt, too, and believed that he would win. Basil Jarvis, naturally, believes that Papyrus will win.

Sande, who will ride Zev, says that the brown colt has never failed when called on. Donoghue, the English jockey, says that Papyrus has done everything he ever asked of him. That makes it as even a bet as could be.

BELMONT PARK BEST TRACK IN COUNTRY

Burned Down During War, Plant Is Now Most Complete and Biggest in America.

Belmont Park, the home of the Westchester Racing Association, is the most complete racing plant in America and the only one with a capacity sufficient to handle the international race. The course, which fronts on Hempstead Avenue, is in the township of that name and is located in both the counties of Nassau and Queens, twenty miles from Manhattan. When the Morris brothers decided to cut up Morris Park for residential purposes the Westchester management, which had a lease of the property, was forced to look elsewhere for a racing home. The present property, comprising about 700 acres, was acquired.

The estate was the old Manice estate, with its famous gardens and wonderful trees, the mansion of which is now the home of the Turf and Field Club. The present plant was laid out with the advice of H. W. F. A. Williams, one of the managers of Sandown Park in England, and has many of the characteristics of that famous course. The plant was constructed at an initial cost of $2,500,000.

Fire destroyed the original grand stand during the war and a new stand was built and other improvements made at a cost of $830,000, the old field stand having been moved up and joined to the new stand. The present grand stand has a seating capacity of nearly 18,000.

There are two tracks and a steeplechase course. The main track in front of the grand stand is an oval of one and one-half miles, with two chutes. The longer of the latter gives a straight-away of three-quarters of a mile and is called the Futurity course. Within the main track is the steeplechase course with brush jumps, two of them being Liverpool jumps and one a water jump. The training track is a mile oval.

The soil at Belmont Park is a sandy loam, mostly all of the surfacing of the track having been brought there for the purpose, although an excellent pocket has been located on the property. All of the soil of the track has been screened. The surface of the main track has received unceasing attention during the last few weeks and it is now in the best condition in its history. Leading horsemen pronounce it the best track in America.

MY OWN IS TIMED OVER 1 1-4 M. IN 2:11

GRAYSON NOT NOTIFIED

Says He Received No Word From Jockey Club as to Final Selection of Zev.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, owner of My Own, the sensational three-year-old which was shipped by special train from the Laurel race track to Belmont Park today at the urgent request of the Jockey Club Committee, left Washington tonight for New York City to witness the $100,000 international race in which Harry F. Sinclair's Zev has been chosen to start against Papyrus tomorrow.

When informed tonight by a representative of THE NEW YORK TIMES that Major Belmont, after inspecting Zev this afternoon, had said that Zev would run tomorrow, and asked to comment on that decision, Admiral Grayson said:

"There is little I care to say about the matter. So far as any decision has been reached regarding the American contender to be sent against Papyrus tomorrow, I know nothing whatever beyond what has been brought to my knowledge through the kindness of newspaper men. I have not received a word from the Jockey Club Committee. They have not notified me of any decisions reached. Only the thoughtfulness of the newspapers has brought me information.

Talks Over Phone With Trainer.

"I hope that the Jockey Club Committee will not have occasion to regret its reported decision to run Zev."

Admiral Grayson talked this evening by long distance telephone with W. P. Burch, his trainer, who informed him of the safe arrival of My Own at Belmont Park.

"How did My Own stand the trip from Laurel to Belmont Park?" Admiral Grayson was asked.

"Perfectly fine," said the Admiral, "despite the accident at Baltimore in which I stood a chance to lose my $150,000 horse trying to accommodate the Jockey Club Committee. My trainer, W. P. Burch, has informed me that My Own arrived at Belmont Park in the pink of condition, and told me that My Own can beat any race horse in the world." The accident referred to occurred at Baltimore when the driving wheel came off the engine.

"If called upon at the last minute will My Own be ready to go against Papyrus?" the Admiral was asked.

"My Own will be ready, if ever called upon," replied Admiral Grayson.

Unable to Hold My Own Back.

Before leaving Laurel this morning My Own received a workout. It was not intended that the three-year-old should try for speed in this workout, which was intended only for exercise. The instructions were to hold My Own so that he would not cover the mile and a quarter distance in less than 2:15.

The track was muddy and a pouring rain falling at the time. The jockey was unable to hold My Own back and the horse covered the mile and a quarter in 2:11, with a hard pull by the jockey. This time is not fast for My Own, but the showing was good considering the heavy track and the fact that the jockey was trying to put the horse through the exercise in 2:15, but was unable to hold My Own back.

Horsemen at Laurel believe that My Own is not to have an opportunity to show his mettle against Papyrus, pointing to the fact that Admiral Grayson's sensational three-year-old has just begun to run. In no race that My Own has run this year has he ever been forced to extend himself.

"My Own," said Admiral Grayson, "has never been beaten since he began to learn to race, and is still only just learning."

British Experts Now Believe Papyrus Will Be the Victor

LONDON, Oct. 19.—News concerning Papyrus and his steady improvement in condition and the opinions of experts have been followed here with the greatest eagerness. There indeed is little betting, for there is lack of facilities for any except private wagers. But confidence in the showing the Derby winner will display tomorrow has steadily increased and there would be great disappointment here if he does not succeed in winning the first big international horse race.

Statements that Zev would be unable to run, which were published here this afternoon, were received with consternation. The British public, now that the match has gone so far and Papyrus has stood all the discomforts of an Atlantic voyage, wants to see him run against the best horse America can produce. It would please no one here if, at the last moment, even so good a colt as My Own was put in.

ZEV PRONOUNCED FIT, WILL RACE PAPYRUS

out at $22 per seat and all of the boxes have been disposed of, some grand stand seats at $11 remained last night, and these will be on sale at the track this afternoon as long as they last. General admission to the lawns and paddock is $5, and there is no limit to the number of these tickets. Admission to the infield will be $1.50, and patrons will pass through a special entrance.

There was little betting on the result of the race yesterday among the regular layers of odds, due to the fact that the future books on the race were closed on Thursday, and also to the many wild rumors in circulation through the day. In the matter of those bets that were recorded it was a case of even money and take your choice. The regular books on the race will not open until this afternoon at the track.

Big Race at About 3:45.

It was announced yesterday that the racing will start at 2:15 P. M. instead of the usual hour of 2:30 in order that the crowds may be handled easily after the conclusion of the day's racing. This will put forward the hour of the international race, which will be fourth on the program, to about 3:45 P. M. This advancing of the program will necessitate an earlier start by patrons in order to avoid congestion on the railroad and the highways. The first race train will leave the Pennsylvania Station at 11 A. M. and others will leave as fast as filled up to 2:26 P. M.

Both colts will come to the line fit for their great race, in which each will carry 126 pounds. They had their final preparations yesterday morning, Zev going half a mile, as already stated, while Papyrus had an easy gallop of six furlongs. Zev will be saddled in the paddock by Samuel C. Hildreth, one of the greatest of the American trainers, and Earl H. Sande will have the mount. Papyrus will be sent into the parade to the post by Basil Jarvis, who has trained the Derby winner for all his races. The Epsom Derby winner will be ridden by Steve Donoghue, England's greatest jockey.

When the colts come back to the stand the owner of the winner or his representative will be presented with the International Challenge Cup, a gold trophy about twelve inches high and valued at $5,000, presented by the Jockey Club as a perpetual challenge cup for races among horses of all countries. The presentation will be made by General John L. Hines, Deputy Chief of Staff, in the absence of General John J. Pershing, who is unable to be present.

Cloudy and Cooler Today.

Continued heavy rain, while it will make the going heavy, will not affect the two contenders. Zev is a mud horse, and Jarvis, trainer of Papyrus, also has been hoping for a heavy track. The prediction for today is cloudy and cooler.

This first thoroughbred race between America and any other country has aroused the greatest interest throughout the world and has been the cause for more comment and controversy on both sides of the water than any match race in the history of the turf. Visitors have come here especially for the race from England and France, from every State in the Union, from Canada, Cuba and Mexico. Governors of three States will be in the stands, together with high Government officials and men prominent in all walks of life. Every one in the world of the thoroughbred will be on hand, and thousands who have never seen a horse race will make the journey to Belmont Park, attracted by the international aspect of the contest.

The contestants in today's race are the three-year-old champions of their respective countries. They are both brown colts and there is little difference in their measurements, both being 15 hands three inches. Zev is the heavier and gives the impression of being a little more on the leg than his English rival. Papyrus has greater depth through the chest, indicating great lung and heart power.

Zev was bred by John E. Madden and is by The Finn-Miss Kearney. He cost the Rancocas Stable $7,500 as a yearling and won nearly $25,000 as a two-year-old, being first in five races, second four times, third twice and unplaced once. As a three-year-old he has started nine times, his only defeat being in the Preakness, his second race. He has won more than $150,000 as a three-year-old and his total winnings are $174,936. The greatest stake winnings were the Kentucky Derby, Withers, Belmont and Realisation.

Papyrus was bred by Sir John Robinson and cost Benjamin Irish $17,500 as a yearling. As a two-year-old he won nearly £14,000, starting eight times, being first six times, third once and unplaced once. As a three-year-old Papyrus, which is by Tracery-Miss Mary, has won the Chester Vase, the Epsom Derby, the Duke of York Stakes and finished second in the St. Leger. He won more than £14,000, his total winnings being £17,963.

Solicitor J. Whitsed, personal representative of Benjamin Irish, and Samuel Zevely, personal counsel of Harry F. Sinclair and the man for whom Zev was named, have been invited by the Westchester management to view the international race from the Stewards' stand. Officers of the United States Army in uniform will be admitted free, and, as it has been learned that a number of British officers are at present in New York City, the same courtesy will be extended to them. The band from the Cunard liner Aquitania, on which ship Papyrus traveled to this country, will lend an additional touch to the picture on race day through the courtesy of Sir James Childs.

That the slight skin affection which first caused all the excitement regarding Zev will in no manner affect the racing or general well-being of the Sinclair colt was stated last night by one who examined the colt yesterday morning. He was his expert opinion as a horseman that it was caused by the high quality of the food which had been given Zev. The colt is a voracious feeder, as is well known. The committee of the Jockey Club was unanimous in its decision to stand on their original choice to meet the Derby winner, especially after the trial run earlier in the day.

Jockey Club's Statement.

The official statement of the Jockey Club, issued about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, is as follows:

"The Committee of the Jockey Club delegated to select a competitor for Papyrus in the International Race at Belmont Park tomorrow has decided that Zev, their original choice, is in condition to race.

"The first intimation that anything was amiss with Zev came on Thursday afternoon when Mr. Harry F. Sinclair, his owner, called the attention of the committee to a condition which threatened the fitness of the colt.

"After a careful inspection of the horse by the special committee this morning and on the opinion of the veterinarian treating him, the conclusion has been reached that Zev is fit to race.

"The Committee felt that it was necessary to take precautionary measures and decided to have their substitute candidate, My Own, on the ground. Admiral Grayson consented to this and the colt was shipped by special train this morning and was due at Belmont Park at 4:30 this afternoon."

Despite the presence of the usual crowds at Belmont Park yesterday morning there was more excitement and greater tenseness in the atmosphere than on any day since the morning that Papyrus stepped from the Widener van and went for the first time into his box in the Cedars barn.

While Papyrus was out on the track for his regular morning walk and light canter the committee of the Jockey Club in charge of the international race was at the Sinclair stables inspecting Zev and trying to make up their minds as to what was best to be done. Then Zev came out and ran a half-mile in 47 seconds for the edification of the committee, which again went to his stable to find out in what condition he pulled up and looked and felt.

Papyrus came out a little later than has been his custom. He had both his kidney blankets on, although the atmosphere was warmer than in many days. Ted Barham was in the saddle. It was 9:30 (which is necessary for Steve Donoghue to ride the Derby winner, as there was no intention of giving him any hard work). The English colt was sent through his usual long walk up the chute in company with Bar Gold.

Papyrus Gallops Easily.

Papyrus then went over on the main track and after the heavy blanket was removed, the Derby winner and Bar Gold broke from the six furlong starting pole and galloped easily around to the finishing line. No watches were held on the work as no attempt at speed was made. The pair finished up easily and Jarvis took a hand in rubbing the colt down. There was another short walk and then the two were sent back to their stable, having been out only forty minutes.

Papyrus had a short walk late in the afternoon in the privacy of his own enclosure. Trainer Jarvis said yesterday that Papyrus would have a walk this morning and just a limbering-up canter. That is all that will be asked of him until he goes to the post. After the parade Donoghue will probably take Papyrus to the head of the homestretch and give him a warming-up breeze back to the barrier.

Jarvis has made all his arrangements for shipping Papyrus back to England on the Aquitania, although it has not been decided when he will go aboard the steamship and into his private box on Monday or Tuesday. The steamship company wants to wait until the lowest possible tide so that the incline of the specially constructed gangway may be at a minimum.

Jarvis did not appear particularly disturbed at the possibility of rain and a muddy track, for he believes that Papyrus can run in any kind of going, as a Grand Prix has shown. The son of Tracery never ran on a dirt track before coming here, consequently has had no experience with such a track when it is muddy or sloppy. He has been fortunate in running all of his races save one under good conditions. The exception was the Duke of York Stakes at a mile and a quarter at York. That race was run on muddy turf and Papyrus finished second to the filly Craig Elgin, which was disqualified. The latter was in very light, while Papyrus shouldered 138 pounds and ran a remarkable race under the conditions.

The genial English trainer was somewhat disturbed yesterday by the conditions in the American camp and was anxious to go over the contract for the contest with Mr. Whitsed, Benjamin Irish's solicitor, who came over on the Olympic with Steve Donoghue to represent Mr. Irish at the race.

After Papyrus had gone to his stable the committee gathered in the judges' stand to await the appearance of Zev. Of the committee there were present Major August Belmont, William Woodward, Joseph E. Widener and Robert L. Gerry. Zev, with Laverne Fator in the saddle, was accompanied by the Rancocas Stable's three-year-old Ballot colt Rigel. The pair broke on the backstretch and went a half mile for observation by the committee. Zev showed his usual speed, but did not appear eager to run.

Zev Runs Half in 0:47.

The first furlong was run in 0:12 1-5 and the quarter in 0:23 3-5. They came to the three-furlong mark in 0:34 3-5 and to the half in 0:47. The times by eighths miles were as follows: 0:12 1-5, 0:11 2-5, 0:11 and 0:12 2-5. Following the trial the committee again went to the Sinclair stable to inspect Zev's condition after his gallop.

In the midst of all the excitement over Zev and while rumors and contradictory reports were flying in all directions, Admiral Grayson's My Own, first substitute to Zev, was peacefully munching his hay in his private car on a special train that was hurrying him to Belmont Park to be on hand in case of any accident to Zev. The call for My Own was sent on Thursday and Admiral Grayson, ready as he always has been to support the Jockey Club in its efforts to consummate the international race, agreed to ship the colt to New York.

My Own did not have his regular work on the Laurel track yesterday afternoon, in order that he might have a workout before racing against Papyrus, if it became necessary to substitute him for Zev. Trainer Burch sent him out on the Laurel track before he went on board the train, with an exercise boy in the saddle and over a track that was fast growing muddy from the rain. Breaking from the eighth pole and under a strong restraint, My Own ran the half mile in 0:53, the three-quarters in 1:17 and the mile in 1:43. My Own continued another furlong before being pulled up, completing the mile and an eighth in 1:50 3-5.

The special train left Laurel at 9 A. M. My Own was accompanied by the lead pony Sallie, a gray mare, and by Nick, an Airedale terrier, the stable mascot. The horses and stable hands were in charge of Leo Myers, assistant to Trainer Burch. Myers said that Burch would not leave Laurel late in the afternoon, while Admiral Grayson was planning to leave on the midnight train from Washington, arriving this morning.

There was only one notable incident on the trip, according to Myers. That was at Baltimore, where the engine drawing the special lost a driving wheel. There was no shock, and those on the train were hardly aware that anything unusual had happened. The only result was a delay of an hour and a half while a new engine was being secured. Myers said that My Own spent most of the more than eight hours on the journey munching his hay.

On its arrival over the Pennsylvania line the train was shifted to the Long Island tracks and sent through the East River tube direct to the unloading platform at Belmont Park, where it arrived at 5:22 P. M. It was raining hard at the time and fast growing dark, so My Own and his stablemate, heavily bundled in blankets, were walked at once to Max Hirsch's stable, where stalls had been prepared for them.

My Own in Good Shape.

Trainer Myers said that My Own had stood the journey in fine shape and was fit to run his best race this afternoon if the Jockey Club called upon the son of King James and Bettie Landon to substitute for Zev. Myers was much disappointed last night when he learned that Zev had finally been selected to run today, after all of the trouble incurred in bringing My Own here.

Although it was raining hard when darkness settled over the plant of the Westchester Racing Association last night, the track had not become muddy. The long drought has thoroughly dried out all Long Island and it has required constant watering to keep the main track in condition during the last three weeks. The surface should be able to absorb a great deal of rain before becoming muddy. All precautions against rain had been taken by Superintendent Pels and the drains from the track have been opened and kept clear in case of an unexpected storm.

There will be one object of interest at Belmont Park this afternoon that is bound to attract wide attention. This is the International Challenge Cup which will go to the country of the winner as a perpetual challenge trophy. It will be on exhibition in the judges' enclosure prior to the running of the great race.

The cup is one of the handsomest trophies ever offered for a contest between thoroughbreds. It is of solid gold, standing about twelve inches in height. It weighs between 90 and 100 ounces and is valued at $5,000. It is a hand-made copy of a cup fashioned in 1707, during the reign of Queene Anne. The body of the cup is somewhat conventional, but an eagle with outstretched wings, every feather clearly etched, gives an impression of military that lends distinction to the trophy. The arms of the United States ornament one side, the other being reserved for a list of the winners. The title is to be inscribed on the collar of the cup.

Full Card Arranged.

A full card of six races will be run this afternoon, the program, with the exception of the international race, being that originally scheduled for today at the course of the Empire City Racing Association at Yonkers, the latter organization having agreed to the transfer to Belmont Park. Horsemen were urged to enter their horses in order to make a full afternoon of racing.

The response has been excellent, a total of seventy-seven entries having been received for the other events, an average of more than fifteen to a race. The feature will be the New Rochelle Handicap for three-year-olds at a mile and a sixteenth, with $4,000 added. There were nine entries, with Cherry Pie heading the list with 116 pounds, one more than Dunlin is asked to carry.

Cloudy and Cooler Weather Is Forecast for Race Today

Zev and Papyrus, according to the weather man, will possibly do their running over a wet and heavy track today. However, he holds out a hope of easier going for the thousands of race fans who are expected to flock to Belmont Park for the big international meeting. The official report says that it will be cloudy today with cooler weather and fresh to strong southerly winds, shifting to westerly or northwesterly. If these winds do change their course, optimists believe that the skies will be free of rain when the race starts about 3:45 o'clock.

L. I. R. R. WILL RUN SPECIALS TO RACE

First Train for Belmont Park to Leave at 11 A. M.—Motor Routes Explained.

Rain or shine, officials of the Long Island Railroad announced yesterday that they would be prepared to handle crowds of any proportions to the international horse race at Belmont Park today. No regular running schedule of trains has been arranged, but it is announced specials will be run from the Pennsylvania terminal and the Flatbush Avenue station, Brooklyn, starting at 11 A. M., as fast as they are filled. This program will be continued until 2:25 P. M. The specials from the Pennsylvania station will run direct to the Belmont Park tracks without stops, while those starting from Brooklyn will make stops at Nostrand Avenue, East New York and Jamaica before arriving at the track. On the return the same arrangement will hold forth, specials leaving the track for Brooklyn and New York as often as is found necessary.

At the office of the American Automobile Association two direct routes were suggested for Manhattan and Brooklyn automobilists. Those from Manhattan should go by way of the Fifty-ninth Street Queensboro Bridge to the Queens Boulevard to Jamaica Avenue, to Fulton Street, directly out on Fulton, following the car tracks, to Bellaire, then to Queens and there making a right-hand turn on to the Hempstead Turnpike direct to the track. Motorists are advised to avoid Hillside Avenue as that highway is undergoing repairs.

Brooklyn motorists should make for the Eastern Parkway, go to Atlantic Avenue, to Ridgewood Avenue, to Rockaway Turnpike, to Locust Avenue, past the Jamaica racetrack to St. Albans and then take the Central and Springfield roads to the Hempstead Turnpike, which leads to the track.

Manhattan autoists may also cross the Williamsburg Bridge, turning south on Bedford Avenue as far as Atlantic Avenue to Jamaica Avenue, following the regular route from there on, or they may cross the Manhattan Bridge, reaching Jamaica Avenue by way of Flatbush Avenue and Atlantic Avenue.

New Jersey travelers should first come to Manhattan by ferry and then follow any one of the bridge routes. Motorists from New Rochelle, Pelham Bay and Connecticut can ferry from Clason Point to College Point, boats running on a forty-minute schedule, and then go to Flushing, following Broadway to the Queens Road and then to Hempstead Boulevard. Staten Islanders can go either by way of Manhattan or the Bay Ridge ferry to Brooklyn, going to Jamaica Avenue by way of Bay Ridge Parkway, Fourth Avenue and Atlantic Avenue.

BIG GAMES INCLUDED ON SCHEDULE TODAY

TITLE CLASHES IN WEST

Ohio-Michigan and Illinois-Iowa Games Lead Big Ten List—Local Teams Busy.

As the football season advances big games become more plentiful and the gridiron schedule for today, East, South and West, holds forth much that promises to provide interesting entertainment. Locally, of course, much of the interest is being centred on the visiting attraction at the Yankee Stadium, where Pittsburgh tackles Syracuse, while a keen eye also will be kept on Princeton where the Tiger will give battle to Rockne's Notre Dame eleven. The fortunes of Percy Haughton's eleven, which will engage Pennsylvania at Philadelphia, also will be followed with interest here.

Aside from these games, however, there are numerous other notable contests on today's program, and not the least of these in importance are the games between Cornell and Colgate at Ithaca, and Penn State and Navy at State College, Pa. Last year Cornell defeated Colgate, 14 to 0, while Penn State bowed to the Navy by the same score.

While Harvard and Yale are not expected to have the hard fight on their hands that Princeton will encounter, neither is regarded as having a particularly easy afternoon ahead. Especially is this true of Harvard, with the Crimson scheduled to play Holy Cross at Cambridge. Harvard downed the Worcester eleven last year by a score of 20 to 0, but in view of the fact that Harvard was held to a 6—6 tie last Saturday by Middlebury, while Holy Cross was trouncing Providence, 32 to 0, indications are that Bob Fisher's men may be in for a strenuous afternoon. Yale is booked to play Bucknell at New Haven and a good game is also looked for there.

Local attention also will be drawn to happenings at New Brunswick, where New York University will engage in its annual clash with Rutgers. New York University fared badly against the New Brunswick eleven last year, being defeated 37 to 0, but followers of the local team are hopeful of a better result today, despite the fact that the Violet got no better than a scoreless tie with Rensselaer Poly last Saturday, while Rutgers triumphed over Lehigh, 10 to 0.

Of the local college elevens City College alone will play in New York, meeting Delaware at the Lewisohn Stadium. Fordham journeys to Bethlehem to play Lehigh. In Hoboken, Stevens Tech will meet St. Lawrence.

The two outstanding games in the West today are the meetings between Michigan and Ohio State at Ann Arbor, and between Illinois and Iowa at Iowa City. These two games are regarded to be by far the most important of the Big Ten schedule to date and their results are expected to have an important bearing on the championship.

Washington, Pa., promises to be the scene of an interesting contest when Washington and Jefferson meets Carnegie Tech. These two played a 7-7 tie last year. Wesleyan and Tufts also are expected to stage a great battle at Medford, Mass., with Tufts endeavoring to wipe out a 13 to 6 defeat suffered last year. Dartmouth, too, has a hard game in meeting Vermont at Burlington, Vt. Vermont defeated the Hanover eleven, 6 to 3, last year.

Other games today include meetings between the Army and Alabama Poly at West Point, an intersectional game of considerable interest; Amherst and Massachusetts Aggies, at Amherst; Brown and Boston University, at Providence; Georgia Tech and Georgetown, at Atlanta; Hobart and Trinity, at Binghamton; Lafayette and Springfield, at Easton, and West Virginia and Marshall, at Morgantown.

YALE PLAYS BUCKNELL AT NEW HAVEN TODAY

Meeting on Gridiron Will Be Their First Since 1902—200 Accompany Visiting Team.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 19.—Yale and Bucknell will clash on the gridiron here tomorrow for the second time in more than twenty years, and with unfavorable weather conditions prevailing, indications tonight are that the game will be played in heavy going, and probably in rain.

The weather, however, has failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the rival supporters of the two teams, particularly the followers of Bucknell, which is sending a delegation of 200 of its 600 male students, while many co-eds also are expected. Fred Angstead and Morris Howell, freshmen, who played on the Bucknell team until injured, were the vanguard to arrive here. They came the entire distance by hiking for lifts from passing motorists. They said they left Bucknell campus at 1 o'clock Thursday without money and had been forced to walk only five miles of the distance, 400 miles. They said that sixty other Bucknell students were traveling to New Haven by the same method.

The Bucknell eleven practised this afternoon in a heavy mist which turned into a downpour of rain when Yale ran through its signals. The Bucknell team will enter the game extremely confident despite the fact its star, Buckovicky, is injured. Bucknell will depend upon Captain Reed, Buster Hall and Diehl to score a victory over Eli. It is not certain whether Hulman or Bingham will start at left end for Yale.

HARVARD EXPECTS 51,000.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 19.—After putting in a hard week on attack, with more than casual attention being paid to the defense, Harvard is ready for the Holy Cross eleven, which plays here tomorrow. Holy Cross is known to have a fast and shifty team, and one which has been well drilled. Twice in the last three years the Worcester eleven has held Harvard to three field goals, and while the Crimson scored three touchdowns last Fall two of them came early and on fumbles.

So great is the interest in the game that already 51,000 seats have been allotted. Except that Crosby may be at right end in place of Gordon, the coaches will start a veteran rush line and will also have a full complement of backs.

Jenkins and Coburn will not start, but will be available if needed, although Coach Fisher wants to keep them out of hard play until next week, when Harvard will meet Dartmouth. Lee will be at quarter, but McGlone is ready for work. Howe and Cheek will be in the backfield with Hammond, who is the outstanding punter at Cambridge this year.

COLGATE LOSES TRYON.

Star Will Not Face Cornell Today—Sanford to Start.

SYRACUSE PLAYS PITT HERE TODAY

Both Elevens Will Present Veteran Line-Ups for Game in Yankee Stadium.

The football teams of Syracuse University and the University of Pittsburgh will meet today at the Yankee Stadium in the first attraction of a long list of gridiron contests to be played at the home of the world's champions this Fall. The game today will be the first to be played on the new athletic field. Others will follow on each succeeding Saturday until Dec. 11.

Both the Syracuse and Pitt squads arrived yesterday morning, the Panthers taking up their headquarters at the Hotel McAlpin and the Orange eleven, under the charge of Coach Chick Meehan, going to the Westchester Biltmore Country Club, Rye, N. Y., where they will remain until just before the game today. Both teams were reported in excellent condition and ready for the contest late last night.

The rivalry between the two institutions is an ancient one, and close results have marked the games recently. Syracuse triumphed over the Panthers the last time in 1919, when the Orange gained a 24-3 victory. That year Syracuse had one of the best teams that has ever represented the up-State university, scoring victories over the Army, Vermont, Brown, Colgate, Rutgers and Bucknell. The next season, in 1920, Glen Warner's eleven held the Orange team to a 7-7 tie. The last two meetings have resulted in victories for the Panthers, 35 to 0 in 1921 and 21 to 14 last year.

Both teams will present veteran lineups. Biggs, a guard, being the only member of the Orange eleven who was not on the squad last season, while Templeton and Wissinger, linemen, and Gustafson, fullback, are the only new players who will start the game for Pitt.

| SYRACUSE. | | PITTSBURGH. |
| Jappe | L. E. | Jordan (Capt.) |
| Waldorf | L. T. | Chase |

| Zimmerman | L. H. B. | Flanagan |

Referee—E. J. O'Brien, Tufts. Umpire—Edward Thorp, De La Salle. Field judge—W. G. Crowell, Swarthmore. Linesman—J. J. Hallahan, Boston. Time of periods—15 minutes.

NAVY TO PLAY PENN STATE.

Elevens Are Ready for Clash at State College Today.

Special to The New York Times.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 19.—Both Penn State and Navy are ready for their football game here tomorrow.

The Middies motored over from the Spruce Creek Country Club, where they are quartered, and took a final limbering-up exercise under Bob Folwell. Coach Hugo Bezdek gave the Nittany Lions a light signal drill and then sent them in. Several thousand Penn State grads and students gathered in the College Auditorium for a rousing mass meeting this evening.

The weather outlook tonight was not promising, with a fine drizzle falling constantly and indications pointing to a wet day tomorrow. A heavy field will no doubt favor the Navy because of their heavier eleven.

| PENN STATE. | | NAVY. |
|---|---|---|
| Frank | L. E. | Taylor |
| McCann | L. T. | Clyde |
| Michalske | L. G. | Carney |

| Prevost | R. T. | Walker |
| Axtell | R. E. | Brown |
| Palm | Q. B. | Shapley |
| Wilson | L. H. B. | Cullen |
| Buckley | R. H. B. | Devens |

Michigan's Football Mentor to Retire at Close of Season.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 19.—Fielding H. Yost, coach of the University of Michigan football team for the last twenty-three years, will retire at the close of the present season. Coach Yost made the announcement of his retirement at the Michigan Press Club Convention here last night.

George Little, chief assistant to Yost for the last two years, will become football coach, it is understood. Coach Yost will remain at Ann Arbor as director of athletics in the university.

N.Y.A.C. TO HONOR FOUNDER

Monument to H. E. Buermeyer Will Be Unveiled Tomorrow.

The monument erected in Woodlawn Cemetery by the New York Athletic Club to the memory of Henry E. Buermeyer, the last of the club's founders, who died in October, 1922, will be unveiled tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. Members of the club will assemble at the Jerome Avenue entrance to the cemetery at 10:30. In the event of rain at that time the ceremonies will be held in the afternoon, and if the rain continues they will be held a week from tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

RAIN HALTS TIGERS IN FINAL PRACTICE

Regular Centre and Substitute, Forrest, Injured—Hills Shifted to Guard.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 19.—Princeton finished its preparation for the great intersectional battle with Notre Dame in Palmer Stadium tomorrow with a light workout in the baseball cage here this afternoon. The practice session wound up a week of the hardest sessions the Tigers have had this year, for Coach Roper was anxious to give the men as much opportunity as possible to go up against the Westerners' style of play as shown by Nat Poe's omelettes. The result has been a stiff scrimmage nearly every day, with the hope of tightening the none too strong Princeton defense.

A constant downpour today kept the varsity inside and will make the going heavy tomorrow, as well as holding down the attendance, which was expected to run over all previous figures for midseason contests in Tigertown. Following the signal drill in the cage the Tigers took the field for about ten minutes and ran through some plays to get the men used to handling a slippery ball. The kickers also drilled with the heavy pigskin and got good distance in spite of the bad conditions, Van Gerbig especially finding the side lines consistently.

Interest in the game with the South Bend eleven tomorrow has reached fever heat here and the contest is attracting fully as much attention as the big three games of late season.

The well-known aerial attack of Coach Rockne's charges is likely to find an equal match from the spectacular standpoint in Bill Roper's passing tactics, which centre around Captain Snively on the throwing end, as against the superior passing game of the Westerners.

The chief worry of Roper is the centre position, where both Caldwell, regular, and Forrest, second string pivot man, are out with injuries. Bergen is counted upon to start in this capacity, with his brother, Paul Bergen, in reserve.

Coach Roper stuck to his line-up as announced by him yesterday, which included the shifting of Hills to guard with Emery and Rulan at tackles.

| PRINCETON. | | NOTRE DAME. |
|---|---|---|
| Drews | L. E. | Collins |
| Rulan | L. T. | Noppenbarger |
| Hills | L. P. | Brown |
| L. Bergen | G. | Walsh |
| Howard | R. G. | Kiser |
| Emery | R. T. | Oberst |
| Stout | R. E. | Murphy |
| Dinsmore | Q. B. | Stuhldreher |
| Snively | L. H. B. | Crowley |
| Croft | R. H. B. | D. Miller |

DYER EASILY WINS TWO GOLF MATCHES

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 19.—Despite a downpour of rain the Fall tournament of the Linwood Country Club continued today with undiminished interest. Frank Dyer of Upper Montclair was the star of the first and second rounds of match play today. Winner of the gold medal in the qualifying round Thursday, Dyer continued in splendid form, and won his two matches in rather easy fashion.

The upset of the day was the elimination in the first round of T. B. Wooton, champion of the Atlantic City Country Club, by E. S. Ward of Spring Haven by 3 and 1, and it was not a story of reversal of form, Wooton played good golf, going out in 38, but his opponent played better.

STEELE LOSES AT SHAWNEE.

Medalist Defeated by Compton in Golf Tourney.

Special to The New York Times.

SHAWNEE-ON-DELAWARE, Pa., Oct. 19.—Second-round matches in the invitation golf tournament at the Shawnee Country Club this afternoon were played through a steady rain, and when the survivors sought the clubhouse two of the quartet in the main division represented Philadelphia clubs. They were W. J. Platt and Fred W. Knight, both of Whitemarsh. The others to come through were Clement Buck of Saucon Valley and Dr. H. V. Garrity of Asbury Park. The latter will meet Knight in the lower semi-final bracket.

COLUMBIA AND PENN WILL CLASH TODAY

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 19.—Columbia and Penn slipped through the mud on rain-swept Franklin Field this afternoon in their final workouts, and tomorrow will fight out their football argument on a soggy turf.

Columbia, led by Percy Haughton, put three teams on the field today and then locked all the gates. It was probably the most secret practice ever held at Franklin Field. No one but the Columbia players, Head Coach Haughton and his big staff of assistants was permitted inside the stadium.

For more than an hour Haughton had the three squads running up and down the rain-soaked field. Captain Koppisch, the Blue and White star, was at his customary halfback position and despite the heavy ground, got away fast on all the plays. He showed no signs of having a weak ankle by the manner in which he snapped the drill.

Echavarria was at quarterback, Kirchmeyer at fullback and Hamon replaced Johnson at half back. That is the way the Columbia team will start tomorrow, but Coach Haugnton intimated that he will make a number of changes during the afternoon.

Coach Young had decided to give Penn a day off, but after thinking things over the varsity backs were ordered out at 4:30 in order to get accustumed to a wet ball.

| PENNSYLVANIA. | | COLUMBIA. |
|---|---|---|
| Fairchild | L. E. | Wagner |
| Graf | L. T. | Smullen |
| Papworth | L. G. | Jackson |
| Adams | C. | Brodil |
| Kaufmann | R. G. | Schimitich |
| Sutherland | R. T. | Price |
| Westgate | R. E. | Tikononen |
| Derr | Q. B. | Echavarria |
| Leth | L. H. B. | Koppisch |

Columbia Will Have Big Delegation at Franklin Field Today.

Six hundred Columbians will travel to the game with Pennsylvania at Franklin Field today in a special train, leaving the Pennsylvania Station at 10:45 o'clock and arriving at West Philadelphia two hours later. The train will start on the return journey one-half hour after the end of the game. Accompanying the Blue and White delegation will be the student band. Counting undergraduates and alumni who will travel in automobiles, about 2,000 will sit in the special Columbia cheering section at Franklin Field, that number of tickets already having been disposed of at the Athletic Association offices and the Columbia University Club.

CORNELL TO FACE COLGATE.

14,000 Expected to See Twenty-third Meeting at Ithaca Today.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Central New York football fans by the thousands will pour into Ithaca tomorrow to see Cornell and Colgate play their twenty-third annual game. One of the hardest battles of the series is looked for and there is very little betting, Cornellians declining anything but even money. Showers during the day were said by the Weather Bureau to be forerunners of rain and colder weather for the game. The entire seating capacity of the field was sold out today and fourteen thousand will see the game.

The Ithicans had only a light polishing off drill this evening and a final lecture by Coach Dobie, who told them to look for Colgate's full strength in tomorrow's game. Practically all of Colgates' injured men are expected to be in shape to play. Although Dobie declined to give out his line-up it will be practically the same as against Williams. Sullivan may be back at left tackle, and Kearney at right guard.

LEHIGH LOSES MERRILL.

Tackle Will Be Unable to Play Against Fordham Today.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Oct. 19.—On account of the rain here this afternoon, the defensive scrimmage of Lehigh was abandoned. Instead, the squad traveled several laps around the field and then took possession of the lower gymnasium where two teams were sent through long signal drills.

It became known this afternoon that Merrill, tackle, will not start in the game against Fordham tomorrow. Sanford will call signals and Brown, a reserve fullback, will be at centre position. The team to start will include Walker and Burke, ends; Captain Springsteen and Lyteff, tackles; Hendershot and Hoffman, guards; Sanford, quarterback; Storer and Jacoba, halfbacks, and Greer, fullback.

WET FIELD GREETS AUBURN.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Army will meet Alabama Poly, Auburn, on the gridiron here tomorrow. Stung to the quick by the Notre Dame defeat of last Saturday, Army has been preparing in a quiet but determined way during the week for the contest with the Southerners and will go into the fray in good physical condition.

The field of play will be soft because of a two days' rain, which still prevailed while both teams took light workouts this afternoon, the Auburn team arriving here at noon.

Columbia Freshmen Win, 24-0.

FOOTBALL RESULTS.

LOUNSBERRY BEATS HOYT IN GOLF PLAY

Defeats Medalist at Piping Rock, but Loses to Tippett in Second Round.

Special to The New York Times.

LOCUST VALLEY, L. I., Oct. 19.—Frank Hoyt, the Engineers' Club veteran, ran afoul the medalist jinx in the opening round of the annual Piping Rock invitation tournament today. It was his luck to meet Richard Lounsberry of Bedford in the first of the match play sessions, and the latter won by 3 and 2. As matters now stand it looks as if the final, which will be played tomorrow afternoon, will bring together the same pair that battled for the honors in the St. Albans tournament a week ago—Gardiner White of Nassau, former metropolitan champion, and Capt. H. C. C. Tippett of Meadow Brook and Lide, who was runner-up to Frank Dyer of Upper Montclair in this year's metropolitan championship.

White went through both of his matches today in fine style, defeating his clubmate, W. L. Hicks, 2 and 1, in the morning round, and then eliminating another Nassau player, Fred Haggerson, by 6 and 4 in the second round. Tippett's morning opponent was Hugh Halsell, Sleepy Hollow, who is the seniors' champion, and the veteran went down by 8 and 7. In the afternoon Tippett disposed of Lounsberry by the same margin.

The other semi-finalists will be F. R. Holland of Wee Burn, who defeated R. N. L. Church of Nassau and H. H. Salmon Jr of Cherry Valley, and Eddie Van Vleck Jr. of Garden City golf, who beat Donald Carr of Ardsley and E. W. Nash of Rockaway Hunting. Holland will meet White in one of the semi-final matches this morning while Van Vleck is meeting Tippett in the other.

First Sixteen, First Round—Gardiner White, Nassau, defeated W. L. Hicks, Nassau, 2 and 1; F. H. Haggerson, Nassau, defeated Peter Bryce, Piping Rock, 1 up (21 holes); F. R. Holland, Wee Burn, defeated R. N. L. Church, Nassau, 2 up; H. H. Salmon Jr., Cherry Valley, defeated I. S. Smith Jr., Sound Beach, 2 and 1; Richard Lounsberry, Bedford, defeated Frank Hoyt, Engineers, 7 and 6; Captain H. C. C. Tippett, Lide, defeated Hugh Halsell, Sleepy Hollow, 8 and 7; C. E. Van Vleck Jr., Garden City Golf, defeated Donald Carr, Ardsley, 3 and 2; E. W. Nash, Rockaway Hunting, defeated J. R. Maxwell, Merion, 5 and 3.

Second Round—White defeated Haggerson, 5 and 4; Salmon defeated Holland, 2 and 1; Tippett defeated Lounsberry, 8 and 7; Van Vleck defeated Nash, 1 up.

JOHNSON PUTS BAN ON BOUTS IN PARK

American League Owners Oppose Mixing of Baseball and Prizefighting.

RODEOS ALSO FROWNED ON

Yankees Will Accept Verdict of Majority, Says Barrow—Football Games Not Barred.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—Baseball and prize fighting do not go together, President B. B. Johnson of the American League declared here tonight, and hereafter fistic encounters will be prohibited in the American League parks. Mr. Johnson said that the league is opposed to the association of the two sports and had taken a stand against the use of its parks for prize fights.

The subject recently was discussed by Mr. Johnson with Colonel Jacob Ruppert, of the world's champion New York Yankees, at whose park the Willard-Floyd Johnson and Leonard-Tendler bouts were held, and the Colonel, who is said to be in accord with the move, asked the league executives to withhold action until certain contracts regarding the use of the Yankee Stadium had been fulfilled. Meantime, other club owners were sounded out on the subject and are understood to favor the prohibition of boxing matches in their parks.

President Johnson also is opposed to rodeo contests such as were held in the Yankee Stadium recently, on the ground that it was impossible to keep the fields in good condition if such contests were permitted.

Yanks Won't Oppose Move.

Action to bar prize fights from American League parks has not yet been taken but undoubtedly will be taken at the annual league meeting in December, according to Business Manager Edward G. Barrow of the Yankees, when President Johnson's statement was read to him last night.

"We knew such a move was coming," said Barrow. "It was discussed with us recently and we offered no objections. If a majority of the owners don't want fights held in the parks, it will be all right with us. The same goes for rodeos. The Yankees have no desire to do anything that will hurt baseball. I understand, however, that there are no objections to football games and track meets."

Similar action is not contemplated by the National League, so far as could be learned here last night. President John A. Heydler said the subject had not been discussed as far as he knew among club owners of the organization and he had no comment to make. Mr. Heydler, however, several times in the past has been outspoken against mixing baseball with boxing.

The Polo Grounds, home of the New York National League Club, has been used more for boxing than has the Yankee Stadium. Charles S. Stoneham, President of the Giants, could not be reached last night, but John J. McGraw, Manager and Vice President, said he knew of no change in policy.

"Ban Johnson," said Mr. McGraw, "has nothing else to do but manage the American League, but if he were managing the National League he wouldn't order our club to close its park to boxing. That is the business of the club owner, and Mr. Stoneham handles that end of our club's affairs."

COL. MILLS LAUDS OLYMPIC PROGRAM

Returns From Congress at Paris and Praises Arrangements for United States Athletes.

Colonel A. G. Mills, member of the Board of Governors of the A. A. U. and representative of the organization at the International Congress at Paris in July, returned yesterday on the steamship President Harding after a vacation of three months in Europe, enthusiastic over amateur athletics and the coming Olympic games. Most of Colonel Mills's three months were spent in France in assisting Colonel Robert M. Thompson, President of the American Olympic Committee, to close contracts and make final arrangements for the housing, feeding, training and entertaining of the three hundred athletes who will represent the United States in the eighth Olympiad at Paris next year.

Colonel Mills was enthusiastic about the splendid arrangements Colonel Thompson has made and predicted that the games in Paris will be one of the greatest events in the history of sport. At the Congress of the A. A. U. Colonel Mills was elected Vice President of the Federation. He also was called upon to make the address of welcome to Baron Pierre de Coubertin, President of the International Olympic Committee, when the originator of the Olympic idea attended the Congress. Amateur athletic governing bodies of some twenty nations were represented.

"It was really remarkable," said Colonel Mills yesterday. "The spirit of harmony and good feeling shown by the representatives of the various nations throughout the Congress, when difficult and burning questions relating to international amateur athletics were settled to the satisfaction of all and with profit to the sport we represented. The International Athletic Federation is a great League of Nations in itself, and the unanimity of purpose and action at the Congress was really remarkable."

55,000 Applications Returned, 45,000 Filled at Ann Arbor

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 19.—More people attempted and failed to get tickets for the Ohio State-Michigan football game than will be inside the enclosure when the game starts tomorrow afternoon, athletic officials here disclosed today. While 45,000 people will be packed into the field, checks representing applications for 55,000 tickets have been returned. It has taken the entire time of four men for the past three weeks to return money for which tickets were not available. Game time has not decreased the demand for tickets and Ann Arbor today is overrun with men attempting to buy tickets for tomorrow's game.

DIVERSITY DIVIDES HONORS AT EMPIRE

The Poplar Purse served as a feature of a rainy afternoon's racing at the Empire City track yesterday and it was run in two sections. W. H. Chambers's brown filly, Diversity, won the first section and A. J. Contento's Potentilla the second. Diversity was sired by The Finn, the sire of Zev, and her victory may have been a good omen for America's representative in today's international contest. At any rate, she ran a surprisingly good race and, well ridden by Jockey Beach, got up in the final strides to beat the pace-setting King's Belle by a neck.

Diversity paid her backers 6 to 1. The favorite, Sir Galahad II., with Earl Sande in the saddle, ran disappointingly and was next to last at the end of the mile and a quarter journey.

Potentilla won as he pleased in his section. He was an odds-on favorite at 1 to 2 and the short price was more than justified. Coltiletti trated him back of the pace until the turn out of the backstretch where he let out a hitch, and Potentilla then came on to win galloping by two and a half lengths. South Breese, an outsider, overtook Warlike at the judge's stand and got the place.

During the running of the first race three horses and their jockeys went down, but luckily neither the horses nor their riders were injured. Feyoun won the race, but was disqualified in favor of the R. T. Wilson entry, Runningwild and Wampee.

GOLDSTEIN DEFEATS BURMAN, WINS TITLE

SUBSTITUTED FOR LYNCH

Boxing Body Had Upheld Burman's Claim and Named Him Titleholder Before Bout.

"Abe Goldstein, a spindly little lad from Harlem, is recognized now by the State Athletic Commission as the new bantamweight champion of the world. Goldstein won this recognition last night at Madison Square Garden where, before a paid attendance of exactly 4,105 people who had contributed $11,793 to the gate receipts, he gained the decision over Joe Burman, Chicago bantamweight, who was recognized as the champion by the commission when Joe Lynch, holder of the title, reported unable to go through with his bout last night.

Displaying a brand of boxing ability which at times made Burman appear like a novice, Goldstein easily boxed his way to the decision of Judges Harold Barnes and Al Commanchio, and Referee Jack O'Sullivan. The Harlem youngster earned eight of the twelve rounds. Burman carried off four of the rounds. The bout was cut from fifteen to twelve rounds when Goldstein was substituted for Lynch.

The championship distinction was attached to the bout under instructions from the Commission, because of Lynch's failure to box Berman as scheduled. Lynch canceled the match Thursday, because, he said, of a dislocated shoulder. He appeared before the Commission yesterday morning to exhibit his injured shoulder. The report of the Commission's physician, however, was that Lynch's injury was not serious, and the commission therefore declared his title forfeited to Burman who appeared at the Commission's offices and weighed in at the class weight limit of 118 pounds.

Whether any further action will be taken against Lynch was not disclosed. Dan Skillings, Commission Secretary, declared a final decision in the case will be issued next Tuesday, when it is expected the commission will hear the testimony of Lynch's physician and trainer.

Goldstein showed himself clearly the master of Burman in every department of boxing. He won the first, fourth, fifth, sixth, eighth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth rounds. Burman carried off the second, third, seventh and ninth chapters because in these rounds he managed to keep the action at close quarters, at which style Goldstein was not so proficient. But even in these rounds Burman failed to accomplish any damaging effects, although in his desperate efforts he was guilty of holding and hitting in the clinches, an offense for which he was warned repeatedly by Referee O'Sullivan.

As a championship bout the contest was not up to tradition, nor was it up to expectations. There were times during the early rounds when the action lagged and the crowd urged the boxers to greater efforts. Nothing approaching a knockout ever occurred, nor were there any knockdowns, although Goldstein several times stung and rocked Burman with his accurate right crosses to the jaw and head. In the fourth round Goldstein almost sent Burman to the floor when he knocked the Chicagoan off balance with a left. Later in the round Goldstein almost floored Burman with a powerful right to the jaw.

Burman floundered about the right in the eighth and again in the tenth when he missed punches aimed at the jaw. Goldstein, meanwhile, ripped heavy rights to the heart and wind, and when the opening presented itself shot blows to the jaw or head.

Burman, evidently sensing that he was being cleverly outpointed, strove hard for a knockout in the closing two rounds. In the eleventh the pair bumped heads and Goldstein sustained a severe cut over the left eye which bled profusely, but the Harlem boxer continued his clever work to the final bell and added steadily to his lead in points. Burman's weight was 118 pounds. Goldstein weighed 117½ pounds.

Bud Taylor, Chicago bantamweight, won the decision over Charlie Rosenberg of the Bronx, in the semi-final bout of twelve rounds. Joe Ryder, Brooklyn bantamweight, and Pete Sarmento, Filipino, battled to a draw in a six-round encounter. In the opening bout of four rounds Nat Pincus, Brooklyn bantamweight, won the decision over Joe Cossino of Baltimore.

TEN HORSES FINISH IN ENDURANCE RIDE

Complete the Week's Test in Forty-five Hours, Setting a New Record.

SIX BARRED ON LAST LAP

Owners Protest Decision of Judges —Toute Belle and Gouya Lead Final Jaunt.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Despite protests on the part of owners, six horses were barred before the start of the last 90-mile lap of the 300-mile endurance contest at Avon today. Lameness and high fever were the factors that told most heavily in judges' decisions.

Ten horses finished the ride today within the nine-hour minimum time limit. As only one of the animals had suffered time penalties during the five days' riding, they set a record for the endurance ride by completing the week's test in forty-five hours. All except two of the horses that completed the fifth lap had been entered in previous endurance tests.

The horses ordered withdrawn were Jane Gray, entered by the United States Morgan Horse Farm; Black Diamond and Donwell, owned by the Morgan Horse Club; Cragmore, a thoroughbred owned by W. R. Brown of Berlin, N. H.; Vallander and Grant, United States Army thoroughbreds. Donwell was ridden since the start by H. E. Fretz, leader of the cowboy contingent. Fretz is said to have entered a written protest.

Toute Belle and Gouya, both Arabo-Arabs, owned by W. R. Brown, were favorites today. They led the jaunt from the start and were forced to loiter during the last two hours in order not to come in before the minimum time limit was up. Toute Belle is ridden by A. A. Langley, whose white hair and gaunt form have made him a marked figure, and Gouya by Ted Collier.

SERIES RESUMED TODAY.

Orioles and Bluss to Play Fifth Game in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 19 (Associated Press).—With the series between the Baltimore Orioles of the International League and Kansas City of the American Association for the minor league championship standing three games to one in favor of the latter team, the fifth game will be played in Baltimore tomorrow, weather permitting. A steady downpour drenched Oriole Field here nearly all day, but the weather man promises clearing weather tomorrow.

Manager Dunn expects to pitch Tommy Thomas, a right-hander, but Rube Parnham, another right-hander, may get the call, although he has been driven to cover twice. It is expected that either Jimmy Zinn or Ray Caldwell will pitch for the Blues.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 19.—The four Kansas City games were attended by a total of 65,678 fans, which net receipts of $77,250. Of this amount the players' share is $50,213. The club owners will get $19,312 and the league will divide $7,735. The players also will share in the receipts of the first game, played in Baltimore.

OUR AMBASSADOR TO ENGLAND.

The recent report that President COOLIDGE had offered the English Embassy to Mr. ROOT appears to be discredited by yesterday's positive announcement that the position had been placed at the disposal of ex-Governor LOWDEN of Illinois, who has declined it. Either of the two gentlemen would be eminently fit for the appointment. Either would be welcomed in England. Upon Mr. ROOT's abilities and aptitudes there is no need to dwell. His friends have felt that his advancing years, which he bears so lightly, might disincline him to undertake exacting official duties of any kind. His physicians might point to his present illness, which everybody hopes will be slight and transient, as a warning against undertaking any public labor that would severely tax his strength. Governor LOWDEN is robust and active, but explains that his time and vigor are pledged to work on the agricultural problems of this country. So he puts aside the high honor.

It has been unkindly said of Colonel HARVEY that he has made the task of selecting his successor easy for the President. But no invidious personal comparisons should be allowed to enter into a question of the choice of an American Ambassador in London. Mr. COOLIDGE has shown that he has a due conception of the importance of the post. It is not to be supposed that he would think of using it to pay off political debts—happily, he became President extraordinarily free from such obligations—or to transfer some fancied rival to a place where the Presidential lightning could not strike him. The President must be aware with all his fellow-countrymen that the relations of the United States and Great Britain are of prime concern in all our foreign policy, and that the American singled out to represent his country in the English Embassy ought to be one full worthy, by character and accomplishments, to continue a distinguished line.

A CITY BUDGET DIRECTOR.

Acting Mayor HULBERT's proposal that there be a permanent Director of the City Budget is sound in principle. It is to be hoped that it will be worked out in practical form. Various States and the United States have adopted the system. The expenditures of this city, as Mr. HULBERT points out, are greater in some single departments than those of most of the States for all purposes. The preparation of a budget contemplating the spending of such vast sums by a city always near the ragged edge of the debt limit requires long and thorough deliberation. It is a business that ought to be in the hands of capable, non-political experts. If we are not likely to reach that millennial condition soon, at least an intelligent, orderly and well-pondered scheme of appropriations could be made up; and the Board of Estimate, which has the final responsibility, could be greatly helped by the clearly arranged, classified and summarized information that would be furnished to it.

These budgets are pretty blind reading even to a man of high intelligence. It may be regretted, but cannot be wondered at, if the tempers of some members of the board are rasped in the strain of sitting "from eight" to ten hours a day, patiently listening to arguments pro and con and endeavoring to digest a mass of statistics." The board has a too brief time in which to lick into shape the raw material of a budget. It is not of the temper or the health of the members, however, that one thinks in considering Mr. HULBERT's plan. The interest of the taxpayers, the interest of the people of the city, the just allotment of money to necessary purposes, the substitution of thoughtful, informed, reasoned budget making for the present haphazard system or want of system, are the resultant advantages to be hoped and labored for. Now heads of departments make estimates without due co-ordination. Certain subordinate officials labor with them for reductions; but there is nobody except the Controller—and he seems to be blacklisted by the majority of the board—to take a view of the budget as a whole.

A Director would build up all its parts with careful reference to the design as a whole. Moreover, he might be able so to simplify the mysteries of the budget that the ordinary citizen could understand it and not watch in entire ignorance the action of the Board of Estimate. The experiment is worth trying. As Commissioner of Accounts HIRSHFIELD assures the people that he will go on with his beneficent, if too modestly concealed, labors whether the board grants his requests or not, we may be sure that no jealous Director can choke that source of light, and we can afford to welcome Mr. HULBERT's suggestion. Let us hope that something will come of it.

PROPOSITION NO. 1.

After the five constitutional amendments on which the voters of the State of New York will be asked to vote yes or no on election day there will be written in the ballot: "Proposition No. 1." Upon this every one should vote "Yes." It relates to the issuance of bonds in an amount not to exceed $50,000,000 for the construction of buildings for institutions for the care, support, instruction and training of the wards of the State. These "wards" are the insane, the feeble-minded, the crippled, the tubercular and other unfortunates, many of whom are now housed in overcrowded rooms, or in old buildings erected before modern methods of fireproofing were known, in which there is not and can not be adequate protection against fire. The danger to many insane patients is increased by the fact that their condition requires them to be kept in locked wards. What happened on Ward's Island last February, when more than twenty insane patients and three attendants were burned to death, should make the people of this State unwilling to stop in the program of rebuilding until every one of the 237 buildings for these unfortunates is made fireproof.

At present only 11 buildings, accommodating 2,753 patients (out of a total of 32,637), according to Mr. WICKERSHAM'S statement, can be classified as fireproof. Our intentions have been good, he says, but the years have slipped by with inadequate annual appropriation for replacement of old buildings, and the result is that we are now face to face with a situation which can be met only by a bond issue. The State has taken on the obligation to look after its unfortunates. Every citizen has consequently a share in the responsibility for their safety and proper care. He must on election day decide whether he will do his part. The only answer should be "Yes."

HOLDING GERMANY TOGETHER.

The reported recall of the commander of the German Reichswehr in Saxony, whose methods are said to have aroused opposition among the Saxon leaders, coupled with the demand from Berlin that the Saxon "proletarian hundreds" shall disband, is a new indication that Chancellor STRESEMANN is at the same time wise and firm in handling the difficult internal political situation. What the charges against the Reichswehr commander are have not been indicated in the dispatches. It would appear, however, that he had exceeded his authority and had made himself obnoxious by his personal conduct. His withdrawal, therefore, is in the nature of a concession to the Saxons. But the fact that the Berlin Government persists in its demand that the illegal troops shall be disbanded shows a clear realization of the need of preserving the central authority at all costs.

In Bavaria the task does not seem quite so simple. STRESEMANN has to deal there with some of the most unreasonable elements in Germany. The stubbornness and blindness of reactionaries are proverbial, and are no less true in the case of the German reactionaries than of those of Austria or any other land. One of the few hopeful signs is the apparent rivalry between different reactionary groups in Bavaria. But though VON KAHR, the Bavarian dictator, should openly resist the Berlin program, there is nothing to indicate that such action would have far-reaching results. Even those Bavarians most anxious to snub STRESEMANN are less interested in separatism than in substituting Bavarian for Prussian domination of German politics.

Chancellor STRESEMANN'S task is formidable. If he shows weakness, he is lost. If he is too severe, he risks a sharp reaction. To his credit be it said that up to date he has shown both courage and calmness, coupled with a keen sense of the realities. One of these is that in the chaos which has accompanied the flight of the mark conflicting political interests will be more and more tempted to resort to violent means. Fortunately, however, he knows that the sentiment of all Germans is against anything that might be construed as civil war or separatism, and that the disagreements of the different German States are less ominous than they appear when reported to the outside world.

RAILWAY WAGES AGAIN.

Everybody favors an advance of wages which somebody else pays. Nobody wants to impoverish willing workers. But the higher cost of coal is demonstrating the relation between wages and prices in a manner to cause anxiety regarding advances of wages which everybody pays. The increase of the miners' wages gave the cue to the railway workers. Are they not as deserving as the miners? They certainly are, but that is not a sound argument for an increase of wages by a public utility which is under the regulation of law regarding both wages and rates.

The rates are the source of the wages. Neither can be considered alone. An advance of wages not reflected in an advance of rates is impracticable because of the depressed revenues of the railways. During the three years under the Transportation act the roads have earned not $1,045,644,000 less than the fair return on the tentative lawful valuation. There are no excess profits to justify a wage advance for the sake of reducing them.

In any case, if railway wages are to be raised, it should be done in the way prescribed by law—that is, after a conference of the workers with the railways, and a decision by the Railway Labor Board in case of a disagreement. The managers are asking for a conference, but the men seem to be evading it. There is no oppression of the workers in a statute providing for the judgment of the Labor Board, which is without the authority to enforce it. The public needs that aid in making up its mind on the merits. Evasion of a conference between the railways and their workers, with a political attack on the Labor Board in Congress, will not create a presumption that the demands for railway wage increases are in the public interest.

LEGION AND KLAN.

The convention of the American Legion has gone further than a good many people expected on the issue of the Ku Klux Klan. It is true that the compromise resolution offered by the Michigan delegation, which was adopted by an overwhelming vote, mentioned no names, and merely recited the fact that any individual or organization which fostered racial or class strife or took into its own hands the enforcement of law was inconsistent with Legion ideals. This is about the same as saying that the Legion stands unswervingly for virtue, and disapproves strongly of vice. But in view of the considerable number of Klansmen who must have been among the delegates, even that is a good deal.

A stronger resolution, explicitly denouncing the Klan, was beaten by a vote of nearly seven to one; but still more one-sided was the vote of the convention against a declaration introduced by the Oklahoma delegates, which said in effect that the Klan was none of the Legion's business.

As for the bonus, while the Legion in the main is still for it, there was not a voice against the resolution that care of the disabled was the first consideration. So it will seem to others outside the Legion.

MAY THE BETTER HORSE WIN.

The decision of the Jockey Club to retain Zev, its selection of Oct. 6, in the match race with Papyrus, to be run at Belmont Park this afternoon, was sportsmanlike and will be generally approved. It seems that the committee of the Jockey Club was put in an embarrassing position by a malady of uncertain diagnosis that affected Zev. It is said to be epidemic in the stables at Belmont Park. After an inspection of the horse on Thursday the committee, fearing that he might not be fit to go to the post, called upon Admiral GRAYSON to send the alternate choice, My Own, to the track at once. In his last workout Zev had galloped a mile and a quarter in about 2:00 without distress, and his condition was satisfactory to Trainer HILDRETH. However, the racing thoroughbred is a delicate animal, succumbing quickly to an unexpected ailment. A suspicious skin trouble appeared, and a doubt arose whether Zev would keep his form until the day of the race.

In this dilemma My Own was summoned, to be ready in case Zev had to be declared out. But yesterday morning the horse galloped a half mile in 47 seconds, which is fast time. This indicated that he could probably be depended upon to give a good account of himself today. Trainer HILDRETH is not the man to make excuses for his horses when they do well in their exercise gallops, and he was inclined to treat the ailment of Zev lightly. He had pointed the horse for the race and Zev was ready, in his opinion. Depending upon his judgment, the Jockey Club committee set disquieting rumors at rest by announcing that Mr. SINCLAIR'S horse would be sent to the post to represent America.

The track today will be heavy, perhaps very slow. But happily both Zev and Papyrus are "mud larks," so that neither should be at a disadvantage. My Own is at his best on a dry track. Like many sterling performers when the footing is good, he falters in his stride on a wet surface and does not run true to his best form. Papyrus, a short-striding horse, seems to do equally well in all conditions of the track. Zev is probably a better match for him in the mud than My Own would be. If Zev is not in top condition today, the sportsmanship of his owner in sending him to the post should be recognized. There is no doubt that Papyrus will be at his best.

In comparing the contenders in the international race they should be judged by their performances in the Epsom and the Kentucky Derbies. Zev was hurried west in a box car from New York on a sudden decision that an improvement in his form gave him a fair chance to win at Churchill Downs. The odds against him at the post were about 19 to 1. Getting off in tenth place, he quickly forged to the front at a quarter of a mile and maintained his lead to the finish in a field of twenty horses. In the British Derby the victory of Papyrus under the masterly riding of DONOGHUE was never really in doubt. Both horses are sprinters and stayers. The winner may justly be hailed as perhaps the greatest horse in training on either side of the Atlantic.

RELIGIOUS GEOGRAPHY.

Holy wars have their strategy and tactics no less than profane hostilities. The occupation of key points by the forces of righteousness is a matter of considerable importance, and one is not surprised at the care with which the National Council of Congregational Churches considered the question of a place for its next biennial convention. Akron appealed for it, arguing that it had a Jewish Mayor who wanted to entertain the Congregationalists, and that the town would be able to furnish the tires if the convention would furnish the air. Omaha also appealed for the honor; so did Boise City; so did Washington.

Washington won by virtue of the fact that a gentleman just elected Honorary Moderator of the Council, one CALVIN COOLIDGE, is at present a resident of Washington. But will he still be there in 1925? A delegate who asked that question received no answer. This was the golden moment for the delegates from Boise to boost a native son, but they let it pass. Washington carried off the prize, aided by the argument that the Council, which had never met so far South, might as well begin now. One may hope that the prospect of this gathering, even remote, may work a certain improvement in the morals of Washington, where the Volstead act seems to be, according to Mr. PINCHOT, even less regarded than in the regions for which it was intended.

AUSTRALIA LEARNS FROM US.

How Australia and New Zealand select their immigrants and aid them after their arrival has been described in two articles on this page by Dr. FRANK BOHN. The system, which permits wide latitude to the immigration inspectors in arbitrarily rejecting those who they believe will not help the nation, is easily enforced in a country whose population is so genuinely homogeneous as is that of Australia. It hardly affords a precedent for the United States, owing to the different conceptions here of desirability and the political influence of various racial groups. But it does show that Australia and New Zealand have learned a lesson from us, and that they are determined to exclude all persons who are unlikely to be rapidly and thoroughly assimilated.

The advocates of increased immigration in this country point to the fact that America was made by immigrants. The argument is only partially true, inasmuch as a large part of the pioneering work has been done by the native born ever since the first strip of settlement on the Atlantic Coast began to extend inland. No doubt, after the great Western expansion was well under way, thousands of immigrants came to settle on the new lands, and they as well as those who came after them made the rapid material development of America possible. But nowadays the free land is gone and the period of expansion has ended. This is one of the underlying causes of the movement for restricting immigration. The other is the one which has caused Australia and New Zealand to be warned by our example—the danger of foreign colonies taking permanent form within our territory. Australia and New Zealand have wisely decided to make such growths impossible upon their soil.

No practicable policy of picking immigrants has yet been suggested for the United States. The advocates of so-called "selective immigration" have not been able to show in what manner a law which selects as well as restricts can be made to work. That the rejections should be made abroad is apparently agreed upon in theory by most people. But who is to be admitted and under what circumstances, and what tests should be applied, make up a problem on which people violently differ. A prominent industrialist once suggested that there should be a sort of Government employment bureau to which employers could send orders for so many workmen for such and such tasks. This bureau would then import from Europe the labor wanted by these manufacturers. It needs but little imagination to see where such a plan would lead.

The country's immigration policy will have to be reconsidered at the next session of Congress. That restriction is generally favored by the country is now clear. If within the restrictive limits principles of selection can also be applied, all the better.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

"Sensation" Turns to a Reality.

While the articles by Mr. HAYNES, the Federal Prohibition Enforcement Commissioner, were in course of publication by THE TIMES, it was felt by many people, perhaps by most, that there was in them much of exaggeration—that in a fairly decent country like this there could not be the amount of lawlessness and corruption, much of it in classes claiming to be respectable, that was described by him. He was often suspected of "sensationalism," with magnifying the evils of the situation, and the efforts to remedy it that were making by himself and his agents.

This incredulity was natural enough, but was it not at least in part an illustration of the fact that men will not believe what they do not want to believe, just as they will believe what they want to believe, with little regard to the evidence in either case? Certainly there was in none of the Commissioner's articles anything more "sensational" than was the tale told yesterday by Colonel HATWARD, the Federal District Attorney, of what he and his subordinates have been doing in New Jersey for a year past, and of what they discovered before they made the arrests that were the fruit of their long campaign.

It is to be remembered, of course, that the defendants as yet are not convicted—that they only are charged with a long list of crimes which it would be too kind to call "high." We now have, however, the names which, for obvious reasons, the Commissioner was obliged to conceal when he wrote, and the present formal and explicit accusations are precisely those which he made in general terms.

Men of wealth and standing in their communities will have to meet the charge of having spent in bribery enormous sums of money, in order that they, instead of another like group, might reap here the huge profits to be derived from violating the Federal Constitution and laws. It is asserted that they have had the help and complicity of various politicians of various grades. Nothing is omitted from the familiar tale except murder, and even that is not likely long to be wanting, for repeated killings have marked the bootlegger traffic in New Jersey, and principals are responsible for the acts of their agents.

Impossibility Still to Be Proved.

Should Colonel HATWARD prove the charges which he has made against the New Jersey brewers and the friendly politicians who, he says, have been helping them, the wisdom of prohibition will remain, as before, a matter of opinion. There has been of late, however, what looks like a change in the situation as respects prohibition.

Here, and in several other parts of the country, for the first time, what at least look like real and sincere and energetic efforts to enforce prohibition, or rather to enforce the laws, are making, and it may be that those who have declared prohibition unenforceable did so at considerable risk, as do all they who deny the possibility of doing something as yet untried. Not all of the enforcement agents have been corrupt, but it has been a matter of common knowledge that many of them were agents of the bootleggers rather than of the Government. In such circumstances, prohibition naturally and inevitably was the "farce" which most people called it.

Whether it was and is necessarily a farce remains to be seen. At any rate) violation of the prohibition laws in this vicinity is ceasing to be the safe and profitable occupation it has been, and perhaps in time compunctions of conscience—meaning fear of punishment and disgrace—may spread to the customers of the bootleggers, upon whom rests, ultimately and wholly, responsibility for all the activities and crimes of the bootlegging fraternity.

To Offend Friends Is Unwise.

Related, not very indirectly, to what is happening here to the illicit traffickers in alcohol is the steady spread in England and in several overseas fractions of the British Empire of a feeling that technical legality is a poor excuse for the continuance of business with American criminals. This feeling was well expressed by SIDNEY BROOKS in a letter to The London Times.

He admitted that no law was broken by sending liquor-laden ships across the Atlantic to line up in "Rum Row," off the eastern American seaboard, but he warned his fellow-Britons that thus to facilitate the systematic violation of a friendly nation's fixed policy was a thing of which Englishmen could not be proud, and of which they well might be ashamed.

Like sentiments have found expression in Canada of late, as well as in Bermuda and the Bahamas, and it hardly is to be doubted that before long the British, however it may be with one or two other nations which have been doing something of the same sorry trade, will find ways to end it.

This Strike Not Like Others.

To read that 14,000 British doctors are threatening a strike if the wages or fees which they have been receiving for professional services rendered to large groups of the British working population are cut is to receive a most unpleasant impression. The same effect is produced by seeing that these doctors constitute a union, after the manner of mechanics and laborers, for it has not been customary for the members of this great and honorable guild thus to protect their material interests and thus to increase their powers of coercion over the public.

But the British "panel doctor" is in a peculiar position, one which he entered with great reluctance and, as he felt, at considerable loss of dignity. By what amounted to compulsion he was forced to become a sort of Government agent—and an ill-paid one at that—and among the tasks imposed on him was that of seeing to it that the health insurance laws were not utilized by malingerers to get doles and escape work. It is only natural that, not treated as professional men, the doctors should cease in some degree to act as such.

Of course, they will not strike in the sense of refusing to treat cases of real illness brought to their attention in the regular way. No doctor can do that, whatever might be his chance of getting satisfactory fees for his service. What he can do is to refuse longer to be a panel doctor, for his excuse is that he cannot live if his already scanty income from this source is decreased as a measure of governmental economy. That will mean, not that the sick are to die untended, but that the Government will have to revise its health insurance plan or find a better one.

PREVENTION AND CURE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Citizens' Committee having the matter in charge has made out a strong case for the bond issue. I hope it will be granted.

But I also hope that those who direct its expenditure will not expend it all on enlarging and equipping our State hospitals and reformatories; and although I write this letter as a plea for the bond issue, I write it also as a plea for a wiser expenditure of some of it than is indicated by the committee.

It is not altogether a bad thing to have State hospitals a very little short in the accommodations of their ward space. Patients get in less easily and out more easily.

The hospitals sadly need more room, but much more and beyond this is there a need to do something to prevent the increase now going on among the people in insanity, mental defect, epilepsy, nervous instability and delinquency.

After all, the fundamental thing in attempting to promote a nation's health is to secure good stock. Suppose that the State of New York finally succeeds in properly rooming its wards, and also in stamping out tuberculosis, smallpox, typhoid, measles and all infectious diseases. If this germ-free, uninfected mass is made up largely of the neurotic, the insane, the defective, the delinquent and the crippled, what have we gained by this racial asepsis? We may have indeed no tuberculosis, but we may have 50 per cent. of morons! Already we have 30,000 to 40,000 feeble-minded and more than that number of insane.

The State and its components ought to organize more effective methods to prevent the development of this bad stock. It is the fundamental measure of preventive medicine. The nervous system is the master tissue of the body, and society falls when it is diseased. Now, preventing such disease is possible, and I hope the bond issue will be voted with this fact in mind.

Some of this issue, for example, should be used in developing mental hygiene clinics and mental preventoria along the best lines, in promoting serious methods of medical school inspection—now mostly a gesture—in promoting sound neuropsychiatric studies, and incidentally eliminating a lot of vicious and silly psychology. The insane should have more room and better facilities for treatment; but, after all, the insane are not all or always much affected by their surroundings, and when the insane get well it is largely by the grace of God and the intelligent restraint of man. Segregation and registration of the defectives do not lessen the number, but only control the increase. The problem of reducing the number is yet unsolved.

Let us spend ten of the fifty millions in helping to solve it and in organizing measures to secure a better stock for the next generation. That will be a great investment.

CHARLES L. DANA, M. D.

A Sunday School Record.

Having read of the record in THE TIMES held by the Salsbury M. D. for twenty-five years' Sunday school attendance, without a break, and also of a Brooklyn scholar with a fifteen-year record, after hesitating for a week I am taking the liberty to write of a fifty-year-old Brooklyn youth who has had the delightful pleasure not to be hindered by sickness or in any other way from being present at the Sunday school for twenty-nine years, but he will gladly give way to the 25-year man, since his own record can hardly be traced for the first eight years now. However, the pastor of the "Brightest Spot in Brooklyn" would vouch for the past twenty-one years of attendance without one Sunday missed. It was noticed nineteen years ago that this youth was steady on the job; for this reason he was made one of the school officers, which honor he still holds.

Miss Constance Allington.

Through the death of Miss Constance Allington at the age of thirty-five those New York girls who might in future years have come under her influence have suffered a grievous loss. Miss Allington came from Scotland ten years ago to teach English literature in the Brearley School. Her rare quality of teaching, coupled with her flame-like personality and her Old World culture, have given many of those who were fortunate enough to be in her classes a love of the beautiful in English literature which will mean much to them throughout their lives.

As a graduate of the Brearley School, and as the mother of four daughters who have had the privilege of Miss Allington's teaching, I want to express the sense of irreparable loss which so many feel in her death.

The World's Series in Marks.

The (financial) result of the planetary-system baseball series (confined to New York City) is magnificent, astounding, staggering. I sat and gloated over the figures in rapt ecstasy until another thought struck me. Why not write to THE NEW YORK TIMES and ask them to publish the full figures in current mark value, not leaving out a single cipher? Will you be so kind as to accede to this harmless desire? Could you not also publish the amount in terms of bread, oleomargarine, fat meats and dried beans for the benefit of impecunious professors, pastors and scientific researchers? By "benefit" I mean the simple pleasure they would derive from an orgy of imagination.

AUTUMN IN THE GARDEN.

Like winds that blow from far, sequestered seas
With song of lonely waters gray and vast,
And undiscovered islands of the past,
Dim in the mists of vanished destinies,
The Autumn winds bring murmuring melodies
From pale horizons where the great hills massed
Like monks for rites of evening chant at last
Farewell to Summer and her mysteries.
Deserted are the aisles where beauty walked
In glowing raiment wrought of leaf and bloom,
And listened to the tales of bee and bird.
Alone, where roses with the Summer talked
Or watched the weaving of her fragrant loom,
Pause now the feet of memory, unheard.

IN THE OCCUPIED AREA.

Franz Boas Cites the Complaints Made Against the French.

So far as I am able to judge, the American public is not well informed in regard to conditions in the occupied area of Germany. I beg leave to state briefly what I myself saw during the months of July and August of the present year.

It is claimed that no colored troops are stationed on the Rhine, or that those present are Moroccans, not negroes. It is true that in the cities along the railroads where foreigners are likely to go there are only Moroccan and Malagash regiments; but the former embrace individuals ranging from the purest negro type to representatives of the Berber and Arab tribes, and the latter include Malay types and pure negro types.

The procedure of the French and Belgians is based on the theory that the occupying forces must be protected against the German population. On this ground, influential citizens, Government and city officials who might, on account of their loyalty to Germany, be suspected of hindering the occupying forces, are expelled, and lately their places have been filled by individuals selected by the French. All those who might be considered as national leaders are being singled out for deportation, under one pretext or another, so that in case of a disturbance self-protection is made difficult, if not impossible. All newspapers are so censored that a free expression of opinion is impossible. Criticism of any of the decisions of the occupying powers is forbidden and punished. Political meetings are not allowed. Until the Spring of this year meetings of Communists were permitted, but when the Communists opposed co-operation with the French these also were forbidden, and during the Summer only meetings of Syndicalists were allowed. On the other hand, the Separatists enjoy the special protection of the French and Belgians. In cases where this protection was not given, the few Separatists who assembled were hooted down by the populace.

The railroads are in a pitiable condition. The roadbeds are overgrown with weeds, crossings in towns are nailed up, so that street traffic is greatly impeded. Public parks are used as play or drill grounds for the soldiers. Where there were formerly well-kept lawns and gardens there are now unkempt and uncared-for plots. On many street corners ill-kept barracks are seen.

Under the pretext that rooms are needed for French workmen, citizens are driven out of their houses. In the beginning—according to reports in the beginning of the year—they were allowed a few days' grace to move with their belongings. Later on in the Spring they were given a few hours only, and had to leave their property behind. Still later, in June, patrols appeared in the middle of the night and required the whole family, parents and children, well and sick, to leave the house inside of three or four hours. The people were not permitted to take away more than they could carry in their hands. This was uniformly stated by those among the expelled whom I had opportunity to interview, as well as by their neighbors. According to an official statement, in one town 180 families were thus expelled from their homes in a single night. In this case some of the houses thus vacated remained unoccupied for three weeks. I myself saw a single Moroccan watchman stationed in such a house. The people who are thus driven from their homes are still further harassed. For instance, one of the families whom I met moved to a hotel, but the hotel keeper was ordered to turn them out.

The discipline of the French Army is not good. I have not seen any case of assault, but I am told that no lady will go out in the evening, because cases of molestation are common. On the other hand, I know of many cases that happened during my visit in which French soldiers have accepted bribes and permitted the circumvention of harassing ordinances.

The claim that the French do not interfere with the importation of foodstuffs is specious. It is true that foodstuffs are allowed to be imported; but traffic in the occupied area is hindered in the most arbitrary way. Street cars and trucks have been forbidden repeatedly, so that the distribution of foodstuffs has been made impossible. In the early months of the year cases of sabotage were used as a pretext to shut off the occupied area from the rest of Germany. Later on, since August, such pretexts were no longer considered necessary, and the border has been closed quite arbitrarily from time to time. In this way it happened in August that school children who were on a visit could not return home, and that sick people were separated from their attendants.

To house the enormous number of soldiers in the occupied area—many more than the garrisons formerly maintained by the Germans—the French have not only exacted the building of many barracks, but they have also requisitioned schools, hospitals and other necessary buildings, so that the schooling of the children and the care of the sick are completely disorganized. The condition of teaching is still further aggravated by the expulsion of many teachers.

The impression given by a visit to the occupied area is that the condition of occupation of the Rhine is to be made so intolerable that the inhabitants will prefer separation from Germany to the continuation of the torture to which they are subjected. This is to be facilitated by the expulsion of leaders and the protection of the Separatists, who are, so far as I can judge, even now an insignificant minority.

Case for the Institute of English.

Apparently attention has not been drawn by any of your readers to a striking evidence as to the need for an Institute of English or other foundation for the standardization of the English language, which was presented in Dr. Donald's second article on this subject. Was it the proof-reader or the writer of the article who employed the construction, "The French Academy is one of the few French institutions which have survived revolutions and dynastic changes"? I should assume that the proof-reader was at fault did I not know that this construction was employed by Boswell in his "Life of Johnson," and had I not frequently heard it used by speakers at public functions.

Some of my friends with whom I have discussed this construction have asserted that it is correct. Obviously, however, it is to the French Academy that the verb applies. Were there a "court of last resort" in such matters, the correct construction would be made known and would be more generally employed, since the work of the Institute of English, for whatever it might be, would create a more general desire for the accurate use of the language.

In such case, too, we should hear fewer public speakers talk of "fertile," "recisely," "pressed," "kawpse," "endeer," et id genus omne.

50,000,000 TO PASS ON BOK PEACE PLAN

Nation-Wide Referendum Will Be Held on Winning Proposal in $100,000 Contest.

Progress of the American Peace Award in preparing for the decision on the $100,000 prize offered by Edward W. Bok for the best practicable plan by which the United States can maintain world peace was outlined last night in a report by Miss Esther Everett Lape of its Policy Committee. The report was made at a dinner to the Co-Operative Council of the award, representing eighty-one organizations, given by Mr. Bok at Sherry's.

Since the award was announced on July 2 more than 345,000 individuals in this country have been supplied with conditions of the award. Many hundreds of thousands more have been acquainted with the conditions through the daily and weekly papers, many of which carried the conditions in full.

The eighty-one national organizations represented in the Co-Operative Council have a membership of between 40,000,000 and 50,000,000. These have agreed to place the plan selected by the jury of award before their members in a referendum which it is proposed to hold to determine the practicability of the proposed plan.

Editorials Favor Plan.

The report said that an analysis of 1,390 editorials from every State in the Union and from many foreign countries showed that 1,281 were distinctly favorable, while only 89 were unfavorable, and that most of the latter represented trivial rather than considered objections.

"The conditions of award are in every one of some 61,000 post offices in the country," the summary of accomplishment read, "and letters from the postmasters from remote villages as well as from cities show that the post office poster has attracted great local interest.

"Through the co-operation of the American Library Association the conditions were placed in every one of some 9,000 libraries. Many of these have written back, some repeatedly, for further copies of the poster for their clients.

"The colleges, universities and local schools in the country have taken the greatest interest in the award. A number of universities are submitting group plans. A number of other universities are preparing to take a referendum on the winning plan in January not only among the Faculty but among their students. The returns will be summarized by the colleges and returned promptly to the American Peace Award.

"In spite of the fact that the competition is open only to American citizens, there has been great interest in the award abroad, as evidenced by requests from these individual citizens and by editorial comment in the foreign press.

"The eighty-one national organizations co-operating with the award represent practically every great organization in the country. They include the American Legion, the American Academy of Political and Social Science, the National American Council, the National Industrial Council, the National Council of American Importers and Traders, the General Conference of the Religious Society of Friends, the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, the National Catholic Welfare Council, the American Jewish Congress, the International Association of Machinists, the Order of Railway Conductors of America, the Foreign Policy Association, the League for Industrial Democracy, the National Fraternal Congress, representing several hundred fraternal organizations throughout the country; the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, the National Women's Trade Union League, the Young Men's Christian Association, the Young Women's Christian Association, the National Education Association, the National League of Women Voters.

Many Organizations Favored.

"In addition to the organizations formerly co-operating with the award, a very large number of associations not able to co-operate in every detail have made the award a subject of discussion or of resolutions at their annual meetings and conventions. These include: The American Association for the Advancement of Science, the American College of Surgeons, the Metal Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, the American Bakers' Association, a number of the State conventions of the American Legion, the American Public Health Association, the American Association of Industrial Physicians and Surgeons, the American Hospital Association, the National American War Mothers, the Ohio Welfare Council, the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women. All of these organizations, however technical or specific, have felt it entirely relevant to call the American Peace Award to the attention of their members. The committee in charge of the award believes that this is incontrovertible evidence that the American people in their various groups are deeply interested in what the realization of the United States to the rest of the world shall be.

"The eighty-one national organizations have co-operated in the following ways: They have placed the conditions before their members; in many instances they are submitting group plans. And, perhaps most important of all, they are assisting in conducting the wide, popular 'referendum' on the winning plan which will be taken throughout the country in January.

"As soon as the Jury of Award has made its selection, the plan chosen will be at once submitted to the people of the country through this informal referendum conducted through the daily and weekly press so far as their co-operation is available, through these eighty-one national organizations and through a large number of local and State organizations which, while not always formally connected with the national organizations forming the Council, are interested in the award and desire to take a referendum of their members.

"Very definite plans for the method of taking the referendum of their members have been laid by most of the organizations, and the meeting of this week was for the purpose of comparing notes among the representatives of the organizations and determining finally the exact method by which each organization could best and most promptly reach its complete membership with the winning plan.

"The aim of the committee in charge of the award is to give every interested man and woman in the country an opportunity to participate in this referendum. It is the first opportunity that the individual in this country has had to make effective his opinion as to what part the United States should play in a plan for international co-operation looking toward the prevention of war.

"Organizations whose memberships totals between forty and fifty million people have already definitely agreed to participate in the referendum."

3 MISSIONS STAY IN TURKEY

American Board Votes to Continue Its Work There Despite the Difficulties.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 19.—When the 700 delegates to the National Council of the Congregational Church read in the newspapers this morning that President Coolidge had joined the First Congregational Church in Washington the news made a profound impression. The council proper was not in session today, and no formal announcement was made of Mr. Coolidge's action.

Today's sessions were given over to the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, which held its 114th annual meeting.

The Rev. Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, President Coolidge's pastor, said today:

"Beyond any doubt the recognition of the overpowering responsibilities that came upon him when Mr. Coolidge became President led him to seek both guidance and support from God."

While it is customary for persons who join the Congregational Church to stand in the presence of the congregation and announce their belief in its articles of faith, it is believed that this formality will not be required of President Coolidge. The denomination permits great freedom as to church procedure, as each congregation is an independent body.

It is considered here a remarkable coincidence that at the time Congregationalists from all parts of the United States and from foreign mission fields were making a pilgrimage to the Edwards Congregational Church, Northampton, Mass., and sitting in pew No. 10, designated by a placard on the cushion as the Coolidge pew, the President was accepting the invitation to make a public profession of the Congregational faith.

The Rev. Dr. Rockwell Harmon Potter, moderator, said he expected some recognition of Mr. Coolidge's action would be taken when the council reconvened tomorrow.

Some Fear Misinterpretation.

While universal approval was expressed by the delegates that Mr. Coolidge had joined the church there were some who said they regretted he had done so just at this time, as they feared his motive might be misinterpreted by political opponents. The consensus of opinion, however, was that it was "a brave, manly and red blooded act" by the President.

After having heard something of the tragic conditions under which missionary work has been carried on in Turkey during the last few years, the American Board passed unanimously these resolutions:

"The American Board recognizes and accepts its unique responsibility for missionary work in Turkey, and proposes to carry it forward as rapidly as circumstances permit.

"The American Board recognizes and accepts its responsibility toward the refugees from Turkey now in Greece, Syria and the Caucasus. It proposes to continue its aid in maintaining the moral and spiritual ideals of these stricken people in their exile.

"The American Board commends the earnest faith and courage of its missionaries in the Near East, which prompts them to plan for a large advance both among the peoples of Turkey and the exiles.

"While it is not practical to fully carry out these plans at present, the board recognizes the work established as important and equally worthy of consideration as that in any of its mission fields."

Raise Fund for Benevolences.

At the end of the session, after addresses by twelve missionaries from as many countries, Elbert Harvey of Boston introduced a resolution requesting that the Church "make real" its appeal for $5,000,000 for its joint benevolences during the year by campaigning for subscriptions. The Rev. William Shaw of Boston subscribed $500, and Percy Jones, formerly Mayor of Indianapolis, subscribed $1,000. Other subscriptions followed until $7,500 was raised.

The board re-elected as President the Rev. Dr. Edward C. Moore of Harvard Divinity School.

At the missionary mass meeting this evening the speakers were the Rev. Dr. James L. Barton of Boston, Senior Secretary of the board, and the Rev. Dr. William H. P. Faunce, President of Brown University.

SHAKESPEARE IN DISPUTE.

British at Odds Over Manuscript Some Ascribe to Poet.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Vernon Rendall, former editor of The Athenæum, writing in The Daily Express, says a Shakespeare discovery of the first magnitude has been made.

For more than a hundred years 147 lines of manuscript have lain in the British Museum. These were an addition to a play written by Anthony Munday on the life of Sir Thomas More and published about 1593. The play was corrected by various hands and it was suggested that one of the scenes was inserted by Shakespeare.

It now has been established by eminent scholars, says Rendall, that the handwriting is that of the poet. Hitherto no specimen of his handwriting has existed except six signatures to his will and signatures to other legal documents. The handwriting of these 147 lines is identical with that of the six signatures written by the Stratford author.

The Daily Express adds: "The manuscript is the most valuable in the world. It can never be bought by Americans unless they buy the British Museum."

Discussing the "great Shakespeare find," The London Times says:

"The most thrilling fact about the discovery is that it is now half a century old, and has been frequently discussed ever since 1871, when it was first ventilated in Notes and Queries. The sudden rebirth of the 'discovery' is said to be based on some papers by Mr. W. Willard Moy, Sir Sidney Greg, Sir Edward Maunde Thompson, Mr. John Dover Wilson and Mr. R. W. Chambers, just published by the Cambridge University Press under the title of 'Shakespeare's Hand in the Play of Sir Thomas More.' The great Shakespeare find resolves itself into a fresh discussion of the old theory which can never satisfactorily be settled until something written by Shakespeare more elaborate than his signatures is discovered."

Lord Mayor of York Sails Today.

J. B. Inglis, the Lord Mayor of York, and Mrs. Inglis, are sailing on the Olympic today after spending several months traveling in this country and Canada. They have been at the McAlpin for several days and regretted that they were unable to remain for the races in Belmont Park today. The Lord Mayor carries with him the Mayor's chain, a solid gold three-strand chain of fine workmanship. Two of the strands are 500 years old and the third loop was presented by King James in 1603. The Lady Mayoress's chain has six strands and is 300 years old. Together they weigh several pounds and are of great value.

Frederick Firth Was in Car Which Skidded Into Elevated Pillar in the Bronx.

TROOPER MAY NOT RECOVER

Jacobson Has Concussion of the Brain After Collision — Hurts to Two Others May Be Fatal.

Frederick Firth, 60 years old, who said he was a banker and lived at 911 Park Avenue, was seriously injured last night when he was thrown out of an automobile in which he was riding when it struck an elevated pillar at White Plains Road and Gunhill Road, the Bronx. The owner of the car, Andrew Kerwin, a builder, of 200 West Fifty-eighth Street, was driving and he said that his car skidded on the wet pavement. Mr. Firth, who was bruised and also injured internally, was taken to Fordham Hospital by Dr. Uhl, who said that Mr. Firth might not recover.

Charles Jacobson, a trooper of the State constabulary, is in a critical condition as the result of a collision between his motorcycle and an automobile on Westchester Avenue near Broad Street, Mount Vernon. When Jacobson was removed to the United Hospital at Port Chester he was unconscious, with a concussion of the brain and internal injuries. Frank Nimo of Boston, driver of that car, later was arraigned before Judge Coward at Port Chester and committed to the White Plains jail in default of $1,000 bail on a charge of reckless driving.

Woman Says She Was Hurried Into Signing False Statements About Mrs. Stokes.

REPUDIATES THE AFFIDAVIT

Negroes Swear They Saw Mrs. Stokes With Wallace—Stokes Employe Ejected as Signaller.

The charge that W. E. D. Stokes had tricked her into signing a false affidavit was made by Mrs. Elinore Williams of Bethel, Conn., in a subsequent affidavit, both of which were introduced in evidence yesterday at the divorce trial in the Supreme Court. In repudiating the first affidavit Mrs. Williams said that Stokes hurried her into signing her name without giving her an opportunity to read the statement.

In the original statement, sworn to by her in Stokes's office on July 17, 1922, Mrs. Williams, who is the wife of a farmer, said that her home was directly opposite that of W. Leon Pepperman, Vice President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, and about three miles from the Bethel railroad station. Some time in 1913, the affidavit stated, Miss Daisy Hays asked Mrs. Williams to drive her and a woman friend, a "Mrs. Wynn," to the station to meet Mr. Pepperman and Edgar T. Wallace, who has been named by Stokes as co-respondent. Mrs. Williams identified a photograph of Mrs. Stokes as a portrait of "Mrs. Wynn." The affidavit describes hilarity on the Pepperman lawn and familiarities between Wallace and "Mrs. Wynn" without and within the house. When Max D. Steuer, Stokes's lawyer, finished reading the affidavit, Samuel Untermyer, for Mrs. Stokes, demanded that the second affidavit, sworn to four months later, be read.

"Mrs. Wynn" Not Mrs. Stokes.

In it she told of her visit to Stokes's office, which followed luncheon with him at the Ansonia. She denied that "Mrs. Wynn" was Mrs. Stokes, and declared that the man mentioned was not Wallace, and said that the lawn-party guests were not boisterous.

"If I had known the contents of the affidavit," said Mrs. Williams, "I would never have signed it, nor would I have sworn to its truth. On the contrary, it is replete with statements that are untrue, and I charge Mr. Stokes with deliberately tricking me into signing said affidavit, for there have been inserted therein matters that are wholly false and untrue and which I never stated."

Several days after she returned to her home she received the affidavit. When she read it, she said, she immediately telephoned Stokes and told him that she was shocked at its contents. She corrected it, she said, but the corrections were not included in the affidavit.

Mrs. Jeannette Carter, a negress, testified yesterday that while employed by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Branders at Darien, Conn., and at 170 West Seventy-third Street, she had seen Wallace and Mrs. Stokes. Phillip Butterfield and his wife, Elinore Butterfield, negroes, of Greenwich, Conn., both testified having seen Mrs. Stokes at the Branders home at Darien, where they were employed. During the examination of Mrs. Carter, Justice Mahoney ordered Hattie Johnson, a negress employed by Stokes, out of the court room, upon the request of Mr. Untermyer. According to Mrs. Stokes's lawyers, they suspected she was signalling the witnesses. Adjournment was taken until Monday.

Negro Sues Stokes for $50,000.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—A suit or $50,000 damages against W. E. D. Stokes of New York, who is suing his wife for divorce in that city, was filed today by Daniel Jackson, a negro real estate agent. His attorneys said the suit was for libel and slander involving Jackson and Mrs. Stokes.

FAIL TO LINK KILLING WITH BUS HOLD-UP

PRISONER AIDS INQUIRY

Declares Youth Shot by Detective Had No Part in Attempted Robbery—Seek Wounded Man.

Chief Assistant District Attorney Pecora announced yesterday that an investigation of the alleged hold-up last Saturday night of Robert McAllister, a suspended detective, and Detective Sergeants Keating and Roewer, in a bus at East End Avenue and Seventy-ninth Street, had definitely established that Charles Murdock, a youth whose bullet-ridden body was found the same night at First Avenue and Twentieth Street, was not shot at the time of the bus affair.

He said that Thomas Kleint, who was arrested by Keating and Roewer at the time of the hold-up, had admitted that Murdock was not one of the men who attempted to rob McAllister. Mr. Pecora described Keating's identification of the body as that of the man who was shot by him during the alleged hold-up as "a stupid blunder," and said that Kleint, who is a prisoner in the Tombs on a charge of felonious assault, had admitted that a man who fired two shots at the detectives had been wounded twice in the shoulder by Detective Keating's bullets and had fled the city.

Mr. Pecora said that the identity of this man had been revealed to the police, who expected to arrest him in a short time.

"There is no doubt in my mind that Murdock was killed at some place and under circumstances wholly unrelated to the alleged attempted hold-up by Kleint and another man," said Mr. Pecora. "The indications are that Murdock was killed fully half an hour before the shooting between Detective Keating and Kleint's companion. I know the identity of Kleint's companion. He was wounded by Keating, but not severely.

"It is difficult to understand how he made his escape after the shooting. The motives for the killing and the circumstances surrounding it are matters which the police will have to solve."

Mr. Pecora said that his examination of witnesses in the alleged hold-up indicated that it was not inspired by ill-feeling against McAllister, and that robbery was the sole motive. McAllister, who was suspended from the force when he was indicted for perjury in connection with a seizure of liquor, was temporarily employed as the driver of the bus and shortly before the alleged hold-up had applied for protection to Keating and Roewer, following an altercation with two other bus employes.

It was said the police have begun an investigation to learn whether it was possible that Murdock was shot in a quarrel over a division of loot in the $4,000 gem robbery at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel on Oct. 8.

Mr. Pecora said that his investigation of the alleged hold-up and the killing of Murdock would be continued today.

SENATE PRESIDENCY BONE OF CONTENTION

Cummins Will Be a Candidate, but Friends Seek the Place for Lodge.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Although the new Congress will not assemble until December, the lines are already being laid for a contest over the organization of the Senate. Leading Senators have received word that Senator Cummins of Iowa will be a candidate for President of the Senate, a place left vacant by the elevation of Mr. Coolidge to the Presidency. There is a prospect that some of the radical element, which will have considerable strength in the next Senate, will decide to oppose Mr. Cummins.

Certain Republican Senators desire to have Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas elected floor leader of the Republican side. In the last Congress this place was held by Senator Lodge. The desire on the part of these Senators is to have Mr. Lodge elected President of the Senate instead of Mr. Cummins.

When Mr. Coolidge, as Vice President, was the President of the Senate the position of President pro tempore was held by Mr. Cummins. Going to the Senate as a pronounced Progressive and still insisting that he has not changed, Mr. Cummins is now in the bad books of the Radical and Radical-Progressive elements of the Republican Party mainly because of his sponsorship of the Esch-Cummins Transportation act.

The President of the Senate will receive the same salary as the Vice President, $13,000 a year, and will have the Vice Presidential motor car furnished by the Government for Mr. Coolidge.

CABINET CRISIS IN RUMANIA.

Alleged Fascist Plot Disclosure Expected to Cause Its Fall.

BUCHAREST, Oct. 19 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—The fall of the Rumanian Cabinet looms as a possibility in consequence of the unearthing of an alleged plot by local Fascisti to assassinate a number of Government Ministers and other leading Rumanians.

M. Vlatoiano, Minister of the Interior, who has been charged in some quarters with being too lenient with the Fascisti, has submitted his resignation. The Minister of Agriculture, M. Constantineacu, has announced that he also stands with Vlatoiano. His resignation and others are expected to follow, and it is believed likely that an entire new Cabinet will be designated. Premier Bratiano has conferred with the King regarding the incident.

The alleged plot was disclosed following the assassination of M. Rosenthal, editor of the newspaper Adverul, whose name appeared first on the death list said to have been prepared by the Fascisti.

Ford Will Aid Deeper Hudson Plan.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 19.—Henry Ford will aid the deeper Hudson project which calls for Federal dredging of the Hudson River to Albany and Troy, 150 miles above New York. It was learned today following his conference with a delegation from the two New York cities. "As Mr. Ford views it," a statement issued by the delegation said, "the deeper Hudson project would bring deep sea ships 150 miles nearer the Great Lakes and other commerce producing centres of Northeastern United States and effect a great saving in freight." Mr. Ford has a new plant at Green Island, at the head of tidewater on the Hudson, and the terminal of the proposed deep channel.

Many People Pass Your Store~ Do They Enter—and Buy?

THE number of people that pass your store does not matter. Crowds of potential buyers pass every store daily. Your profits depend on the number who stop, enter and buy.

No factor does more to attract attention to your store than good lighting. Nothing else makes merchandise so attractive and thus accentuates quality in goods. No other element adds so much to the hospitality and welcome of a store, or extends such a warm invitation for customers to return. And, most important of all perhaps, good store lighting practically guarantees customers' later satisfaction with the things they buy.

Is your store profitably lighted? Does your lighting give your merchandise a fair chance in a competitive market?

It will pay you to get the kind of lighting that will. Our lighting specialists will be glad to assist you in planning lighting improvements that will help your store produce larger sales and greater profits.

QUINN OF CALIFORNIA HEADS THE LEGION

Cowboy Leader of Overseas Battery Pledges Fight for Bonus—Is Urged Against It.

FOUR CANDIDATES IN FIELD

MINNESOTAN IS CHAPLAIN

E. C. Clemans Is Elected by Acclamation—Bay State Woman President of Auxiliary.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 19 (Associated Press).—A tired hand yielded the executive management of the American Legion to a newly elected National Commander when Alvin Owsley, retiring Commander, turned over to John R. Quinn of California the responsibility of guiding the destinies of the Legion for 1923-24 at the close of the fifth annual convention of the organization here tonight.

Owsley, weary from his year's strife, his 65,000 miles of traveling during his administration in behalf of the Legion and showing a loss of twenty-five pounds, smiled a wan smile as he took Commander Quinn by the hand and said:

"I turn you over to the mercies of the newspaper men, the photographers and the public."

A far different type of man took up Owsley's burden. Quinn, cowboy and a typical Westerner of the open plains, immediately announced he would dedicate his administration to conducting a vigorous campaign to obtain immediate passage of the ex-service men adjusted compensation act and a close and human contact between the disabled veterans and the Government agencies in charge of rehabilitation and hospitalization.

Victory on Eleventh Ballot.

Quinn was elected on the eleventh ballot today. His total vote was 502, compared with 342 for James A. Drain of Washington, D. C., 30 for Major Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, retired, of Boston, and 54 for Wilder S. Metcalf of Kansas, with fifteen absent or not voting.

The following national Vice Commanders were elected:

The only other elective officer in the Legion, that of national chaplain, was filled by Esra C. Clemans of Minnesota, who was elected by acclamation.

While the convention was officially closed today until next December, when it will convene at St. Paul, a grand ball was held here tonight as part of the official program. Four bands furnished music for the dancers, and 2,000 San Francisco girls participated.

Quinn Gets Anti-Bonus Letter.

The first communication received by the newly elected commander was a letter signed by M. E. Saville, formerly Colonel in the Ninety-first Division, in which Commander Quinn was urged to drop his plan to fight for the bonus. Saville said in part:

"The hope of the Legion in demanding a bonus from the Federal Treasury is a forlorn and hopeless one, because it is not sound. Drop the Federal bonus idea. It is a false proposition. As I understand it, the Legion could once show a couple of million names on its rolls, and now it has dropped to something like 400,000 paid up.

Quinn made the statement after his election:

"As National Commander of the American Legion I shall endeavor always to interpret the ideals and achieve the aims of my comrades in service. I shall carry on the right the Legion has always waged for the disabled men and women, who have done so much for their country. I shall seek to secure a close and human contact between them and the governmental agencies dealing with their welfare.

"I shall conduct an active and vigorous campaign to secure the immediate passage of the adjusted compensation act, urged by the fifth national convention of the Legion.

"With the help of the thousands of men who have dedicated their lives to the principles set forth in the preamble of the American Legion constitution and who now constitute the membership of the American Legion, I expect to see the accomplishment of greater deeds to the benefit of our glorious Republic."

Quinn Led Battery in France.

John R. Quinn was born in 1889, near Porterville, Cal. His early education was received in public schools and completed at the University of California, from which he was graduated in 1912.

He was commissioned at the Second Officers' Training Camp, Presidio, San Francisco, as Captain of Field Artillery and assigned to the 348th Field Artillery, going overseas in command of Battery F of that organization.

He was with the Army of Occupation and returned to the United States in April, 1919.

In 1921 Quinn was named Department Commander of the American Legion of California, leaving that office in 1922. He was at New Orleans and extended the invitation of San Francisco for the entertainment of the 1923 Legion convention.

MOLTEN METAL KILLS FIVE STEEL WORKERS

FARRELL, Pa., Oct. 19.—A crane operator was roasted to death in his steel cage, and four other men were so badly burned that they died in a hospital, when a cable slipped and spilled a ladle of seventy tons of molten steel at the Farrell plant of the Carnegie Steel Company last night.

The dead: Clayton Fisher of Sharpsville, John Hoobler of Trout's Corners, Robert Phillips of Wheatland, Claude Semler of Sharon and Theodore Brown of Farrell.

Semler, the craneman in the open hearth department, had just hooked up the giant ladle, carrying its seventy tons of steel, hoisted to 2,500 degrees, to the load approached the elevated pouring platform, on which the four workmen were standing, the cable slipped and the mass of molten metal crashed to the earthen floor as it fell the steel exploded, probably because of dampness in the floor.

Tries for 3 Months to Find Right Court, and Gets 10 Days

"Your Honor, since this policeman gave me this summons three months ago I have been doing my best to find this court," declared John Spears, a chauffeur, of 872 Whitlock Avenue, the Bronx, when he was arraigned yesterday before Magistrate House in the Traffic Court for failing to obey a summons issued to him for speeding by Motorcycle Policeman Hill.

"Is that so?" remarked the Court. "I'll sentence you to ten days in the workhouse and I advise you to write down the address of this Court and then get a map of the city so that you can memorize its location while you are in jail."

The policeman said that he caught Spears operating his car at twenty-seven miles an hour on Lenox Avenue.

COMPLETES DRAFT OF WALTON OUSTER

Oklahoma House May Take It Up Monday if Charges Are Agreed Upon.

Special to The New York Times.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 19.—The resolution calling for the impeachment and removal from office of Governor J. C. Walton has been drafted and the present program is for representative Disney, Chairman of the Committee on Impeachment and Investigation, to offer it in the House Monday afternoon, but it may be held back until the middle of the week.

One faction in the committee wants to limit the articles of impeachment to not more than fifteen while the other faction is urging that the specifications include every charge made against the Governor and in that event the articles, it was said, will number about sixty-five. In the end the charges will, in the opinion of the House leaders, number about twenty.

When the impeachment resolution is offered in the House, it is the intention of the anti-Walton leaders to force a vote with the least possible delay. The minority, about 20 of the 107 members, is insisting that witnesses be called to the House, but the majority is expected to limit the debate after three hours and to call no witnesses till the Governor is placed on trial in the Senate, when opportunity for cross-examination will be given.

The House held a stormy session this afternoon and voted a hurried adjournment following the introduction of a resolution by Representative White, a farmer Republican from Logan County, "to curb the activity of members of the K. K. K. in their use of signs, codes or passwords in the course of their deliberations on the floor of this House."

Simmons, a Senate circulation tonight that the Governor is about to resign. The rumors are not taken seriously and the Governor's friends insist that despite the odds against him will fight on to the last.

Kin of Will Rogers Rails at House.

John Gulagar, the humorist of the House, who is a first cousin of Will Rogers, the lariat philosopher, said today that "the big trouble is that there are too many candidates for high office in the Legislature," all of whom at the expense of speed are busy getting their political beehives in shape for the 1924 campaign.

In the course of this afternoon's session Mr. Gulagar sent to the desk a resolution which, he explained, outlines the situation in the House. All efforts to suppress the resolution failed. It read:

"Whereas the author, knowing and believing himself to be the ideal as well as idle candidate for a Governor, United States Senator, Speaker of the House, President of the Senate, Justice of the Peace, Secretary of War, boa'n of the navy, Prohibition Commissioner, member of the force for the extraordinary protection of the State, Postmaster, Poundmaster, or any other paying office within the gift of the sovereign voters of the fallen empire of Oklahoma, and

"Whereas a handful of unselfish members of this august body in this October month, duly assembled together in lawful session at the calle of the wild have resoluted and resolved, revolved and dissolved, and announced themselves as fitting candidates for office in the communities which they represent or misrepresent; and

"Whereas oodles of time are being spent in an endeavor to nail some political hides on the ornate doors of this beautiful unfinished State House, at the expense of the poor, downtrodden taxpayers, cotton raisers, wheat growers, office holders and tenant farmers who do their thinking through the news and editorial columns of the newspapers, that being the kept squealing by a kept or unkept press; therefore be it

"Resolved, That this royal body of corn-fed and corn-injected legislators, visible now and hitting up at the royal snake every two minutes, appoint a selected corpse in this Invisible Empire to proceed to business and bury the dead if there is to be a funeral, otherwise remove the flowers of speech, close the royal assembly halls and get back home for the feed and for the salvation of the misguided constituents who have sent them here."

"I am hopeful," said Mr. Gulagar, "that the House will heed the warning. We have a big job on hand, and it's time to take it up and finish it."

Mr. Gulagar is an anti-Walton Democrat.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 19 (Associated Press).—Attorney General George S. Short was instructed today by the lower house of the State Legislature to start criminal proceedings against all public officials and private individuals who tried to present the special election Oct. 27.

The House acted by adopting, by a vote of 88 to 2, a resolution to prosecute all accused of violating laws which provide for interfering with an election.

Bailing was arrested after a witness to the killing, in which one of the three hold-up men was killed, had identified a photograph of him. Detective Sergeant Trainer told Magistrate Frederick B. House that the witness was unable to identify Bailing, however, in a "line-up" at Police Headquarters.

FILIPINOS HEARD WOOD IN SILENCE

NEW MOVE TO ASK RECALL

Coalition Leaders Consider an Appeal to Congress or to the Courts Here.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MANILA, Oct. 19.—Governor General Wood's appearance in the Legislature yesterday at noon to read his message at the opening of the session was a dramatic occasion, chiefly noteworthy on account of the profound silence prevailing from the moment he entered until he concluded a half hour later.

The joint session took place in the historic Marble Hall, where the first Philippine Assembly was organized and which now is used as the session hall of the House of Representatives. The usual formalities were gone through, and at 11:30 the Senate arrived in a body, headed by its Speaker, Manuel Quezon, who looked extremely ill and seemed to have aged ten years in the past few days. Señor Fernandez arrived a little later and he was the only Senator to receive an ovation. Quezon and the boyish Speaker, Roxas, of the Assembly, sat solemnly on the platform until the Governor General was announced at 11:38, when, following the lead of the presiding officers, everybody arose. General Wood entered from the rear, followed a pace or two behind by Major Gen. Read, Department Commander, and Admiral Marvel commandant of the navy yard, both in service uniform with swords. Immediately behind, in a white uniform, came Osborne Wood, son and aid to the Governor General, bearing copies of the message for Quezon and Roxas.

No demonstration of any sort greeted General Wood as he marched up the aisle, the members of the Legislature staring stolidly ahead as the Chief Executive passed. When he mounted the platform he was greeted by Quezon and Roxas, still preserving their serious mien. Absolute silence reigned throughout the Governor General's reading, which proceeded in an even, modulated voice. He emphasized every few passages, and particularly the concluding paragraph, wherein he made a final plea for harmony and co-operation.

Not a single handclap or exclamation marked the occasion, the features of most of the Legislators being absolutely blank, with that peculiar Oriental blankness that might mean nothing or very much.

When General Wood terminated his reading the assemblage arose, and the Gubernatorial Party departed as silently as they entered.

Legislators Renew Opposition.

Perfect silence reigned amid the undoubted tension occasioned by the publication of Secretary Weeks's cable. It was a perfect expression of the diplomatic non-co-operation policy which had been adopted by the majority.

The Senate clerk then read the Quezon-Roxas resolution asking for a joint session to endorse all the previous acts of the department secretaries, the Council of State and the Independence Commission during the crisis since July 17. A second reading by the clerk of the House followed whereon Senator Terona, leader of the Senate minority, called attention to Weeks's cable, which had been published in an American morning paper, and expressed doubt of the advisability of immediately passing such a resolution. In connection with the dent Coolidge and Secretary Weeks had approved of unquestioning support to General Wood. He thought the matter required careful deliberation if it were to be treated in a manner most serviceable to the Filipino cause.

Senator Osmena wanted immediate approval, but after a brief discussion, Senor Roxas suggested delay for a day, which was adopted by both Houses.

The matter was taken up again today and Quezon appears to have triumphed, with one joint session unanimously approving the Osmena resolution endorsing the resolutions of the Independence Commission of July 23, supporting the stand of the late Cabinet, condemning General Wood's policy, urging his recall, asking immediate and complete independence, and the appointment of a Filipino Governor General.

All day long the Democrats attempted to have the resolution referred to a committee and revised because of the Weeks cable, but Quezon and Osmena remained firm and insisted on passage of the measure as it stood, which was done.

May Again Demand Weed's Recall.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

MANILA, Oct. 18 (Delayed).—After unanimously passing the Osmena resolution ratifying the resignations of the Council of State, the Philippine Coalition leaders are now preparing to launch a resolution urging the recall of Governor General Wood pending independence, but so far the move has not gone beyond the discussion stage.

Weeks's Cable Divides Filipinos.

MANILA, Oct. 19 (Associated Press).—The message from Secretary Weeks repledging the support of the American Administration to Governor General Wood's régime in the Philippine Islands, has been received with much gratification by Americans and with mixed feelings by Filipinos.

Some Filipinos leaders take the view that the message is a political move which Washington was obliged to make for party reasons, regardless of whether it was believed Wood was right.

The newspapers editorially recognise Governor General Wood has the support of Washington and declare the Filipinos' only chance now is to take the matter of Wood's status and their independence directly before the American Congress and the American people. The papers say Secretary Weeks has been misled and by unequivocally backing up Wood has gone contrary to the spirit and intention of the Jones law. They state the belief that the American people realise this.

TOKIO, Oct. 19.—I am grateful to The TIMES for this opportunity to thank the American people for their marvellous generosity in our time of terrible trial. Their noble action has struck chords in our hearts which will vibrate forever.

Their countrymen in Japan, the American Ambassador, Mr. Woods, his entire staff, and other American residents stayed with us through the darkest hours of our calamity like soldiers at posts of duty, giving aid and comfort to our stricken people. Disasters may hurl down monuments of stone and bronze, time may wear them into dust, but nothing can destroy our precious memories of American service and heroism during the most appalling convulsion of the elements in all recorded history.

GALLATIN TO TALK ON PARK SUBWAY

West End Association Invites the Commissioner to Address a Meeting.

AN APPEAL TO THE PUBLIC

Citizens Will Be Asked to Join Crusade Against Proposed Change in Route.

In order that it may take suitable action on the proposed re-routing under the west side of Central Park of the Washington Heights extension of the B. M. T. subway, the West End Association, one of the oldest civic organizations on the west side of Manhattan, has invited Park Commissioner Francis D. Gallatin to discuss that proposal at a meeting of the association at the Ansonia on the evening of Nov. 12.

William D. Gaillard, President of the West End Association, said that he believed every park encroachment should be vigorously opposed.

"At our regular meeting on Nov. 12 we have asked Park Commissioner Gallatin to speak to us on the subject of the new subway," he continued. Of course, our information concerning the proposed re-routing has been gathered almost entirely from newspaper articles, and we want to hear from Commissioner Gallatin who is perhaps best qualified to discuss the undertaking before the Association takes action.

"I suppose we will hear more of the matter from Mr. Ahearn. I was surprised that he should have suggested it, because he is a man of light and reason. My feeling about it is that if they could possibly go deep enough under the surface of the park as they have done under the corner of the park between 104th and 110th Streets without disturbing the surface of the park, it might be all right. But a subway that would have to make use of open cuts and would involve the loss of trees and other alterations of the landscape should be most vigorously opposed.

"I walk along the park every day, and I can readily understand the damage that would be caused by building an open cut subway on the west side of the park with the sacrifice of hundreds of trees. But I am not speaking for the Association—only my personal views."

The West End Association is now in its fortieth year, and its membership includes 700 property holders and residents of the upper west side.

Miss Mabel Parsons on the Plan.

The following letter was received yesterday by THE NEW YORK TIMES:

Hotel San Reno,
Oct. 19, 1923.

Dear Sir: In connection with the proposed important Central Park West subway route under Central Park as planned by the New York Transit Commission, may I claim a few lines of your valuable space to express mine and I would say the condemnation of the plan by my father, the late Samuel Parsons, landscape architect and former associate of Calvert Vaux, who with Frederick Law Olmsted designed Central Park?

And may I say that for over twenty years I was actively his amanuensis? During the thirty years of my father's connection with the New York City parks as superintendent, landscape architect and Park Commissioner, there were countless hard struggles to protect Central Park from intrusion by schemes of all kinds, race track, world's fair, statues innumerable and buildings of all kinds. My father always stood firm on the principle that a park should be used for park purposes only, and in addition he considered that it took many years and much money to restore trees destroyed. In this case are the trees likely ever to be restored? On upper Broadway and Union Square the trees, as we all know, were destroyed by just such promises and subway proceedings.

Yours very truly,
MABEL PARSONS.

Appeal to the Public.

The Park and Playgrounds Association, which, under the leadership of its President, George Gordon Battle, adopted resolutions opposing the contemplated subway encroachment and appointed a committee to lay its protest before the Transit Commission, announced yesterday that it was issuing an appeal to civic and other organizations, as well as individuals interested in the preservation of the parks, to join the crusade against the rerouting of the Washington Heights line so that it would run under and through the west side of Central Park. Copies of its resolutions were furnished to other organizations which it hopes to enlist in the fight.

The Parks and Playgrounds Association was advised by C. N. Lowrie, Chairman of the Parks Committee of the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Landscape Architects, that a committee of that organization would finish early next week its survey of the effects on Central Park of open-cut rapid transit line through Central Park. If possible the survey will be completed in time for the results to be submitted to the Transit Commission.

The anti-park encroachment forces hope to gain the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society as their ally. Its former officers, that organization, headed by Dr. George F. Kunz, has vigorously fought proposed encroachments on Central Park.

MILLS SAYS SMITH IS 'SPLITTING HAIRS'

IDEA SPREAD BY WORKERS

Candidate Made No Attempt to Disabuse the Public Mind, Congressman Asserts.

Congressman Ogden L. Mills replied yesterday to Governor Smith's denial of his assertion that he had "bunked" the voters into believing that his election as Governor would mean the return of light wine and beer. Repeating his original charge, Mr. Mills declared that the Governor apparently believed that the voters "bunked" themselves.

"I have your letter of Oct. 18, in which you take exception to a statement made by me in a speech delivered two days ago to the effect that 'last year he bunked the people of the State into believing that his election would mean the return of light wine and beer,'" Mr. Mills wrote in a letter to the Governor.

"The facts on which I based that statement are as follows: Last Fall, in making a personal canvass of my Congressional district, I met man after man who told me he was going to vote for you for Governor because your election meant the return of light wine and beer. It was not a question of a few isolated individuals, but a very definite and widespread belief. I looked further into the matter and discovered that the same was true of other districts in New York City. The idea had not grown of itself. It had spread because it had been carefully fostered and promoted by Democratic captains and workers. All of this was common knowledge and must have been known to you. Yet during the entire campaign you made no attempt to disabuse the public mind.

"You say that my statement is untrue because you individually never promised beer and light wine in the event of your election. But this is hair-splitting. The fact is that hundreds of thousands of people in New York City voted for you because of this existing misconception. Alfred E. Smith as an individual may disclaim responsibility for it. But Alfred E. Smith as the leading member of Tammany Hall, Alfred E. Smith as the leader of the Democratic Party in the State, and Alfred E. Smith, the chief beneficiary arising from this misconception cannot disclaim responsibility. The people of this city were 'bunked.' I say that they were bunked by your party and by you as its responsible leader. Your denial indicates that you believe they bunked themselves. But you, Governor, as an intelligent machine Democrat, just as I as 'an intelligent machine Republican,' know that this is not so."

Governor Smith left here yesterday afternoon to attend the Governors' conference on prohibition called by President Coolidge at Washington before Mr. Mills's letter to him was made public.

DENVER SEEKS CONVENTION

Adams Says It Is a "Serious Contender" for Republican 1924 Meeting.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Chairman Adams of the Republican National Committee, returning today from a trip through the West, brought word that Denver was a "serious contender" among cities desiring to secure the Republican National Convention next year.

Although there is a wide impression among party leaders that Chicago is leading the race for the convention city Mr. Adams said that prominent local interests were backing Denver's campaign.

Republican factional difficulties in some of the Western States, Mr. Adams said, have been ironed out and party lines strengthened.

"The Republican organizations in the West are in good shape," the Chairman declared. "There is little or no factional trouble. They realize the campaign will be hard fought in that section of the country, but they are confident as to the result.

"Political conditions in the West, like those elsewhere, are dependent upon economic conditions. The public naturally associates prosperity with the Republican Party. Whatever improvement is made in business and agriculture, therefore, reacts to the benefit of the Republican Party.

"Business conditions throughout the West are reported incomparably better than two years or a year ago. The agricultural and live stock interests of that section have been helped by the Republican Party through every crisis they have experienced. Naturally they look to it at this time to bring them out of their present difficulties."

Marsh, one of the Republican candidates for Justice of the Supreme Court, who has held a place on that bench by appointment.

The statement read:

"We, the undersigned, former Justices of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, express our conviction that Robert McC. Marsh, by his services as a member of said court, amply demonstrated his fitness for the office, and we recommend to the voters, irrespective of party, that they cast their ballots for him at the coming election."

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Oct. 19.—Developments in the situation here in connection with the Ku Klux Klan and the mayoralty campaign today included a statement by J. J. McNicholas, acting Chief of Police, that, if necessary, his men would be ordered to "shoot to kill" to stop a proposed Klan parade here.

McNicholas said late yesterday that he would not grant a permit for the Klan parade scheduled for Nov. 10, that policemen would be ordered to disperse such a parade by peaceful means if possible, and that if persuasion failed they would be told to shoot to kill.

WRIT BARS EMBLEM OF CITIZENS' PARTY

APPEAL WILL BE TAKEN

Justice Vernon M. Davis Considers Use of Indicator Would Confer an Unlawful Advantage.

The petition of Phoenix Ingraham, one of the Democratic nominees for Justice of the Supreme Court to restrain the Board of Elections from printing on the official ballot as the emblem of the Independent Citizens' Party, the new Hearst organization, a pointing hand, was granted yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Vernon M. Davis. The decision immediately was served upon President John R. Voorhis of the Board of Elections. Counsel for the Independent Citizens' Party announced they would carry the matter to a higher court.

In his petition Mr. Ingraham contended that the pointing hand, also used as an indicating mark at the top of the ballot with the instructions "vote for ten" would, if used as an emblem of a political party, be confusing and might lead many voters to believe that the admonition "vote for ten" meant to vote for the ten candidates whose names appeared opposite the mark. In his decision Justice Davis said:

"The Citizens' Independent Party has selected a pointing hand as its emblem to be used in the approaching election and which it seeks to have printed on the official ballot opposite the space in which voters make their voting cross. Mr. Ingraham, one of the ten Democratic candidates for the office of Justice of the Supreme Court, asks the Court to determine that the emblem (a pointing hand) chosen by said Citizens' Independent Party, is not a proper symbol and thereafter to direct the Board of Elections not to print said symbol upon the official ballots. Mr. Donohue, another of the ten Democratic candidates, joins in the application.

"Section 330 of the Election Law, subdivision 3, makes it the duty of the Supreme Court to determine the right to the use of an emblem by any candidate or party in a proceeding instituted by any candidate aggrieved, or by the chairman of any committee as defined in Section 2 of the act.

"The emblem which objection is made is the well known and widely used pointing hand. Its almost exclusive use is to direct, to guide, and draw to the object pointed at the special attention of the beholder. Its peculiarity is that it speaks convincingly to every beholder of whatever tongue. This hand, when printed upon the official ballot, will point with some degree of peremptoriness to the voting spaces directly opposite to it as the place to put the voting cross of the voter. When it is considered that it is put there with the official sanction it is more than probable that many voters of only moderate intelligence would consider the pointing hand as a positive direction to vote in the space so conspicuously pointed out with official sanction.

"In my opinion the symbol selected, if printed on the ballot, would not be a proper one, not only because it is misleading to the voter but also because its use upon the ballot would confer unwarranted advantage upon the party using the emblem.

"The other contentions made by respondents are decided adversely to them.

"Motion granted in accordance with this opinion."

James J. Hoey, Chairman of the Democratic Judiciary Committee, commented on the decision as follows:

"The decision was exactly as expected by all right-minded men and women, regardless of their party affiliation. The people of New York are noted for their fairness. They like a square deal in everything. The use of a pointing hand as a party emblem was a diabolically crooked scheme to deceive a voter and influence him to vote the Hearst-Koenig ticket.

"No higher public duty was ever performed than the proceeding brought by Mr. Ingraham to prevent this fraud."

The opposition will take the same view, Professor Leslie J. Tompkins, Chairman of the Non-Partisan Judiciary Committee, said:

"The pointing hand emblem is not a new one in local politics. It did not originate for this campaign. It has been used heretofore by Municipal Court Justice Leo Prince when running as a Tammany and independent candidates as long ago as 1917, by Michael Fogarty, who ran for Congress on the Third District in Brooklyn in 1918, and by Andrew J. Coplis in 1919. An arrow was used by the late Mayor John Purroy Mitchel when he was a candidate of the Business Men's League in 1913."

HULBERT CONQUERS GRIP.

Takes Quinine and Whisky and Attends Budget Hearing.

Acting Mayor Murray Hulbert recovered sufficiently from an incipient attack of grip to appear yesterday at a meeting of the Board of Estimate and later to sit at a session of budget making.

"I feel much better today," said Mr. Hulbert. "I worked here in the City Hall until half past 9 last night and until 1 o'clock at home. Then I took quinine and whisky and went to bed. When I closed my eyes I made up my mind that I wasn't going to get very sick. Between that and the quinine and whisky—well, here I am. My throat is sore and I will have to go easy on talking."

The Board of Estimate finished its calendar rapidly. A resolution was adopted authorizing the laying out of a park at Eighteenth Avenue and Eighty-first Street, Brooklyn. The plot comprises an area of half an acre, with an assessed valuation of $22,800. The property is the site of the historic Van Pelt manor house. More than 400 residents in the immediate locality signed petitions for the park.

Several civic organizations urged the board to bring about the removal of the elevated spans on Forty-second Street, between Third Avenue and Grand Central Terminal. Resolutions were adopted calling upon the railroad company to remove the stairway at Forty-second Street and Park Avenue and certain pillars which it appears were erected without authority. Unless the company takes action within thirty days, Julius Miller, President of the Borough of Manhattan, will take other steps to see that the structure is removed.

The Budget Committee of the board worked for several hours and took an adjournment until this morning.

Chairman Harold Ridgelman of the Legal Committee of the United Neighborhood House sent in a request for additional probation officers for the Children's Court and the Magistrates' Courts and suggested that the salaries of the Justices of the Children Court be increased $2,000 a year each.

PROFIT IN SIX-CENT FARE.

Detroit's City-Owned Car Lines Earned $59,213 Last Month.

DETROIT, Oct. 19.—The Department of Street Railways, operating Detroit's city-owned lines, returned a net income of $59,213 in September, the first full month in which the lines have been operated at the increased fare of 6 cents, the report of the auditor today showed.

The passenger traffic was more than 3,000,000 persons, slightly less than in August, the last month of operation at a 5-cent fare. This decrease, it was said in the report, was reasonable and not due to the higher fare.

LOCKPORT OFFICERS BATTLE 600 OF KLAN

ROBED MEN BLOCKED ROAD

And Foiled Investigating Deputy Near Cambria Centre—Two Are Held.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Two men are under arrest and the possibility of an investigation loomed as the aftermath of an armed clash early today between a force of Sheriff's deputies and Lockport police, under the leadership of Sheriff Benjamin Gould of Niagara County, and an initiation party of 600 Ku Klux Klansmen near Cambria Centre, on the Saunders Settlement road, five miles west of this city.

Those under arrest today are William Lozier, Niagara Falls, a toolmaker, and a man giving the name of Charles Turver, also claiming Niagara Falls as his residence. Thirteen others, one a woman, were questioned at the District Attorney's office this morning. They were released.

Lozier and Turver were arraigned this afternoon before a Justice of the Peace and held in $500 bail. They are charged with violation of a section of the Penal law which prohibits the assembly of three or more masked or disguised persons in public. At their request a hearing on the charge was postponed until next Wednesday.

Sheriff Gould received reports from motorists late last night that armed men, garbed in white, were stopping automobile parties on the Saunders Settlement road. The Sheriff, with two deputies and three Lockport policemen, investigated. When their car reached the vicinity of the initiation, which a Klan initiation was purported to be taking place it was stopped by two white-robed sentinels.

According to the deputies, when the Sheriff's party failed to leave, as ordered, one of them struck the Klan guard. The sentinel was felled with the butt of a revolver in the hands of one of the investigating party and both guards were engulfed in the rush of the deputies and policemen from the machine.

Shouts of the guards attracted Klansmen from the field, and as the Sheriff started to advance toward the enclosure, the little knot of officers was surrounded. Gould and his men retreated toward the road and made a dash for their car, which had been left with the engine running. As the machine sped away the formation of Klansmen which had blocked advance to the field broke and a scattering volley of shots broke out behind Sheriff Gould's party. No one was hit.

After the Sheriff's party had broken free and his car had edged its way through the lines of machines at the roadside, one of which had started in pursuit, he rushed to Lockport with Lozier and Turner, who were seized in the melée.

The prisoners were locked up and the Sheriff returned to the Klan gathering with reinforcements. Several automobile loads of citizens followed Gould at the field the second time the officers charged the crowd at once. The resistance broke and there was a concerted rush for the cars surrounding the meeting place. The officers and their posse fired no shots except at fleeing automobiles which had been commanded to stop.

Firearms abandoned in the field were seized.

Henry H. Fletcher, in whose field the clash occurred, told the police he had rented it to an "Edward Wilson."

No comment was forthcoming from the District Attorney's office this morning other than that an investigation might follow if complaints were lodged.

NEW PANTOMIME CODE TO BAFFLE CRIMINALS

Montreal Health Inspector and 13-Year-Old Daughter Demonstrate Sign Language for Police.

A system by which detectives can converse with one another by pantomime in the presence of criminals was demonstrated at Police Headquarters yesterday by Aaron Honigan, an inspector of the Montreal Board of Health, and his 13-year-old daughter, Lillian. Third Deputy Police Commissioner Joseph Faurot and Captain Thomas Fay of the Detective Bureau watched the demonstration. A dozen short sentences were written out by the policemen and handed to Honigan without the knowledge of his daughter.

The latter stood about ten feet from her father. Honigan then transmitted the messages to the girl by movements of the eyes, by manipulating his finger, by twirling a pencil and by switching a cigar about in his mouth. Meanwhile he carried on a conversation with the policemen. The officers were surprised to hear the girl repeat each sentence aloud without an error.

Honigan told the police that anybody could become an expert at sending and receiving the pantomime code with a few months' practice. He is going to Washington to submit it to the Department of Justice.

SICKBED REGISTRY ILLEGAL.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, Oct. 19.—Supreme Court Justice George H. Taylor Jr. of Mount Vernon, filed a decision today to the effect that Registry Boards have no legal right to count about the homes and hospitals to register sick voters.

The decision was on an application of George Lennox, who is ill in a Yonkers hospital, and who desired to be registered so that he could vote in the Third Election District of the Second Ward of Yonkers.

The decision of Justice Taylor is in direct contrast to an order of a Brooklyn Supreme Court Justice, who recently directed a Registry Board to go to the home of Mayor Hylan. He said:

"If it is legally possible that Boards of Registry may be directed to convene at the homes or other places where voters who are ill and disabled are confined in cities where the population is large, and such cases are numerous, it would appear that the work of these boards in the registration would be seriously hampered and confusion created, because if one temporarily disabled voter is entitled to have this relief, every one similarly situated is entitled to have it, and it is well within the possibilities that the time of the board would be taken up by going to these different places, instead of holding the meetings contemplated by law at the place legally designated for the registration of voters. Application denied."

Brotherhood Seeks to Prevent Adjustment of Grievance by Alleged Company Union.

A Federal injunction against the Pennsylvania Railroad will be asked in Philadelphia early next week in behalf of striking shop crafts employes, Morris Hilliquit of counsel announced here yesterday. The action, he said, would be brought under the provisions of the Transportation act by System Federation No. 90, the original strikers' organization, with which the road has refused to deal since the walkout.

The bill of complaint comprises more than 100 typewritten pages. Mr. Hilliquit said it seeks:

1. To force renewal of relations between the road and the federation and to hold the road to compliance with decisions of the United States Railroad Labor Board.

2. To restrain operation of the "company unions" with which the road now deals to the exclusion of the old organization.

3. To recover for shopmen who remained at or returned to work after the strike July 1, 1922, about $15,000,000

Foreman of Leather Goods Firm Arrested—Passers-By Have Narrow Escapes.

Crowds on the street and entering the B. M. T. Subway at Broadway and 40th Street in the rush last evening where thrown into a panic by shots that were fired in a fight between Edward Elias 1,525 Mermaid Avenue, and his companion, Henry Jackson 1,414 Mermaid Avenue, Brooklyn, on the one side, and a group of men supposed to be leather goods workers on strike. Elias had a miraculous escape, as did scores of bystanders. The shots apparently were intended for Elias, Secretary of the William Tick Company, manufacturers of leather goods at 6 West 37th Street. Only one of them struck him, grazing his right eyebrow.

When the first shots were fired Jackson pulled a pistol from his pocket and fired five shots. The pistol battle caused Patrolman William Hempel of the Thirtieth Street Police Station and Policeman John J. Shea of Traffic A, who were directing traffic at Forty-second Street and Broadway, to hurry to the scene.

In the tangle of motor cars caused by the excitement the two policemen found Louis Simon, 30, of 62 Avenue D, who described himself as an operative for a plant manufacturing raincoats. He was identified by Elias as the man who had fired at him. Elias said he saw Simon, after firing all his cartridges, slip his weapon to another member of the band that attacked Elias. No weapon was found on Simon.

On the complaint of Elias, Simon was held on a charge of felonious assault at the West Thirtieth Street Police Station. Jackson was arrested for violating the Sullivan law.

Jackson is foreman of the company of which Elias is Secretary. The two men told the police that there had been trouble in the leather shop for several weeks. The police escorted the workers to and from the subway station. It was thought the trouble was over two days ago when the police guard was withdrawn.

Elias, with his head bandaged, appeared in night Court last night with Jackson when the latter was arraigned before Magistrate Jacob Hilsen on a charge of violating the Sullivan law. Jackson said he fired his pistol to attract the attention of the police, and the court commended him, but explained that it was necessary for the police to arrest him under the law.

The defendant was paroled until Friday, when he is to appear in Jefferson Market Court for trial.

PROCLAIMS NAVY DAY.

Acting Mayor Hulbert Asks Public to Observe Oct. 27.

Acting Mayor Murray Hulbert issued a proclamation yesterday calling upon the people of the city to observe Oct. 27 as "Navy Day."

"It is important," the proclamation reads, "that all should have a hearty appreciation of the value and significance of our navy. Never committed to a policy of a large standing army, our country's first line of defense has always been the navy.

"The maintenance of an adequate navy with efficient personnel has been one of our greatest safeguards in every generation, from the little group of colonists fronting one seaboard to the 110,000,000 people of mankind's national marvel.

"Peaceable though we have ever been as a nation, human nature is fundamentally the same since the days of Father Adam. The Old World still welters in a state of turmoil. Therein lies sufficient reason for the maintenance of our relative naval strength.

"A great preserver of tranquility and justice, our navy has no less been an agency for the expression of American sympathy. When devouring flames swept over Smyrna an American destroyer was the first to lend a helping hand. When earthquake rended Yokohama and Tokio, an American destroyer brought the first quotable relief to the stricken Japanese.

"For the protection of American citizens wherever found and for the development of our youth into well-informed, sturdy-limbed Americans, we owe an obligation to the navy increasing with years.

"How important it is that in this gateway city of America pride in the navy should be appropriately manifested."

Citizens are called upon to display the American flag on Navy Day, and public and private schools are asked to hold patriotic exercises.

HULBERT QUERIES MAYORS.

Asks Philadelphia and Boston to Help Force Gasoline Price Cut.

Acting Mayor Murray Hulbert yesterday sent identical telegrams to Mayors J. Hampton Moore of Philadelphia and James M. Curley of Boston, asking whether they would join him in a movement to obtain lower prices for gasoline. The message said:

"What is the situation with respect to the sale of gasoline in your city? Will you join with me in a movement to aid cities having superior waterfront terminal facilities to obtain the advantage in prices which they should enjoy by reason of such facilities?"

In like letters to Governor Smith and Senator Copeland Acting Mayor Hulbert maintained that New York and New England cities should be able to get cheaper gasoline because producers are enabled to ship via the Panama Canal. Governor Smith has instructed Attorney General Carl Sherman to make an investigation of gasoline prices to determine whether they are fixed by an illegal combination, as Acting Mayor Hulbert charges.

Saleswoman Accused of Being Head of Band That Robbed Store.

Matilda Zanelli, 20 years old, of 533 East 134th Street, the Bronx, was committed to the House of the Good Shepherd yesterday when she pleaded guilty in Special Sessions to the theft of an infant's dress worth $6 from McCreary's, where she was employed as a saleswoman. Miss May Mangan, a probation officer, said that the young woman was alleged by detectives of the Stores Mutual Protective Association, who arrested her on Aug. 24, to be the leader of a band of employes in the store who had stolen cash and merchandise amounting to $3,000 since she obtained employment there about two years ago.

She said that when the detectives searched her home after her arrest they found about $200 of the loot there, and that inquiry among relatives revealed that she had been in the habit of making presents to them of other articles which had been stolen from the store. Some of these articles had been recovered. Miss Mangan said. Relatives of the defendant had subscribed $500 in payment to the store for other articles that they had received from the girl.

WELLESLEY GIRLS PUNISHED

Three Suspended, One on Probation, for Breaking Chaperone Rules.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 19.—It was announced at Wellesley College today that three girls, daughters of wealthy and prominent families, had been suspended, and a fourth girl placed on probation, for remaining off the campus without a chaperon after the prescribed hours. The college authorities refused to divulge the names.

When the college authorities learned that the girls were not in their dormitories at 9:45 P. M., when all Wellesley students are required to be in their rooms unless absent by special permission and accompanied by chaperons approved by the college, they were placed on the carpet by the Student Governing Committee. It then came out that they had forged the names of chaperons on the college register. A student had seen the girls coming into the grounds in the morning at an hour when they should have been going to classes.

Finally one of the girls broke down and told the story. They had "dates" with Harvard and "Tech" students, and did not wish to be bothered with chaperons. The evening began with a theatre party, followed by a midnight supper in a Boston café. Then followed an automobile ride.

As it was too late to return to the college that night, the girls went to a Boston hotel and returned to Wellesley in the morning. A check-up verified their story.

The student governing body recommended that the senior, junior and sophomore girls be suspended, which means that they cannot return to college until next September, and that the freshman be placed on probation, which means that she cannot leave the campus until Christmas. The recommendations were confirmed by the college authorities.

The group is said to include a New York girl, one from Chicago, one from Cleveland and one from the Far West. The college rules are made by the girls themselves and administered by the student governing body, confirmed in special cases by the faculty.

PACKERS ALARM ARGENTINA.

Refusal to Buy Cattle at Minimum Prices Causes Almost a Panic.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 19, (Associated Press).—The action of the British and American packers in Argentina in refusing to buy cattle for export under the new law fixing minimum prices has created a state approaching panic among the Argentine cattle producers, who called a meeting today to consider what action to take.

The entire country is anxiously awaiting developments, as the packers' action suspends the industry which is Argentina's chief source of wealth, and disastrous effects are feared unless some solution of the difficulty is reached. There are in Argentina no other packing plants with export facilities, and the cattle raisers are therefore seemingly helpless so long as the packers maintain what the producers term a boycott against them in order to compel annulment of the price-fixing law.

Most of the newspapers support the cattle raisers, and some of the officials of the various producers' associations call on the industry to stand firm against the "foreign meat trust" until it is obliged to give in. The packers on the other hand maintain that they are simply unable to do business under a law which they characterize as impractical, uneconomic and unconstitutional, and say they will not attempt to resume activities until the Government devises a relief from it.

Meanwhile the price of cattle for domestic consumption has fallen sharply. The law around which the controversy centres also provides for the fixing of minimum prices for the domestic market, but these prices have not yet been determined by the price fixing commission.

Minister of Agriculture Le Breton issued a statement today declaring that the commission was ready to study any complaint against the law which set forth reasons of a fundamental character for its modification.

House decreed in Traffic Court yesterday, when he sentenced Daniel Orsark, taxicab driver, of 2,092 Thirty-first Street, Coney Island, to five days in the workhouse for nearly knocking down a one-legged man at Seventh Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street.

Policeman Fallon told the Magistrate that Orsark ignored his signal to stop his cab as the cripple was crossing the street. Orsark said that his car skidded on the wet pavement and that he was unable to control it.

CROMWELL DEFENDS STOCK SPECULATORS

OPPOSES STATE CONTROL

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 19.—Outlining the growth of market places and emphasizing their importance in the business world, Seymour L. Cromwell, President of the New York Stock Exchange, told the Bond Club of Cleveland tonight that he believed the continued progress of exchanges and other business institutions depends upon the degree to which the public understands and is willing to co-operate with these institutions.

Admitting that the standards and rules of the Stock Exchange are not perfect, Mr. Cromwell said present day practices of the Exchange will be corrected more through internal evolutions than by any hasty legislation of a regulatory character imposed upon the Exchange from without.

"We hear much about State control and State ownership these days," he said, "but State control of business is by no means the panacea which it is often represented to be. I believe in most cases business men know more about their business than Government officials ever could, that they can conduct their business better than Government officials could conduct it, and that in the long run the characteristically American system of private initiative in business is from the moral standpoint just as high, if not higher, than the system of State control in actual practice.

"If we are to maintain private initiative in business we must not forget that the power exercised by individuals must be accompanied by a genuine feeling of responsibility for the public. Business must be free, but it must not be selfish at the expense of the community."

Differentiating between a speculator and a gambler, Mr. Cromwell said the speculator is "needed at all times by American industry to absorb its risks and make conservative investing possible for other less daring men."

The speaker referred to the part the speculators played in helping business in France in 1871 by their daring investments. He also referred to conditions here in 1914, when finance, commerce and industry of this country were demoralized.

"It was in the face of such depressing conditions," Mr. Cromwell remarked, "that the speculator dared to assume the risks of industry by purchasing industrial stocks. His speculative purchases first stabilized prices and then advanced them; and, largely as a result of his financial courage, our confidence was restored until our factory chimneys smoked again and our mills roared with increasing production."

Mr. Cromwell said a special committee had just completed a report on the advisability of zoning the country in such a way as to make the distribution of bonds in transit more equitable. This, according to Cleveland bond men, is much needed.

"No one understands," Mr. Cromwell went on, "better than I the importance issuing houses play in the development of our industries. The economic function of the investment banker is so definite that his responsibility is proportionate. His service to the organization of industry with its large capital requirements is essential, but he is apt to exaggerate that service and subordinate his obligation to the investing public.

"The price paid for an issue of securities is often so high that the selling of trained salesmen working on commission and the interest of the underwriters are absolutely centred on the selling of the particular security, while the interest of the salesman is so concentrated on his commissions that the welfare of the investor is lost sight of. I often feel that investors lose their money not so much because prices decline unduly as because they are persuaded to pay unjustifiably high prices for securities."

GIVE JOSEF SUK'S WORK.

New York String Quartet Plays Countryman's Composition.

To present a new work by their countryman, Josef Suk, was a proud and patriotic labor on the part of four Bohemian artists—whom it is the fashion to call Czechoslovaks now—in the season's first concert of the New York String Quartet last evening at Aeolian Hall. This group of players had been launched locally five seasons ago by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Pulitzer, and its membership includes Messrs. Ottokar Cadek and Jaroslav Siskovsky, violins, the latter once a Petrograd student as mentioned in Professor Auer's book; also Ludvik Schwab, viola, and Bedrich Vaska, 'cello.

Suk's quartet in B flat minor, of which, with some authority, they announced their public performance as a "first time in New York," is the composer's Opus 11 only, written in 1896, a work melodious beyond the habit of radical youth, yet with enough of early enthusiasms retained to mark it as traditionally romantic and modern in tone. It showed graceful part-writing, often a singularly rich harmony, and no little charm in use of simple airs to the purpose of classic chamber music. Of the classics of riper years, there were Brahms's C-minor, Op. 51, No. 1, and Mozart's D-major, whose familiar fluency was most transparently portrayed in a delicate andante and quaint minuet.

Alexander Kipnis in Recital.

Alexander Kipnis, bass-baritone of last year's Wagner Opera Festival and hereafter with the Chicago Civic Opera, sang his first New York recital at the Town Hall last evening, assisted by Walter Golde at the piano. Mr. Kipnis displayed in an air from Haydn's "The Creation" and in songs and encores by Schubert, Wolf and Strauss, the same lustrous basso cantante in upper middle range, the same breadth and vigor of musical lower tones, that had made him a noteworthy Pogner in Wagner's "Meistersinger" ensemble. To the concert platform he proved no novice; a man of alert presence and artistic demeanor. He gave later a Russian group by Gretchaninoff, "Mephisto's Song of the Flea" by Moussorgsky and unusual airs from Verdi's "Simon Boccanegra" and "Sicilian Vespers."

"Deep Tangled Wildwood" Coming.

"The Deep Tangled Wildwood," a comedy by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly, is announced to open at the Frazee Theatre on Monday night, Nov. 5. The cast will include James Gleason, Robert McWade, Denman Maley, Ralph Sipperly, Gertrude Hitz and Mildred Booth.

Grand Guignol Players Entertained.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The new Ziegfeld "Follies" will have its first performance at the New Amsterdam Theatre tonight.

"The Camel's Back," a comedy by Somerset Maugham, will open in Worcester on Oct. 30 and will be brought to New York soon afterward by the Selwyns. The cast will include Charles Cherry, Violet Kemble Cooper, Louise Closser Hale and Gavin Muir.

William H. Crane, who has made his home in California in recent years, is at present visiting New York. He attended last night's performance of "Aren't We All?"

Alice Hegeman will be in the cast of "Katy Did't."

The "Battling Buttler" company will give a performance in Sing Sing Prison tomorrow night.

DEGREE FOR JUDGE MOORE.

State Regents Honor Jurist, Who Says Law Cannot End War.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Oct. 19.—The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon Judge John Bassett Moore at the closing session tonight of the annual convention of the University of the State of New York. The address conferring the degree was made by Frank P. Graves, State Commissioner of Education.

Judge Moore is professor of international law and diplomacy at Columbia University, and a member of the Permanent Court of International Justice at The Hague.

Speaking on "The International Court and Some Current Illusions," Judge Moore declared it is an illusion to assume that the world had broken with its past, and that old rules and regulations, such as those of international law, are obsolete.

The last war was not unique in its world-wide nature, he said, citing many instances from history of other wars that involved great loss of life, and which were fought all over the globe. International law does not legalize war, he declared, and to outlaw war would not prevent it, any more than civil wars are stopped because they are contrary to the laws of the State involved.

"To keep men and nations at peace, we must remove causes of discontent, elevate their morals, inculcate self respect and settle differences between them," Judge Moore concluded.

EDMUND BURKE SINGS.

Metropolitan Baritone Warmly Received in a Widely Varied Program.

Edmund Burke, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Company, gave a recital yesterday afternoon at Aeolian Hall for an audience which made known its enjoyment of the widely varied program. The opening part had, among other selections, two Elizabethan love songs, which were given in a sincere and straightforward manner and won for the singer much enthusiasm. German songs by Bach and Schubert were sung with delightful clarity of diction and skilful phrasing, but not with the warmth of tone of the French songs which followed. In the concluding group were three songs from Connacht, arranged by Herbert Hughes, which were highly imaginative and which had been embellished with the latest in harmonic treatment. Mr. Burke was successful in catching the spirit of these and in response to the insistence of his hearers, he repeated the one entitled "The Terrible Robber Man." Ellmer Zoller played the accompaniments with skill.

BALLET AND OPERA ENDING.

Pavlowa and San Carlo Company in Farewell Bills Today.

Both of New York's early season visitors in opera and ballet, Pavlowa's company at the Manhattan and the San Carlo at the Century, are closing their engagements tonight before extended tours. Mme. Pavlowa repeats her new East Indian dances this afternoon, while tonight she ends a fortnight here with a farewell "request" program. Her admirers have welcomed a rumor that the greatest dancer of her time may return in the Spring for a post-season series at the Metropolitan.

Mr. Gallo's matinée "double bill" today will add to the Century's guest artists Elizabeth Amsden, Messrs. Royer and Cervi, in "The Secret of Suzanne," and May Korb, with Mmes. Klimova, de Metz, French, Altieri, Morosini and Mr. Interrante, in "Hansel and Gretel," both for the first time. These will complete a total of twenty-one different operas sung in five weeks, while tonight the popular-price series ends, as it began, with "Aida," after a record $150,000 engagement.

Sistine Choir Sings Again.

Mgr. Rella's Sistine Choir of fifty men and boys appeared for the second time in America last night before an audience which only the inclement weather kept from wholly filling Carnegie Hall. It was an interested assembly of churchmen and musicians that heard again Refice's first "Greeting to the American People," and that waited, as Thursday's house had done, for the closing "Exultate Deo" of Palestrina. Midway in the bill, between a repeated "Benedictus" and "Domine Jesu" of Perosi, the singers introduced again that modern composer's ten-part "Alleluia" for divided choirs, which had impressed a previous audience to demand repetition. In last evening's further list were heard Vittoria's "O Magnum Mysterium" and a four-part "O Rex Gloriae" of Luca Marenzio.

Theda Bara to Return to Screen.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 19.—Theda Bara, credited with having originated the "vamp" rôle in motion pictures, arrived here yesterday to return to the screen after six years away.

Clara Kimball Young, motion picture actress, was named defendant in a suit filed in the Superior Court yesterday by Robert M. Brownson, a Michigan attorney, who seeks recovery of $62,196 he asserts is due him for legal services rendered under a contract entered into in 1917.

Roberts Has "Betta" Stradivarius.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 19.—The so-called "Betta" Stradivarius, one of the four perfect specimens extant of the work of the famous Italian violin maker, is now the property of John T. Roberts of this city, Honorary President of the Hartford Philharmonic Orchestra and well known violin enthusiast. The instrument was part of the R. C. Waddell collection of Glasgow, Scotland, which was recently sold for $250,000.

BANKERS WRITE COOLIDGE.

Secretary Denies Convention Favored Canceling Allied Debt.

Because of apparent misunderstanding regarding the actual action of the American Bankers' Association at its recent convention at Atlantic City regarding the allied debts, Fred N. Shepherd, executive manager of the association, has written the following letter to President Coolidge:

"Following the convention of this association held in Atlantic City the last week in September the impression has become current that the association recommended the cancellation of the interallied debts. In fact, a spurious interview attributed to the president of the association, Walter W. Head, stated that he was so committed.

"It is only by reason of expressions purporting to emanate from the White House stating the Administration's position in opposition to the alleged action of this association that I think you should be put in possession of the facts. I am, therefore enclosing you a copy of the 'Bankers' declaration of principles' under which your particular attention is directed to the caption, 'European Situation.' From this you will note that two definite recommendations only were made by the American Bankers' Association:

"'1. The giving of an official standing to our representative on the Reparation Commission in order that he may express his opinion with his vote.'

"'2. That the Debt Funding Commission immediately enter into negotiations with Great Britain and France in connection with such part of the reparations question as may be included in the interallied indebtedness in order that the commission may be in a position to make such recommendations to Congress as it may consider desirable and to the interest of the United States.'

"The alleged interview with President Head was, as soon as called to his attention, repudiated by him in a statement expressing his adherence to the convention's action at Atlantic City.

"Thinking you will fine it of interest, I am enclosing you a copy of the address entitled, 'Across the Atlantic,' delivered by Fred I. Kent, in which is contained the only expression before the convention of this association in the matter of the interallied debts."

ROTHERMERE OFFERS BONDS

Seeks £8,000,000 to Finance His Recent Newspaper Purchases.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—In connection with Lord Rothermere's purchase of the Hulton newspaper interests the prospectus of an offer for sale of £8,000,000 of 7 per cent. guaranteed mortgage debenture stock of the Daily Mail Trust, Limited, at 99 per cent. was issued this afternoon. The debentures are repayable at £107 after 1927 and at £110 if redeemed before that date.

The security for the stock consists of 800,000 deferred shares in the Associated Newspapers, Limited, the quoted price of which is £5,600,000; 918,036 fully paid ordinary shares, being the whole of the issued capital in E. Hulton & Co., Limited, now being acquired for £6,000,000, and sundry other investments in the allied newspaper undertakings recently purchased for £200,000, a first charge on £1,500,000 of uncalled capital of the company and a first floating charge on £300,000 of uncalled capital of the undertaking and other assets of the company.

Lord Rothermere states that the securities upon which the debenture stock now offered is charged, together with the net assets of the guaranteeing companies, represent value of £14,600,000.

An interesting disclosure is that E. Hulton & Co., since its acquisition for £6,000,000 has bought out of its cash assets the Scottish newspapers now controlled by Lord Rothermere and his son. These newspapers are to be sold to the Associated Scottish Newspapers, Ltd., a new company about to be registered with a capital of £900,000, and then that company will sell them for $1,000,000 to E. Hulton & Co.

The average yearly profits of the guaranteeing companies of E. Hulton & Co. and of the Scottish newspapers for the past five and a half years were £1,048,539, but on the basis of the past six months they are likely to reach £2,500,000 for the current year. The yearly sum required for the payment of interest and sinking fund on the debentures is £720,000.

DUGOUT REOPENED.

French Costume Party Marks Event at Rebuilt Clubhouse.

The reopening of the Dugout clubhouse for disabled ex-service men at 15 East Fifty-eighth Street, after the fire which wrecked the premises on June 2 last, took place last evening and was in the nature of a French costume party.

A reception preceded the dance, which was attended by 250 ex-soldiers, club members. The committee in charge included Mrs. Edward McVickar, Chairman of the Executive Committee; Miss Cottenet, Miss Maude Wetmore, Mrs. Coffin Van Rensselaer, Mrs. Charles de Rham Jr., Mrs. Samuel Bettle, Mrs. Vernon C. Brown, Mrs. Charles D. Dickey, Mrs. Charles H. Ditson, Mrs. A. Butler Duncan, Mrs. Morris H. Hawkes, Miss Sara F. Hillman, Mrs. John Innes Kane, Mrs. Lawrence Keene, Mrs. James S. Larkin, Mrs. Henry H. Lyle, Mrs. James Metcalfe, Mrs. Joseph H. Sears, Stephen Pell, Lorillard Spencer, William A. Murphy and Dr. Robert Abbe.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Firmness in Stocks, Trading Again Light—Foreign Exchange Slightly Lower.

Yesterday was again for the most part a day of drifting markets. On a light business, Stock Exchange prices held firm in the face of some isolated efforts to drive them down; cotton, whose spot price went below 30 cents Thursday, crossed that line on the recovery yesterday; wheat lost ground on news of large Canadian supplies and Russian exports, and foreign exchange rates moved within as narrow limits as the stock market.

The continuing fall of the German mark was one of the few movements of distinctive character; it carried the price to a figure at which 13 billion marks were needed to buy a dollar, as against 10 billion on Thursday, 7½ billion a week ago and a quarter of a billion a month ago. It is hardly worth while to ascribe the recent speeding-up of the depreciation process to the German political situation. Even if Germany's politics were progressing smoothly, the paper mark could hardly fail to move toward the vanishing point when the weekly output has probably now reached 100 quadrillions and the Government is proposing their virtual demonetization.

The franc did not decline yesterday with the mark, but sterling went to the lowest figure since the first week of September, only one cent or so above the lowest of the year. Notwithstanding London opinion to the contrary, it is difficult to believe that this weakness does not reflect Great Britain's preparations for payment of the second interest instalment on the debt to the United States Treasury. This action of sterling, in connection with those payments, ought to be taken carefully into account by our Debt Commission as it prepares its forthcoming report to Congress on the policy regarding the rest of the intergovernmental war obligations.

On the Stock Exchange most of the day's changes were merely fractional, but advances of 1 or 2 points, usually on the basis of small purchases, were not uncommon. The bond market showed considerable strength, although still on a business less than half what it was at this time last year. Not the least interesting of the uncertainties surrounding the present financial situation is the question whether and when the abatement of activity on the Stock Exchange and in general trade will be followed by movement of capital on the scale of last year, into the fixed-investment market.

All that the mercantile agencies have to tell us in their week-end reviews of trade is that "conditions in the different industries vary considerably," that there are even "cross-currents in different branches of the same trades," and that the week in the various commodity markets has produced very gearly as many advances as declines. This is in much the same tone as the perfunctory reviews of the daily stock market.

What is reasonably clear in general trade is that middlemen and consumers are not disposed to follow an advance of prices, but it is certainly also true that in numerous industries they buy freely on concessions in price. This results naturally enough from the fact that supplies of goods in the hands of merchants, which had fallen so low a year ago as to require immediate replenishment on the return of consumers' bids, are today for the most part in such comfortable shape as to give the buyer the present mastery of the situation.

MONEY.

FRIDAY, OCT. 19, 1923.

Stock Exchange firmed just a trifle before close, opening anti renewal rate at 4¼ per cent. being succeeded in mid-afternoon at 4½, which was the closing charge. Time money was again offered at 5¼ per cent. for everything, except current period loans which were reported at 5½ per cent. There still continued but a moderate amount of new money loaned. Commercial paper and acceptance discounted quietly and without change.

The highest price since open trading in gold was resumed at London in September, 1919, was 149¾ on Feb. 6, 1920; the lowest, 102⅛, on Feb. 21, 1923. Highest price last year, 136, on Jan. 3.

DAUGHERTY SEEKS BAN ON COFFEE EXCHANGE

Files Brief in Supreme Court on the Government's Appeal From Adverse Decree Here.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Attorney General Daugherty today filed in the Supreme Court a brief of the case against the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange, the New York Coffee and Sugar Clearing Association and others, which was decided against the Government in the Federal District Court in New York City and set for argument in the Supreme Court Nov. 12.

Alleging that the Exchange and the Clearing Association constitute a conspiracy in restraint of interstate and foreign commerce in raw and refined sugar, in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust law and the Tariff act of 1913, the Government asked the court to enjoin all transactions upon the Exchange, which, the brief set forth, would have the effect of closing it. The Government suggested that no material inconvenience would result, because another exchange would be immediately organized which would comply with the law.

Should the Court refuse to close the Exchange, the Government maintains that both the Exchange and the Clearing Association should be required to bring their practices within the Federal laws. To do that, the brief insisted, the Exchange must permit the delivery of sugar and modify its rules and regulations so as to prohibit transactions, except by the owner or grower of sugar, or one owning or renting land upon which it is produced, or by representatives of such persons.

The Government would have the decree drawn, however, so as to "permit all so-called legitimate hedging upon the Exchange."

In the brief, which was voluminous, the Exchange was declared to be "the largest commercial centre for transactions relating to sugar in the world," and asserted that, although "little sugar is actually delivered in settlement of the numerous transactions on the Exchange," the prices established there are "the basis for prices in actual transactions."

"By their speculations and gambling in sugar futures," the brief declared, the Exchange and the Clearing Association "control the prices which the refiner pays for raw sugar and also the prices which dealers and consumers pay for refined sugar." The Exchange and Clearing Association, the Government insisted, "serve no legitimate or useful purpose in the marketing of interstate and foreign commerce of raw and refined sugar."

The prices made upon the Exchange are for the purpose, the brief charged, "of manipulating the prices of raw and refined sugar without regard to conditions actually obtaining in the industry, and regardless of the law of supply and demand, and solely for illegitimate gambling or speculative profits."

Pepperell Co. Reports Sales Gain.

The Pepperell Manufacturing Company, for the year ended June 30, reports sales of $16,287,700, against $10,311,129 in the previous fiscal year. Net profit of $1,061,821 was reported, against a loss of $122,840 the year before.

FINN LOAN SOLD AND BOOKS CLOSED

Illinois Gold Bonds, Totaling $21,000,000, Also Quickly Taken.

Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., yesterday announced the purchase of $300,000 Joliet, Ill., 4½ per cent. school bonds maturing 1933-1943. Sale of all bonds and closing of subscription books were announced by the National City Company and Dillon, Read & Co. in the case of the recently offered $10,000,000 Republic of Finland 6 per cent. external loan sinking fund gold bonds, and by the Guaranty Company of New York which headed the syndicate that offered $21,000,000 of Illinois gold bonds.

Offering of an issue of $2,000,000 ten-year 7 per cent. convertible sinking fund collateral trust notes of the Pillsbury Flour Mills, Inc., a Delaware holding company, which will own stock of the Pillsbury Flour Mills Company of Minnesota, will be made soon by Goldman, Sachs & Co., Lehman Brothers and Lane, Piper & Jaffray, Inc., of Minneapolis.

Roosevelt & Son announce the award to them by the Controller of St. Paul, Minn., of two new issues, including one of $500,000 of 4½ per cent. school bonds maturing Oct. 1, 1953, and $500,000 of waterworks bonds, of which a 4½ per cent. issue will mature from 1924 to 1943 and a 4½ per cent. issue will mature from 1943 to 1953.

NEW FINN LOAN RUMOR.

London Bankers Said to Be Interested in Offering of Bonds.

Reports reaching Wall Street yesterday indicated that London bankers would soon offer $1,000,000 Republic of Finland 6 per cent. bonds and a rumor sprang up that the last minute hitch in the recent $10,000,000 offering in the New York market was due to insistence on the part of British bankers that they get a share of the business. The original amount planned for issuance here was $13,500,000, leaving a reduction of $3,500,000 in the total placed in the American market, or a portion which, it was stated yesterday, had been deflected to the London market.

An officer of the National City Company who figured in the recent offering of Finland bonds here said he knew of no offering to be made in London. Were such offering to be made, he said, it would be entirely independent of the New York transaction, in which all of the bonds were sold and books closed on the day following the one on which the issue was placed on the market.

Tonopah Mining Company Report.

The Tonopah Mining Company, for the six months to June 30, reports net income of $684,196 after operating expenses, against $280,196 in the last six months of 1922.

WEEK'S NEW BONDS TOTAL $99,064,000

An Issue of $15,000,000 of Nickel Plate Preferred Stock Also Marketed.

FARM LOAN $47,000,000

State and Municipal Securities Aggregate $24,994,000—Public Utilities, $11,070,000.

New bond issues offered this week totaled $99,064,000, the highest for any one week since that ending June 15 when the aggregate was $194,354,700, and accepting the period in which $200,000,000 new Treasury notes were placed. In addition, an issue of $15,000,000 of 6 per cent. preferred stock of the Nickel Plate System, was sold.

By groups the new bond offerings of this week, compared with last week, were:

| | This Week. | Last Week. |
|---|---|---|
| Farm loans | $47,000,000 | |
| State and municipal | 24,994,000 | $6,194,000 |
| Public utility | 11,070,000 | 7,275,000 |
| Foreign Government | 10,000,000 | 9,000,000 |
| Industrial | 6,000,000 | 1,250,000 |
| Insular | | 400,000 |

The largest issues marketed included $47,000,000 of Federal Land Bank farm loan bonds; $21,000,000 State of Illinois Highway and Bonus bonds; $10,000,000 Republic of Finland sinking fund gold bonds, and two issues of $6,000,000 each for the Alabama Power Company and the Pillsbury Flour Mills Company.

Bankers expressed satisfaction with the manner in which new bonds were being absorbed. They are guarding against glutting the market with too many offerings, and some of the larger houses reported that they were holding back several issues for a time. A greater abundance of money for investment is indicated in bank reports.

A significant feature, according to bankers, has been the clearing up of State and municipal financing. One house stated that the absorption of $21,000,000 of new Illinois bonds practically wiped the calendar clean of such issues, so far as they could see.

Prices in the open market showed few startling changes. Gilt edge securities closed the week with fractional gains in most cases and there was noticed a fairly strong movement in Japanese bonds.

Prospective refunding operations for November are small, according to figures compiled by Dow, Jones & Co. yesterday. Maturities, aside from the Canadian Government war loans, which have already been provided for through the sale of $200,000,000 of new bonds in the Dominion, total a scant $25,551,620, as contrasted with $42,570,210 in October and $53,678,580 in November of last year. By groups the next month's maturities are: Railroads, $16,597,900; public utilities, $5,078,910, and industrials, $3,874,810.

ASKS BONDHOLDERS TO VOTE ON POLICY

President S. W. Huff of the Third Avenue Railway Company has addressed a letter to the holders of the 5 per cent. adjustment bonds inviting them to vote on the company's policy. Bondholders, he pointed out, are entitled to the same voting privileges as stockholders whenever the interest on the bonds has not been paid, which is the case at present.

"Under the terms of your mortgage and the certificate of incorporation of the Third Avenue Railway Company," the letter said, "you are entitled to one vote for each $100 face value of your bonds on all questions upon which stockholders may vote.

"Your attention is called to this, since a number of the holders of these bonds are under the impression that to register them for voting purposes would interfere with or delay the delivery of the bonds in the event of sale. All that is necessary is to have the United States Mortgage and Trust Company, 55 Cedar Street, make a notation on the bond of the name of the holder and the words, 'registered for voting purposes only.'

"A comparatively small number of holders of these bonds are availing themselves of this voting privilege. Your directors are anxious to have as large a number of the security holders of the property as possible vote at its annual meetings, either in person or by proxy."

ROADS SPEND A BILLION.

George H. Ingalls Says They Are Keeping Pledge on Equipment.

The railroads of the United States are keeping to their promise to spend $1,100,000,000 for new equipment and necessary improvements during 1923, George H. Ingalls, Vice President of the New York Central lines, said last night in an address before the Traffic Club of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce. He said that the recovery of the railroads had stirred demagogy to renewed threats of what was to be done to the carriers when Congress convened.

"From Jan. 1 to Sept. 1 there has been placed in service 116,117 new freight cars and 2,563 locomotives, while at that date there remained on order 72,907 freight cars and 1,517 locomotives," he said. "When the clock strikes 12 on the night of Dec. 31, the railroads will have bidden farewell to the last lingering penny of that billion one hundred million dollars; but for each dollar there will be one hundred cents worth of new transportation facilities at the service of the country."

The meeting was held in the auditoriums of the Chamber of Commerce, 32 State Street.

SHIPPING POLICY DECRIED.

Lines See Board Heading Toward Permanent Government Ownership.

Declaring that the new policy of ship operation decided upon by the Shipping Board for its five freight lines to the United Kingdom further involves the Government in the shipping business, the Executive Committee of the American Steamship Owners' Association went on record yesterday as strongly opposing the step. Resolutions adopted at a meeting at 11 Broadway read:

"Resolved, That the association considers that in the taking away from the managing agents of such powers of direct operation as are included in the engagement of officers and men, the supplying and victualing of the ships and the authority to name loading agents in foreign countries the Shipping Board is unwisely committing the Government still more completely to permanent Government ownership and direct operation of the merchant marine in competition with private capital and enterprise; and be it further

"Resolved, That the association reiterates the position which it has heretofore taken as being opposed to direct Government operation of American shipping."

SUGAR TRADE REVIEW.

Beet and Cane Crops Will Soon Increase Supply.

In its Saturday review the Federal Sugar Refining Company says that though the demand for refined sugar has shown some improvement, "it does not encourage refiners to buy at the figures being asked by sellers of raw sugar. In addition, Cuban sugars in new crop positions are offered at a discount of approximately 1½ to 2 cents a pound under prices now being asked, which does not promote building up of a working supply." The review adds:

"The time is rapidly approaching when beet sugars from the West and cane sugars from Louisiana will be in increased supply and will seek an enlarged outlet at the present attractive prices. This supply, together with the unshipped and afloat balances of the old Cuban, Porto Rican, Hawaiian and Philippine crops, plus refiners' present stocks of both raw and refined and the probable receipt of 40,000 to 50,000 tons of outside sugars, should make for a total more than sufficient for the limited requirements covering the remainder of the year."

MERGER TO INVOLVE 42 MATCH PLANTS

North American Branches of Swedish Company Are to Be Consolidated.

PLAN $15,000,000 ISSUE

Parent Organization Controls One-third of the World's Total Output.

The Swedish Match Company will consolidate its sales company and manufacturing companies operating in North America into one corporation to be known as the International Match Corporation, according to announcement yesterday by Ivar Kreuger, representing the parent foreign concern. As a preliminary step in the transaction, which will involve taking over the American sales company known as the Vulcan Match Company and manufacturing plants operating in Mexico, Canada and several South American countries, it is planned to float an initial issue of $15,000,000 of debentures.

The new company has been incorporated under Delaware laws and will take over the capital stocks of companies operating forty-two plants. This control will be obtained through the issuance of common stock of the International Match Corporation, which in turn will be controlled through ownership of a majority interest by the Swedish Match Company. Under this arrangement the North American business will be divorced from other foreign business of the Swedish company. It is not planned, however, to establish manufacturing plants in the United States, although additional plants may be built in other countries where such operation is deemed advantageous because of tariffs and other conditions not existing in the case of this country. The issue of debentures, Mr. Kreuger said, will be obligations of the International Match Corporation guaranteed by the Swedish company.

COST OF STATE RAILROADS.

Cannot Compete With Those Privately Owned, Says Binkerd.

Robert S. Binkerd, Vice Chairman of the Committee on Public Relations of the Eastern Railroads, in an address last night before the New York Railroad Club at the Engineering Societies Building, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street, declared that in default of fair treatment of the American railroads by the people of the United States the inevitable result would be Government ownership.

"One of the most interesting facts in Europe today," said Mr. Binkerd, who has just returned from a European trip, "is the widespread and growing opposition to State ownership. Never before has it received the critical examination which it is undergoing in Belgium, Germany, Austria, Switzerland and Italy. In England and France the continuation of private operation is apparently assured by the attitude of the country people and middle classes.

"For fifty years the world has been a huge laboratory in which innumerable tests have been conducted in the comparative efficiency and service of Government operation. On the evidence of fifty years' experience I am convinced that the following statements are true:

"1. Nowhere in the world is there to be found any instance of a State railroad competing successfully on even terms with a privately owned railroad.

"2. Nowhere in the entire world has railway nationalization produced when was promised. It has invariably taken a larger proportion of the national income for transportation.

"3. It has invariably produced that transportation at a higher cost and with a degree of lower efficiency."

OTIS ELEVATOR SHOWS GAIN

Net Earnings for Nine Months This Year Reported as $3,443,008.

The Otis Elevator Company reports net earnings of $3,443,008 for the nine months to Sept. 30, after allowing for depreciation reserves, against $2,060,483 for the corresponding period last year.

After setting aside reserves, the company reported net income of $2,423,008, which, after allowing for regular dividends on the preferred stock, was equivalent to $14.07 a share earned on the $14,227,800 common capital stock outstanding.

VAN SWERINGENS BUY MORE STOCKS

CLINCHES THEIR CONTROL

Most of It Bought in Open Market to Add to Huntington Purchase.

The Van Sweringen interests of Cleveland have clinched their control by adding materially to their holdings in Chesapeake & Ohio stocks through purchases in the open market. They have passed these securities along to the treasuries of subsidiary companies they control. The first public intimation of such a move on the part of the Cleveland interests was contained in a circular issued for the sale of new preferred stock of the New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad Company.

In that circular the syndicate called attention to the fact that the Nickel Plate owned "a substantial interest in the common stock of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Company, with which mutually advantageous traffic arrangements have been effected." This block amounts to approximately $9,000,000 and represents the purchases that the Nickel Plate has made in the Chesapeake & Ohio stock since the Van Sweringen interests assumed control of the latter railroad.

All of the stock was not purchased in the open market. Some of it, according to a banker in close touch with the affairs of the Cleveland interests, is a portion of the Huntington group stock, purchased by the Van Sweringens to obtain control of the railroad.

Various estimates have been made of the amount of stock the Huntington group sold to the Van Sweringen interests when control of the property passed. The figure has never been made public, according to men in the financial district, because the percentage of the total stock was so small that it might have been possible for another group to gain control. It has been reported at various times as being 15 per cent. of the total. To prevent just such a manoeuvre and to make more secure the control of the property are the reasons given for the recent movement on the part of the Van Sweringens.

WOOL MARKET STEADY.

Good Prices Abroad Help Home Situation.

BOSTON, Oct. 19.—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow: "The demand for wool has continued moderate during the past week and prices have been generally well sustained. The manufacturers have favored especially the low to medium qualities rather than the finer grades, request for these descriptions coming chiefly from the woolen and knit goods manufacturers.

"The foreign markets have been strong, especially for good wools, with inferior descriptions occasionally slightly irregular. Bradford quotes medium to low crossbred tops up a half penny.

PAYS AN EXTRA DIVIDEND.

McCrory Stores to Distribute 5% on Common With More Stock.

Directors of the McCrory Stores Corporation yesterday declared an extra dividend of 5 per cent. on the common stock, payable in stock, in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 1 per cent., also payable in stock. Both dividends are payable Dec. 1, to stockholders of record Nov. 20.

Directors of Melville Shoe Corporation declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent. on the preferred, and a dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock, both dividends payable Nov. 1.

Coal-Loading Record Broken.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Oct. 19.—Coal loading records for any six-day period in the history of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad were shattered during the week ending Oct. 13, when 17,005 cars were loaded and moved from the Logan, New River, Kanawha and Kentucky fields, it was announced here today. The previous record was 17,459 cars during the week of Sept. 29.

2 DIRECTORS NAMED FOR RESERVE BANK

TERMS BEGIN ON JAN. 1

Robert H. Treman, President of the Tompkins County National Bank of Ithaca, and Theodore F. Whitmarsh, President of Francis H. Leggett & Co., wholesale grocers here, were nominated yesterday as directors of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York by the New York State Bankers' Committee on Nominations. This committee represents member banks in New York State, New Jersey and Connecticut, and the two named as directors are to represent banks in Group 2, as classified by the Federal Reserve Board, this group consisting of banks having a combined capital and surplus of less than $2,000,000. Mr. Treman was nominated to succeed himself and Mr. Whitmarsh to succeed Richard H. Williams of Madison, N. Y., who died on April 25. They will assume their duties on Jan. 1 next. The committee states:

"Mr. Treman was chosen one of the original directors of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York in 1914 and has served continuously since that time, having been re-elected in 1917 and 1920. From July 1, 1914, to Oct. 31, 1919, he also served the bank as an Acting Deputy Governor and in Governor Strong's absences during this period was the Acting Governor of the bank. In considering their recommendation the committee had particularly in mind the fact that Mr. Treman is now the only remaining one of the six directors originally elected by the member banks in 1914. Just now, when there have recently been so many changes in the membership of the Federal Reserve Board and so much discussion generally of the Federal Reserve system, the committee feels that it would be advantageous to the member banks to retain on the Board of Directors of the Federal Reserve Bank one so thoroughly familiar, both as a director and as an officer, with all the history and precedents of the bank and the system since its inception.

"Mr. Whitmarsh is a director and member of the Executive Committee of the Irving Bank-Columbia Trust Company and a trustee of the Greenwich Savings Bank. He was for three terms President of the National Wholesale Grocers' Association and during the war was head of the Distribution Department of the United States Food Administration. He was formerly a director of the United States Chamber of Commerce and is at present Chairman of that organization's Distribution Department."

Fight Over Mexican Debt.

The Republic of Mexico is facing the prospect of a political fight over the Mexican debt agreement, according to The Excelsior, published in the City of Mexico, which reports that merchants have asked that the Government pay first on its notes held by Mexicans. Thomas W. Lamont, Chairman of the International Banking Committee on Mexico, was not available for an inquiry yesterday. In his most recent statement he said Mexico was complying with every clause in the debt agreement and that the resumption of payments on bonds and back interest appeared assured.

COTTON ADVANCES IN EXCITED MARKET

News of Special Crop Report on Nov. 1 Sends Prices Up 44 to 68 Points.

After two days of poor response to news, cotton turned suddenly yesterday with a violent advance in prices. The Department of Agriculture announced that a special report on the cotton crop would be issued at 11 o'clock Nov. 1, based on conditions of Oct. 25. This is so radical a departure from all previous custom, since no report is issued between that of Sept. 25 and the final estimate about Dec. 10, that all three Exchanges were thrown into a state of considerable excitement. A buying movement developed that swept prices steadily upward as the day advanced. An announcement that the Amoskeag mills would resume operations on Monday added a second stimulating factor, and as a large volume of business prices gained 44 to 68 points for the day.

Though slightly lower prices were recorded in early trading, the report that Washington would put out a special report started the heaviest buying in some time. After a reaction of a few points during the morning Liverpool rose sharply again and sent buying orders to this side. Almost immediately after the opening all three markets became active and excited. Blocks of cotton were taken from the ring at steadily advancing quotations. At first uncertainty over the character of this buying led to moderate selling, once a recovery of a quarter of a cent had been established. But when operators discovered that houses with mill connections were taking contracts as a result of active price fixing, and interests that had been taking profits earlier in the week were replacing their lines, buying became general and aggressive. With heavy rains in Eastern sections of the cotton belt and reports that some New England mills would resume operations, commission house business expanded rapidly. Reactions proved limited and all cotton for sale found a ready market. With a broadening of the buying power, Southern selling diminished in volume, which left only a limited quantity of contracts available.

The fact that many advices from various sections of the South the past ten days have tended to reflect an outturn smaller than the 11,000,000 bales indicated in the last Government report, created a feeling of decided nervousness concerning the forthcoming statement. This not only encouraged speculative activity on the buying side but caused many of the disposed to sell. Fears of a reduction in the indicated crop and resulting effects on values became the dominant feature of the session. Liverpool has shown so much strength the past week, advancing into new high ground on the season and mainly fixing the advance, that sentiment shifted quickly. Instead of the selling pressure existing for several days, the market responded instantly to aggressive demand from so many quarters. During the afternoon all March and May contracts offered on a basis of 29 cents were absorbed, blocks of 5,000 bales changing hands at one price. One line of 5,000 May was taken at 29.10 and in late trading one broker sold 5,000 December at 29.48 and 5,000 May at 29.10. Demand continued to the close, with final prices highest of the session and at an advance of over half a cent on the day.

Spinners' takings amounted to 326,000 for the week compared with 405,000 last year, making 2,005,000 for the season against 2,702,000 last year. The amount in sight increased to 583,000 for the week against 670,000 a year ago, which was the record single week of last season. The visible supply increased 200,000 bales against an increase of 265,000 last year, bringing the world's supply of American to 2,393,000 compared with 3,134,000 a year ago.

LIQUIDATIONS SEND WHEAT PRICES DOWN

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—Bearish influences are commencing to affect wheat values. There was considerable liquidation by houses who bought recently, which some traders said was "political" liquidation, and, while there were reports of a marked improvement in the export demand at the seaboard the close was at the bottom, with net losses of ¼@1 cent, with December leading. A local operator who had a liberal spread on between wheat and corn, covered his short wheat early and sold the corn and later sold wheat freely.

Covering by shorts at Winnipeg gave the market more strength and narrowed the Winnipeg-Chicago spread, net losses there being only ⅛ to ¾ cents for the day. A point is made that, while a large amount of Canadian wheat has been moved from the farms, it has not been sold. This, with the promise of a larger crop in Argentina, does not make a pleasant situation for the average holder of wheat to contemplate, when the international situation is considered.

For the time domestic influences have lost their effect. What support developed on the break came from profit taking by shorts. Prices are off over 2 cents from the recent high and the trade is more bearish.

Export business at the seaboard was 1,000,000 bushels, mostly Manitobas. A New York exporter who was here says the business of late has been mainly in covering previous sales made at higher prices, the decline making it profitable for exporters to cover. Actual new business is light, he says, and there is considerable Canadian wheat at the seaboard and afloat for Europe that has not been sold.

Corn closed ⅞@1¼ cents lower after several ineffective attempts on the part of local bulls to sustain the market, the undertone being distinctly heavy, with scattered liquidation in evidence from the start, with no increase of consequence in outside buying. Clear and cold weather over the West, with the purchase of 100,000 bushels of old corn to arrive for which equal to $1.12 Chicago was paid, with the narrow spread between the price of corn and hogs all combined to make a lower market.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 1,211,000 bushels; week ago, holiday. Last year, 1,454,000. Shipments were 513,000 bushels; last year, 1,070,000.

Corn receipts were 422,000 bushels; last year, 1,098,000. Shipments were 377,000 bushels; last year, 1,133,000.

SCHWARTZ HELD IN $5,000

Commissioner Curran's Ex-Stenographer, Arrested With Siken, Pleads Not Guilty.

Soon after Maurice Siken, 38, of 2,111 Daly Avenue, the Bronx, pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Mancuso in General Sessions to an indictment for second degree grand larceny, District Attorney Banton announced that Siken had confessed how an official of the immigration station on Ellis Island had aided him to defraud relatives of immigrants under inquiry out of sums ranging from $150 to $500 under promise of having the aliens admitted to this country.

Siken, who described himself as a "business broker" with an office at 296 Broadway, was indicted several days ago with Louis G. Schwartz, 29, of 214 Echo Place, the Bronx, a stenographer for Commissioner Henry H. Curran of the immigration station. Schwartz was arraigned with Siken yesterday, but he pleaded not guilty and was released in $5,000 bail by Judge Mancuso.

The men were arrested a week ago, after Commissioner Curran had reported to District Attorney Banton that he believed an organized band was extorting money from relatives of immigrants under the pretext that the aliens could not be admitted to this country unless the relatives bribed the officials who had the power to cause their deportation. Commissioner Curran said that his attention had been called to the matter by Samuel Meskokow of East Orange, N. J., whose two nieces and a nephew, all under fifteen years old, were being detained on Ellis Island for determination by a Special Board of Inquiry whether they should be deported to Russia as undesirables.

The matter was put in the hands of Assistant District Attorney Thomas Kane for an immediate investigation. According to Mr. Banton, his assistant developed that Siken was alleged to have obtained from Schwartz, who occasionally acted as a member of the Special Board of Inquiry on Ellis Island and was his personal friend, the names and addresses of relatives of immigrants, which could not have been obtained by outsiders.

It also was developed that, with this data in hand Siken or a representative would call on the relatives, explain that the person or persons being detained on Ellis Island were facing deportation and offer to obtain their admission to this country for a sum of money usually $500. Mr. Kane also developed that in several instances the Government had no intention of deporting the immigrants mentioned, but were merely detaining them for a day or more because of the pressure of the work of processing them in the custody of their relatives.

Siken was remanded for sentence by Judge Mancuso on Oct. 26, but the prosecutor indicated that he would request that the sentence be deferred until Siken had appeared as a witness at Schwartz's trial.

COOLIDGE SILENT ON TAX REVISION

President Feels He Should Withhold Any Recommendations Until Congress Meets.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Agitation over a tax revision program of the Republican party in the next Congress has not affected President Coolidge to the degree that he feels that he should announce at this time what he will recommend in the way of legislation when the Senate and the House assemble in December.

Mr. Coolidge is credited with being in favor of curtailing some of the present taxes, and is understood to be in accord with the efforts now being made by Secretary Mellon to draft amendments to the Tariff act that will bring reduction of some of the direct taxes. But it was said at the White House today that the President had not arrived at any settled opinion as to the manner in which the contemplated reductions should be made, and, even if he had, he would feel that his recommendations should be withheld until they could be laid before Congress.

As the President's position was explained by a White House spokesman authorized to report the President's views, he feels that he should not come to any positive conclusions as to the form tax revision should take until he has had opportunity to consult at length with members of the Ways and Means Committee of the House, who will draft any revision measure, and the members of the Finance Committee of the Senate, to whom a tax revision bill would go when it had passed the House. While these members and the Secretary of the Treasury, the President, it was said, will take up proposals for a tax revision measure, and form his conclusions after he has had suggestions from them and obtained a thorough knowledge of sentiment in Congress on the subject.

One significant statement made by the President's spokesman today was that Mr. Coolidge supposed it went without saying that everybody was in favor of a reduction in taxes if the financial condition of the Government warranted it.

Among the President's callers today was Wilbur F. Wakeman of New York, Secretary of the American-Protective Tariff League. At the White House it was said that Mr. Wakeman had talked with the President less than five minutes, and that this time was spent by Mr. Wakeman in telling the President what his organization was doing in the way of gathering tariff statistics.

BOY BURGLARS SENTENCED.

Camden High School Students Sent to Rahway Reformatory.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMDEN, N. J., Oct. 19.—John B. Middleton of Collingswood and Harry Pine, who confessed complicity in nearly a dozen robberies of suburban homes, were sentenced by Judge Shay to the Rahway Reformatory today. Byron P. Cobb and Alpheus Harker of 532 Haddon Avenue, who were implicated in one robbery, were also sentenced to the reformatory, but sentence was suspended. Three of the boys were students at the high school.

"Cases of this kind are very trying to the Court," said Judge Shay. "I have received letters from some of the best citizens of our city asking that leniency be extended. These boys come from good families. They are equipped with knowledge and education and are different from the average offender who appears before this Court. I want to consider the feelings of the parents and at the same time see that justice is done. Out of fairness to the persons who were robbed and in fairness to the boys themselves I feel that some punishment should be meted out."

Pine had orders of a local preacher and had preached from the pulpit of the church. He was a class day orator at school and had talked on law and order.

GRANITE INQUIRY OPENS.

Hirshfield Hears Fuller Company Witnesses in Court Building Case.

Witnesses for the George A. Fuller Company, contractors for the New York County Court House, testified yesterday at a hearing before Commissioner Hirshfield that only the best quality of granite was used in the building, contraverting charges brought last April by Patrick A. Ryan that an inferior grade was being used and that other specifications of the contract had not been carried out. The original charges were made last April in a letter to the Board of Estimate and were repeated in a letter to Mayor Hylan dated Aug. 7.

Ryan at the time of the contract was let owned or claimed to own a quarry at Crotch Island, Maine, adjoining the Rogers quarry from which the Fuller Company took the material used in the court house. He had expected to furnish the granite from this quarry until the contract was let on June 23, 1922, to the Fuller Company.

At the hearing yesterday it was asserted by counsel and witnesses for the Fuller Company that at the time Ryan attempted to sell the Crotch Island quarry to the Fuller Company it had actually passed out of his possession, having been previously sold for taxes to Dr. B. M. Noyes of Stonington, Me. J. F. Manning, general manager of the quarries department of the Fuller Company, was the witness who made this charge. He produced a deed of sale of the quarry in question for unpaid taxes amounting to $415. This deed was dated Feb. 12, 1921, and certified due by the registrar Feb. 24, 1922. The contract to the Fuller Company, Mr. Manning said, was signed June 23, 1922.

The witness testified that the geological formation throughout the area of the quarry district of Crotch Island was the same, and that the quality of stone in all of them was identical except on the surface.

"The only question here," Commissioner Hirshfield interrupted, "is whether the granite you took out of the Rogers quarry was of the best quality and up to specifications."

"You were instrumental in the award of this contract," replied Francis L. Wellman, attorney for the Fuller Company, "and we are going to prove your good judgment. The granite is the best quality obtainable for building purposes."

Other witnesses examined were J. H. Bowen, a granite cutter of twenty-five years' experience, foreman of the Rogers quarry and President of the local Stonecutters' Union of Stonington, Me.; Frank McGuire, another worker, of thirty-five years' experience, and superintendent of the Rogers quarry, and Arthur MacMullen of Stonington, a quarry owner whose property adjoins the Ryan and Rogers quarries. All these witnesses testified that the quality of stone in all these quarries is identical.

Commissioner Hirshfield adjourned the hearing to Nov. 8 at 10 A. M.

THE WEEK'S PRICE TREND.

Twelve of the nineteen changes in the foodstuffs were advances but, aside from the dairy products, none of the important articles went up. In the local provisions market there were no advances. Spring patent flour declined 15 cents a barrel, but Winter soft straights did not change. Middle Western lard and bacon also dropped here, but no revision was seen in hams. At Chicago advances were also lacking in the provisions, with the declines supplied by live hogs and short ribs. Mess pork, lean shoap and live beef did not change.

The feature of the week's changes in the dairy products was a rise of eight cents a dozen in near-by fancy eggs but, despite the increase, the current price is lower than that for 1922. Fresh-gathered "firsts" eggs did not change. The best cheese fell off half a cent a pound, but all of the listed butters showed advances ranging from a cent to 1¼ cents a pound.

In the list for fruits the fresh ones were again unchanged, but the dried fruits showed advance in apricots, nitron, lemon peel and orange peel. Choice medium beans were higher, but onions dropped 25 cents a bag. Coffee again supplied the only changes in the beverages, the basic grades of Brazilian coffee both being higher again. The spices showed no changes either way, but a rise of 10 cents a hundred pounds took place in fine granulated sugar.

In the grains the only advances were seen in corn and malting barley. Wheat, oats and rye were lower, as were hay and straw. Leather continued quotably unchanged, while the only changes in the hides were declines in No. 1 Buffs and No. 1 Extremes. Only four of the ten changes in the metals were advances. They included iron bars at Chicago and electrolytic copper, spelter and tin. Lead declined, as did furnace coke and four of the five listed kinds of pig iron.

Only one change was shown this week in the combined lists for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils. Among them was a drop of $1.50 a pound in menthol, in case lots, which brought it down to $15.50 against $17 at this time last year. Pitch registered the only rise in the naval stores, with resin and turpentine showing the declines. Other changes included an advance in the best plantation crude rubber and a drop in the best Brazil rubber. Several grades of domestic wool were also lower.

The week in the textiles was not productive of a great deal of feature. Better business was reported in the men's wear end of the woolens trade, and there was evidence of increasing confidence in the silk field. The burlap mills were active, so far as spots and near-by affoats were concerned. The centre of interest in the cotton goods was the gray cloths, several constructions of which advanced during the week as a result of more active buying on the part of the converting and jobbing trades.

Tower Plan for Philadelphia Fair.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19.—Members of the Manufacturers' Committee of the Sesquicentennial Association yesterday listened to a plan for a celebration drawn by two New York engineers, Theodore H. Skinnar and L. F. Alford, for a $50,000,000 project calling for the erection of a 1,000-foot tower, which they call the "Beacon of Freedom," with a platform 1,250 feet above the ground and a beacon searchlight visible in Washington and New York.

Underwear Styles Decided On.

Three models of knitted undergarments have been selected by the Style Committee of the Associated Knit Underwear Manufacturers of America to be referred to a committee that will give them names by which they may become known to the public and their purchase made easier. All three styles are to be featured for men, women and children, and are to be offered in both two-piece and union suits. They include a style made with a quarter sleeve and three-quarter leg; a model that is made sleeveless and with knee length leg, and a style made sleeveless with a three-quarter leg. The first two types are at present in greatest consumer demand, but the third style was selected because, in the opinion of manufacturers, it is the one best suited for the Spring and Summer requirements of the average consumer. It will be particularly stressed in the co-operative advertising of the industry.

Hard Coal Demand Lessening.

The demand for high-priced independent anthracite is beginning to ease up a little under the influence of continued heavy production and of temperatures which are perhaps a shade above normal for this time of the year, the Journal of Commerce will say today. Operators with unfilled orders on their books are still quoting $12 to $12.50 on domestic sizes, but when a seller is really looking for business he sometimes finds it necessary to shade these figures a bit, particularly on egg coal. Stove coal is urgently sought by dealers, and there are plenty of buyers looking for nut. There is only a limited demand for spot bituminous, and prices are lower than at any other time in two years.

May Expand Spring Operations.

Larger shipments of raw silk than were believed possible some time ago may lead to much bigger preparations for Spring by manufacturers of broad silks than they have hitherto calculated on. Curtailment of both manufacturing operations and buying of raw silk is still the rule, however, but with October shipments probably totaling from 35 to 45 per cent. of the monthly average for this year and indications pointing to still better receipts in November, this attitude, it is pointed out, may change entirely. It seems certain that the production of novelties for the Spring will not be curtailed, although this was quite generally talked of in the trade recently. The deciding point here is that on this class of goods the price resistance of buyers is much less marked than is the case with the staples.

A New Perfumery Trick.

A new fraud is being practiced in local house-to-house canvassing in the offering for sale of bottles of colored water as expensive imported perfumes, according to complaints which have reached the National Retail Dry Goods Association. In a statement issued yesterday, the association says it has in its possession a bottle which bears the label of a well-known French perfumer. The contents are quite worthless, but the glass stopper appears to have been scented by soaking in the genuine perfume. This bottle was sold for $8 to an unsuspecting customer at her home, the value being represented as $90. The purchaser was invited to smell the stopper and purchased the bargain. The situation has been brought to the attention of the American representative of the perfumer in question and attempts will be made to run the matter to earth.

Tend to Concentrate Buying.

In order to get a greater degree of standardization and exclusiveness, the disposition is growing among some leading clothing manufacturers to restrict their purchases to comparatively few mills. In the instance of one well-known clothier the attempt is being made to confine purchases to only five or six mills. He buys one range, choice being based on fabric quality, pattern and price, from one mill, the second from another, and so on until the lines are completed. Where volume is the main consideration this does not apply, and the largest goods factor in the market has, it is understood, many accounts where it supplies practically all the cloth that will be used. Another angle of the same proposition is the desire of some of the independent worsted concerns to get as wide a distribution of orders as possible, some catering particularly to the smaller manufacturer. It is said that this method, with closer checking, is working out very well from both the standpoint of credit losses and cancellations received.

Printcloths Lead in Gray Goods.

Printcloths received most of the attention of buyers in the local gray goods market yesterday. The bulk of the business was done for October delivery and it included large sales of 38½-inch 64-60s at 9¾ cents. This business was done in the morning, with 9¾ cents the asking price later on. For 39-inch 68-72s buyers paid 11¾ cents and they also bought 39-inch 80-squares at 12½ cents. The price they paid for 38½-inch 80-48s was 9¾ cents. In the sheetings there were sales of 37-inch 48-square, four-yards at 11¾ cents, with 36-inch 5.00s disposed of at 9¾ cents. The rest of the market lacked particular feature.

Has a Cheap Pencil Set.

One of the local distributers of the more popular-priced lines of jewelry is offering a pencil set with a miniature fountain pen and pencil, set in sterling silver, at $9 a dozen hooped. The set is similar to others previously put on the market, with the exception that the pen has a 14-karat gold pen point and is filled by the operation of a screw in the same way that fountain pens of standard size are. The pencil is of the mechanical type that propels and repels lead. Both pen and pencil are only 5½ inches long and may be had in gilt and silver finishes.

Singer Bros. Discontinued.

Discontinuance of Singer Bros., Inc., as a firm was announced yesterday by Saul Singer, President of the concern, which is one of the most prominent in the cloak and suit industry. The reason for the action is the desire of the members of the firm, Saul & Sol Singer, to give all their attention to the growth and development of Hickson, Inc. The affairs of the concern will be closed at once, the personnel and the activities of the firm being transferred to the expansion of the Hickson agency plan. This is said to contemplate the establishment in the more important cities and towns of the country of retail outlets that shall act as a Hickson representative.

Slowness Affects Spring Buying.

The buying of dress goods for Spring has been hampered considerably by the slowness with which some Fall garments have moved to the retailers. These are particularly the pile fabric coats, which represent more in dollars and cents volume than do the well-bought sports coats and jacquettes. Goods salesmen who have called on garment wholesalers during the week say they have met with but little success in interesting buyers. Summarized, the attitude of the latter seems to be, "Wait until we do some more Fall business and then we will continue our buying of Spring fabrics." This is considered only a temporary condition, as no convincing indications are seen

The Weather.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—The storm that was central over Indiana Thursday night has continued to move north northeastward, and it was centred south of Hudson Bay Friday night. The North Atlantic storm has moved inland over New England and it quickly dissipated after reaching land. These disturbances have been attended by general rains east of the Mississippi River and by gales in portions of the lake region and along the New England coast. High pressure prevailed Friday over middle and northern sections west of the Mississippi River.

The weather will be generally fair Saturday and Sunday in the States east of the Mississippi River, except that showers are probable Saturday in extreme Southern Florida and in portions of the lower lake region. New England and Northern New York. The temperature will be lower in the Atlantic States and the lower lake region, and the weather will remain cool over Sunday throughout the Washington forecast district.

There is a disturbance over the Western Caribbean Sea, apparently central about latitude 18, longitude 81. It has apparently moved slightly north northwestward. Caution is still advised vessels bound for Western Caribbean.

JERSEY TOWNS SEE HOPE IN HEAVY RAIN

310 PLANTS FORCED TO QUIT

North Hudson Bears Brunt of the Famine—Tank Boats Come to the Rescue.

With two inches of rainfall needed in Bergen and Hudson counties in New Jersey to lift the water famine, only one-half inch of rain had fallen up to 9 o'clock last night, according to officials of the Hackensack Water Company.

"The rainfall so far will not affect the situation much unless it continues," said D. W. French, manager of the company, which has been forced to shut off water supply to 310 industrial plants. "If it should continue all tonight and tomorrow, probably by Monday we could reopen gate valves at the plants we have closed. Decisive figures cannot well be furnished until the morning, when we get reports throughout our 114 square miles of watershed."

Hoboken was rescued from possible distress yesterday when Jersey City came to its relief by the "transfusion" method. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon water was cut into Hoboken through a 16-inch main from the Jersey City supply, giving Hoboken virtually unlimited call upon the Rockaway River watershed serving its southern neighbor. This also lightened the drain upon the Hackensack Water Company, upon which Hoboken has depended.

Jersey City Stops Waste.

The cut-over had been planned for about Nov. 1 by officials of the two municipalities, but in view of the present emergency the date was advanced after a hurried conference yesterday morning. Michael L. Fagan, Jersey City Director of Streets and Public Improvements, said his community, by elimination of waste and leakage, was conserving 9,000,000 gallons of water a day, enough to give Hoboken the requisite assistance.

North Hudson reported it now bore the brunt of the water shortage. While the water company still found its reservoirs held a twenty-day supply for domestic uses, the industrial consumers in West Hoboken, West New York, Union Hill and North Bergen and the others coming under the North Hudson grouping, were inconvenienced by dry boilers. At least 2,500 employes are taking an indefinite layoff in that district according to company officials. The silk mills of the Schwarzenbach-Huber Company at West Hoboken laid off 300, it was learned.

No layoffs were reported in Edgewater, the Corn Products plant, the Warner Sugar Refinery and the United States Aluminum Company having determined to hold out until Monday at least. This was prompted by the prevailing labor shortage, which made it difficult for the companies to recover men once they scattered.

Tank Boats Help Plants.

The new market New Jersey offered for water attracted many tank boats formerly engaged in watering ocean vessels. Various plants with riparian frontage availed themselves of this supply which the tank boats brought from the Manhattan side and from up-river points.

Some concerns were enabled to continue operations by pumping salt water from the Hackensack River, while others succeeded in making emergency arrangements with local artesian well owners. At Fort Lee the City Council gave the Universal Film Company permission to pump from Crystal Lake at Nordhoff. Other film laboratories, however, were getting along at low pressure. It was said that today they would shut down unless relief was obtained.

CLUBWOMEN MEET.

Adopt 13 Resolutions to Present at Convention of Federation.

Delegates of New York women's clubs met yesterday at the Hotel Astor at a preliminary meeting of the New York Federation of Women's Clubs, when resolutions were voted upon for presentation at the convention to be held at the Astor on Oct. 26. Thirteen resolutions were read, all of which were adopted for presentation at the convention. The first resolution voted on was a protest against the amendment to the State Constitution opening forest preserves for power development by corporations. It was adopted unanimously.

The only resolution which called forth any controversy of opinion was one to recommend to the Board of Education the establishment of the post of Dean in all the girls' high schools of New York. Such a post has already been created at Wadleigh High School, and Miss McVey, who holds the position, made a brief speech outlining the advantages of the plan.

Considerable opposition was expressed by some of those present to the idea, which, they said, was an infraction on the duties of the student's family.

Other resolutions recommended a Sabbatical year for teachers for purposes of travel and study, and a revision of the teachers' pension, to be based on the average salary for the past five years, rather than on the past ten years, as at present. Another resolution advocated that the pay of first grade patrolmen and first grade firemen should be increased. Another resolution recommended to the Board of Aldermen the passing of an ordinance prohibiting the sale or entry into the city of an inferior quality of coal.

HITS RECLAMATION INQUIRY.

Senator Wheeler Sees a Move to Aid Power Interests.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Senator Wheeler of Montana charged in a statement that the investigation by the Fact-Finding Commission into the reclamation projects appeared to be a move to "dispossess the present occupants and throw the reclamation project into private hands to be exploited in the interests of the power trusts of the West."

"The solicitude of the Secretary of the Interior for the settlers' reclamation projects of the United States is a subject of suspicion," Senator Wheeler said.

"With the possible exception of one or two, the members of this commission have had little, if any, experience with or knowledge of our national reclamation system or of the needs of the individual farmer on the reclamation unit.

"The appointment of this commission seems utterly superfluous, as all the facts are, or should be, already in the possession of the Department of the Interior. It appears to be but another expressive smoke screen behind which the actual purpose of the policy of the department can be concealed."

Attacks on Jews in Upper Silesia.

Agency).—Anti-Jewish excesses in Beu-Agency.—Anti-Jewish excesses in Beuthen and neighboring towns of Upper Silesia have become so frequent and reached such a point that Police President Beck has issued an order prohibiting assemblages of more than five persons in any of these towns, in order to ward off the danger of pogroms.

AVOIDS SUIT OVER WILL OF LILLIAN RUSSELL

Daughter Accepts Settlement to Allow Administration by Her Mother's Husband.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 19.—Dorothy Russell O'Reilly, daughter of Lillian Russell, has dropped her proposed suit in connection with the administration of her mother's estate by her husband, Alexander P. Moore, Ambassador to Spain. While the details of the settlement are not given out, it is understood that all of the debts of the daughter will be paid; that money will be advanced to her to enable her to buy costumes and scenery for the vaudeville act in which she is about to make her appearance, and that she will have a guarantee of the $50 a week which her mother provided for her in her will.

During the lifetime of Lillian Russell she was reputed to be worth more than half a million dollars. The first inventory filed in the Orphans' Court here put the valuation of the estate at $80,000, but later a corrected inventory was filed, placing the value of the estate at $65,000. Of this amount $58,000 represents the value of diamonds and furs.

The $50 a week was paid to Mrs. O'Reilly, but some months ago this was reduced to $30 a week and later to $25 a week.

LAYMEN HIT AT LIBERALS.

Pennsylvania Episcopalians Urge Adherence to Church's Creed.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19.—Protestant Episcopalian clergymen and laymen in the Diocese of Pennsylvania "who disseminate doctrines which tend to unsettle the minds of some of our people" are summoned to an adherence to "the faith of our Church as embodied in the Creed" in a document issued today and signed by fifty prominent laymen.

A declaration of faith endorsing the Apostles' and Nicene Creeds as a test of loyal membership in the Church was appended to the paper, which was designated "a call for renewed faith and service from laymen to laymen."

Though not mentioning by name some of the more outspoken and liberal-thinking clergymen, the call is an evident attempt to bring them to account. Among its signers are Senator George Wharton Pepper, Dr. Burton Chance, Dr. J. Norman Henry, W. W. Frazier Jr. and Clinton Rodgers Woodruff.

Members of the committee of laymen who drew up the declaration of belief say a feeling has steadily grown in the diocese that the sentiments of Bishop Philip M. Rhinelander regarding the Creed, which were expressed at the annual convention of the diocese last May, should be endorsed by the laymen.

GIMBELS STREET FLOOR BALCONY

WHEN you come to the last delightful inch of your La Palina, when you see that there are no ragged, half-charred edges, when you reflect that it has burned steadily and evenly since the instant you lighted it, I'll warrant that you do not realize how much the wrapper had to do with this particular part of your enjoyment.

There is no tobacco in the world like the wrapper used on La Palina. When you take a leaf of this pliant, delicately veined tobacco in your hand, you can feel instantly its wonderful texture—light, elastic and yet strong. If you set fire to the center of the leaf it is completely consumed, burning steadily in all directions, giving off the faintest delightful aroma. Every inch of it is superb tobacco.

There is no secret concerning the cost of such tobacco. It is the most expensive wrapper that can be put on a cigar. But I know that it is the only wrapper that will combine with and do justice to the fine, imported tobaccos in the La Palina filler. And so long as I am certain that there is produced no wrapper better than this I shall continue to use it for La Palina.

The device can be used on Steam or Hot Water Heaters, Hot Air Heaters, Vapor or Tank Heaters, and with Thermostat.

It is Easily Installed

The coal-saving device is contained in a piece of furnace pipe, varying in length from 18 inches to 2 feet in two one-foot lengths. Simply remove a corresponding section of pipe and insert this piece in its place.

The Results Are Startling

Feel the furnace-door before installing; it is cool, comparatively. Feel the hot smoke-pipe. Feel them after installation: the door is hot, the pipe is cool. Then notice the first day's ashes.

We do not advise its use with a furnace that has poor draft.

Phone and mail orders will be given prompt attention. No matter where you live. Just send in the diameter of your pipe. Your own plumber will install without any difficulty, and at moderate expense. Or you can install it yourself, as it is a simple operation.

At present prices, the saving will be from about $2.50 to $5 a ton on hard coal. Other fuel shows a proportionate saving.
